We do not know how many newcomers are taking up residence in Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village without being discovered by the welcoming service, but here are some figures covering those who have been officially received.

Arlington Heights — new July residents 445, since January 1, 1,707.

Elk Grove Village—July residents 311; since January 1, 1,141.

Perhaps these figures will give the school people something to think about.

Somebody said "Result of work well done is more good work to do." It applies to the loyal persons who have directed and given volunteer labor for the local cancer society the past years.

A review of what was accomplished and the increased need for the coming year was evident to the board of directors at a budget meeting last week when it was increased 28 per cent.

Its full operation will require a lot of volunteer service as well as cash.

"Capital punishment is when the government taxes you to get capital in order to go into business in competition with you, and then taxes the profits on your business in order to pay its losses."

There is little we can do about it, except to nip in the bud the present trend towards Socialism.

Again, Monday, August 10, we and Herbert Hoover celebrated our birthdays. He is evidently setting the age goal for yours truly, but he is still seven years our senior.

We do not ever expect to catch up with him, but we will settle for that "85" that he has registered.

He has received so many honors through the years, that we doubt if anything could be added to them.

To us, the birthday greetings signed by 76 employees is enough honor for us.

We have received the customary invite from Gov. Stratton to be his guest at the State Fair, but he informs us that the legislature has ruled that even editors and newsmen must pay an admission fee for themselves and automobile.

Gov. Stratton attempts to ease it off with an invitation to partake of refreshments with him in a private dining room.

We approve the action of the legislature, but it was a bit of a shock to be frankly told that editors are no better than other fellows.

It reminds us of the early part of this century when the railroads were stopped from issuing 1,000-mile coupon books to newspapers in exchange for news stories.

We did our best to save the Palatine triangle park, but the voters ruled otherwise.

It has gone out of the window as a beauty spot and in its place has risen a political cold war.

The $8,000 that some people want to be replaced in the village treasury can be easily done to our way of thinking.

If the public does not want the village to own the lot, it can be sold if existing restrictions to use of the property are changed, permitting a gas station or "what have you."

While on the subject, we quote from village board minutes of April 25, 1955:

"Byron Finegan talked about the vacant property in the business section on the north side of Slade street between Brockway and Bothwell streets, and about the advisability of this property being obtained by either the village or the park district. Following some discussion, he offered to get information as to the name of the owners and the possibility of acquiring it."

Village to Permit Apartment Project

Court Order Agreed Upon; Start Work on 120 Units

Arlington Heights is to allow construction of 15 apartment buildings on 5.6 acres adjoining railroad tracks in the village under terms of an agreed order signed Monday by Circuit Judge Jacob M. Braude.

There will be a total of 120 apartments, eight in each building, constructed on the land, located south of the North Western railroad right-of-way and north of Euclid at a point just east of Harvard ave. The property is known as the Thiersch tract. The apartment building development will contain off-street parking spaces for 120 cars.

THE 10-PAGE decree instructed the clerk of the court to issue a writ of mandamus directing the village president and board "to do all acts necessary to rezone forthwith" the property from residential district "A" (single family dwellings) to residential district "B" (multiple family dwellings).

"The findings of this court," the order added, "do not pass upon the constitutionality of the zoning ordinance in its entirety or as it affects the subject property or property similarly located."

The court action returns the controversial case to the status held April 20 when the village board, sitting as a committee of the whole, adopted a resolution rezoning the land for apartment building construction.

The parties shall abide by the terms of that resolution, Judge Braude said.

THE ORDER noted the court action was taken by agreement of the parties with Judge Braude finding the issues for the plaintiffs and against the defendants.

The suit was filed in June to enforce the April 20 village board resolution. The bill was instituted by John V. Lizars, Stuart Realty company, William Kleiner, Leonard Loesler, William Mueller, and the LaSalle National bank, the last mentioned as trustee.

IT NOTED the village plan commission recommended rezoning the site for the project, to be known as Arlingdale Garden apartments.

The court order provides the plaintiffs are to grant an easement along the northeast line of the property to the village for a public water main.

Also, the decree doesn't approve the subdivision plat of the project, but leaves this up to the approval of the village plan commission.

"ALL RIGHT, MR. DOG CATCHER, I'll give them another chance." Muffin, a toy poodle, has the usual troubles with her ill-behaved 10-week-old pups, but soon they'll be old enough to be enrolled in obedience school, which guarantees to improve their manners. The public will be given an opportunity to see the benefits of obedience training all day Sunday, August 16, when one of the largest shows ever held in the United States will take place in the field house of Prospect high school, Arlington Heights. More than 300 pure-bred dogs will be working in six rings, competing for 130 trophies.

Dogdom's Finest Star In Gala Show Sunday

The elite of dogdom will perform Sunday in Prospect high school, Arlington Heights, when one of the largest dog shows ever sponsored by an obedience club will be held in the field house of the school from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The show will be an all-breed obedience trial and tracking test with trials taking place simultaneously in six rings. Tracking tests will be held on the grounds of Dr. Justin P. Fleischman and surrounding properties in Palatine. Participating in the trials will be more than 300 dogs from Chicago and suburbs as well as downstate and nearby states.

SPONSOR of the show is the Northwest obedience Club, Inc., of Suburban Chicago, which trains Wednesday evenings in Palatine. Chairman of the show is Charles Berry of Arlington Heights and secretary is Mrs. Alfred P. Redwanz, also of Arlington Heights.

Chief ring steward for the show will be Stanton Petry of Arlington Heights who is vice president of the club. In charge of tracking tests will be the club's director of training, David W. Terrill of Palatine.

VETERINARIANS on the premises will include Dr. Charles A. Esser of Mt. Prospect and Dr. Ian W. Taylor of Wheeling, according to the club's president, DeForest Muster of Bensenville.

The public is invited to the show, the second annual licensed obedience trial presented by Northwest. Plate dinners as well as barbecues will be available throughout the day.

Masonic Temple Zone Hearing Set

A rezoning request for a Masonic temple will be determined at a meeting of the zoning board of appeals in Arlington Heights at 8 p.m. August 18 in the village hall, reports Victor H. Beisler, zoning board chairman.

The request has been made by the Century club of the Arlington Heights Masonic lodge.

Site of the proposed Lodge temple is on Lots 179, 180 and 181 at the corner of south State road and Magnolia, the southernmost three lots in the village.

The area, presently zoned as residential, would require a change to permit the Masonic temple to be constructed. The land area is roughly 231 feet long by 124 feet deep.

THIS IS THE latest step in a series of moves by the Century club to acquire a site for such a building.

Previously, the club had attempted to rezone a residential site on the west side of Stonegate, on Dryden street. However, they withdrew their request when neighbors objected to the zoning change.

The Masonic group indicated that although this contemplated site is at the southernmost tip of the village, it is centrally located between Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine and Elk Grove, from which they will recruit members, and is serviced by excellent roads.

This is the only zoning request which will be heard on August 18.

Construction Is Started On YMCA

Contracts for the near million dollar Northwest Suburban YMCA were awarded last week and construciton is now underway at the site of the new building at Cambridge road and Northwest highway, Mt. Prospect.

Thomas M. Blake, chairman of the YMCA board of directors, said that unanimous approval of the board of directors was given at a special meeting to proceed with the building as planned even though the total cost proved to be somewhat higher than anticipated. Nothing will be left out of the building as it was originally planned, acording to Howard Clement, chairman of the building plans committee.

THE NEW "Y" will feature the only indoor pool available to the general public in this area complete with sliding glass walls for hot weather exposure. Other facilities include an 84 foot x 62 foot gymnasium, club rooms, four handball courts, kitchen facilities, youth recreation room, craft room, business men's club complete with steam room and health and massage facilities, a youth recreation room and locker facilities for men, women, boys and girls.

The general contractor for the building is the A. A. Rose Construction co. Rose is a long time resident of Arlington Heights. Completion of the building can be expected in about 10 months, Rose indicated.

Television Show Honors Man, 80

Cubs games to his heart's content now for Fred C. Ehredt, whose 80th birthday was honored recently with a television set from the morning television program, "It Could Be You."

Ehredt, a resident of the Plum Grove Nursing home, Palatine, was pictured recently on the show with his new set. The gift was arranged by his son-in-law, Charles Lawn, Burbank, Calif., who works for Ralph Edwards.

CUBS GAMES and his wife's bi-weekly visits are the highlights of Ehredt's day according to Mrs. Russell W. Marker, director of the home. When there's no game, the shiny, new portable set sits beside his bed.

Ehredt, who has a broken hip, has been at the nursing home since January, 1959.

Born in Baden Baden, Germany, Ehrdt was a Chicago and North Western railroad foreman.

Selected for Games

Rolland A. Franzen, [illegible] S. Beverly lane, Arlington Heights, is a member of the United States skeet shooting team which will compete in the Pan-American games September 5-6.

Franzen qualified for the team spot in the trials last weekend in Virginia Beach. The Pan-Am shoot will be held at the Lincoln Park Gun club with a preliminary shoot Sept. 3-4.

Its Successes, Shortcomings

The Church in Suburbs

An eminent churchman declared recently: "It is high time that the American press should venture to report and evaluate religion in depth."

Paddock Publications proposes to accept this challenge by aiming a searchlight in inquiry into the religious life of the northwest suburbs.

Beginning this week, a special series of articles entitled "Religion in Suburbia" will probe the successes and shortcomings of the church in the suburb, asking such questions as:

—Is the church content with expansion of its physical facilities?

—Is it time for the church to start doing some hard thinking about its relation to the total life of the community by penetrating more deeply into everyday life, improving its approach to emotional and sociological as well as spiritual problems?

—Since the suburb is the bedroom of "organization man," does organized religion in the suburb reflect both the standards of success and frustration of "organization man"?

—How is Protestantism adjusting to the changing religious complexion of the suburbs?

More than a year in preparation, the series will also attempt to provide some answers to the questions: what is Catholicism, what is Protestantism, what is Judaism?

Author of the series is Charles Hayes, managing editor of Paddock Publications and co-author of the award-winning series "Shame of the Suburbs" published in 1958.

The first in the series appears this week on the editorial page.

Teen Play Shut; Ask Censorship

Arlington Heights police last weekend canceled the third showing of what they termed an obscene and immoral play presented by a group of area teen-age actors.

The play, "I Am a Camera," was staged Thursday and Friday nights at Miner Junior high school, but the "Summer Stage" group dropped plans for Saturday night's show after police intervention.

CHIEF CALDERWOOD

Police officer Harold Best complained of the play's distastefulness after seeing the first two acts Friday night. He and Lieutenant Oscar Johnson then returned for the final act, "which wasn't as bad."

Nevertheless, the two policemen informed the actors that, unless the obscene language were deleted, the play couldn't be shown Saturday night. The action was taken under the village's amusements ordinance which states that "no person, group, or organization may exhibit or take part in any show, theatrical, or play which is obscene."

POLICE CHIEF L. W. Calderwood then refused to look at an expurgated copy of the play Saturday morning, declaring that the whole nature of the three-act dramatic comedy was immoral and shouldn't be presented under any condition.

The play, a Broadway hit a few years ago, concerns a loosely moralled woman and her associates, and is set in Berlin in 1930. The author is John Van Druten.

Calderwood said he felt the choice of the play was in very poor taste and "not suitable for Arlington Heights." He defended the Summer Stage group, saying that they became "stuck" with the play after making a hasty choice. "They're a group of nice kids," the police chief stated, "and agreed to stop the play after we talked it over."

He explained that had the group not complied with his order, the police would have been present at Saturday night's showing and would have stopped the production at the first hint of obscenity.

CALDERWOOD pointed out that Arlington Heights has no censorship ordinance, but predicted that the village "is going to have one. This won't happen again." He further stated that the village needed a censorship board to review plays and movies before they were viewed by the public. This board would "decide whether or not plays were of the type that people in Arlington Heights should see."

When asked about "adults only" showing, the chief stated that such a tag is only an inducement to teen-agers, and "If it isn't good enough for my children to see, it isn't good enough for me. They should be productions for the whole family. The board would determine this."

He admitted that he had not read or seen "I Am a Camera," but was relying upon the judgment of Best and Johnson.

BEST SAID that the play contained "acts of indecency, characters being referred to as prostitutes, references to abortion, and obscene verbal expressions. It had no moral message."

Summer Stage is a group of Arlington area actors and actresses, high school and college age. The cast had an adult director, Don Baylor, of Norwood Park, who reportedly was also dissatisfied with the choice of the play. The group had chosen "I Am A Camera" by majority vote after the play had been recommended to them.

Proceeds from the play were to have been donated to an area school for retarded children.

An Editorial

Censor Board Isn't Needed

We didn't have tickets for Saturday night's showing of "I Am a Camera," Summer Stage's ill-fated dramatic presentation. Perhaps this explains why we felt no particular gratitude for the Arlington Heights police department's zealous protection of our morals. From the officers description of the play, we are not certain that seeing such a production would have corrupted us for the rest of our lives.

In condemning the play, the police continually used the adjective "obscene." Perhaps the teen-age group had made a poor choice in attempting such a challenging and mature type of presentation. But was it "obscene?"

Court rulings on obscenity have, in the past 20 years, given us a fairly definite basis for considering whether a book, play, or movie is legally obscene. Obscenity cannot be determined by any isolated word or passage but only by the total intent of the work. In a 1933 decision, Judge Woolsey cleared James Joyce's "Ulysses" of obscenity, stating that "total intent" cannot be found to be obscene unless there is reasonable likelihood that "it will stimulate to lewd and lustful excitement a man of average sexual instincts."

Judge Horn, in 1957, cleared Allen Ginsberg's "Howl" on the basis that if the material has the slightest redeeming social importance it is not obscene because it is protected by the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the Constitution. These three items—total intent, the average man's sexual instincts, and redeeming social importance—have provided the legal ground for practically all test cases, including the "Anatomy of a Murder" dispute recently completed in Chicago and "Lady Chatterley's Lover," returned to the mail by the Supreme court.

But an intelligent, mature person does not need a legal device to decide whether a play will endanger his morals. Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood has said "I think I can decide what is indecent." We believe we can, too. And are we (and the police chief) so different from the remaining populace of the village that we can determine "good" and "bad" drama, or books, or movies. We think not.

But Mr. Calderwood believes that a censorship board is in order, a board which would do our reasoning for us and save us the trouble of deciding whether a particular presentation was worth our patronage. And furthermore, we would no longer have to help our children choose, since they, too, would be protected by a group of some seven or eight experts on obscenity.

The Chief has suggested that "if a book or play is not good enough for my children it is not good enough for me." Carried to extremes, this attitude would mean years of "Howdy Doody," "Bugs Bunny" and Shaggy Dogs, until the family would be ready for TV Westerns. And then, finally, during the child's college years (or the senior year in high school, if the offspring were precocious) one could dial Playhouse 90.

If the Summer Stage youths had made a poor choice, it was up to the parents of those dramatists to withdraw their sons and daughters from the play. As far as the audience was concerned, individuals had the option to get up and walk out at any time they chose. A few reportedly did. But we will protest any organized threat to the individual's right to choose his own entertainment, providing it meets tested standards for obscenity.

We are aware of the city of Chicago's war against "smut" and

Suitcase Brigade Confirms August As Most Active Month

Sidelights Of Arlington Heights

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298 Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

More vacations are beginning and ending right now than at any time this season according to the actions of the local suitcase brigade. Wisconsin seems to be the favorite spot of many Arlington Heights families although any state with "fishable" waters is heaven to the many anglers of our town.

All the wate rsports intrigued, and occupied the Thomas Boylan family during a week's vacation in Door county. They're home again and reluctantly returning to a post-vacation routine at 1311 E.Eastman.

The Claude Chapins, 728 S. Chestnut, also chose Door county for a brief but comfortable retreat from most of last week's heat. They returned Friday after a 4-day visit in Wisconsin.

Dr. Vernon Boman and the family, 739 S. Evergreen, found fishing good at Sister Bay where they enjoyed boating with and without fishing equipment. They returned Sunday after a 2-week water-borne vacation.

THE MARK Rightmire family 116 S. Walnut, came home Saturday after a relaxing week at Lake Beulah, Wis. The previous weekend, Janet returned from a week's stay with friends in Omaha in time to join the family exodus to Wisconsin Monday.

Big Clare and little Clare, the Loechl father and son combine at 1213 N. Dunton, returned late Tuesday from an elongated weekend of fishing at Riley's Point near Sturgeon Bay, Wis. They overnighted Friday with Mr. Loechl's parents in Elkhorn and went on to their campsite Saturday. Clare, the younger, caught lots of pan fish just the right size for a fisherman six years old.

Mrs. Kenneth Auer and the children returned to 740 S. Evergreen a week ago Saturday after three weeks of ideal weather and good fishing, swimming and boating on Deerskin lake near Eagle River. Mr. Auer flew to Wisconsin, one weekend to surprise his family. Some of the big fish in Deerskin lake were taken by surprise too.

Higgins lake in Michigan is also short a few fish since the recent 2-week stay there of the John O'Berry family, 733 S. Mitchell. Brad and Sue were happy too with the "swimibility" of Higgins lake.

MINNESOTA was the choice of the Robert "Scotty" Robinsons who returned home to 300 N. Carlisle Sunday after a 2-week camping trip.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kohler, 843 S. Vail, visited with Minneapolis friends the weekend of the National PGA tournament and were among the spectators at the championship golf contest.

The Newell Crockett family, 802 S. Chestnut, returned last Thursday night after a 3-week trip that began in New York City and ended in Pompano Beach, Fla. After a short business stay in New York and a few days in Washington, D.C., the Crocketts vacationed in Florida with Mrs. Crockett's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ames.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Clausing, 913 S. Vail, returned Sunday after three days at Niagara Falls.

The E. M. Mommsens, 642 S. Dunton, came home Sunday after two weeks in Dallas Tex. with Mrs. Mommsen's parents, the Arthur Rohloffs.

MANY VACATION returnees admit to needing a week's recuperation after coming home. So be it with your Sidelights correspondent, fresh from a "restful" 2-week vacation, who last week reported the imminent move to Lexington, Ky. of the Robert Sweet family. A correction and an apology are in order. The Robert Stewarts, 745 S. Mitchell, plan the Lexington move late this month. The Robert Sweets, after a week's vacation at a Lake Nychaboyne resort near Spooner, Wis., returned home Saturday to 778 S. Walnut, and they plan to stay there. The Sweet's daughter, Pam, had her 12th birthday during the family vacation and entertained 12 young ladies at the lodge to celebrate the day.

The Lexington-bound Mrs. Stewart was co-guest of honor Tuesday at a neighborhood farewell coffee which she shared with Mrs. Clifford Warffuel, 734 S. Mitchell. Sixteen S. Mitchell st. friends gave the coffee at the Earl Riley home, 738 S. Mitchell, and presented each of the honor guests with a farewell gift of remembrance. The Warffuels leave Saturday for a new home in Barrington.

Miss Laurie Riley and Miss Brenda Rudolph leave tomorrow for Colorado Springs where they will meet Miss Rudolph's sister at the [illegible] Riley ranch in Woodland Park, Colo.

THE RUSSELL Nelson family, 1311 E.Euclid, arrived here from the west coast a year and a half ago and tomorrow returns to California to live. Mrs. Nelson was farewelled at a luncheon Monday given by neighborhood friends, Mrs. Paul [illegible] Mrs. Dan Froncak and Mrs. Ken [illegible] at the home of Mrs. [illegible]ler. The hostesses presented Mrs. [illegible] gifts.

The Chet Smiths, 1304 E. Eastman, are home again after a week at Lake of the Woods on the Canadian border and a visit at the home of Minneapolis friends. The senior Mrs. Smith of Kansas City was here with granddaughter, Linda, and remains with her son and his family this week.

Weekend guests at the Robert Bradle home, 534 S. Chestnut, were Mr. Bradle's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Larson of Eureka, and the Larsons' son, Jack and his family of Peoria.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Varney, 850 S. Vail, were their daughter and grandchildren, Mrs. Clyde Pemble, Elizabeth Ann and Steven. During their 2-week stay here the Pemble's household was moved from St. Paul to Milwaukee.

Mrs. Margaret Getchell of Minneapolis arrived here Monday for a stay with her niece and family, the Jack Guilfoils, 801 S. Chestnut.

MIKE HAWKINS, 831 S. Vail, came home August 1 after six weeks with the ROTC at Fort Riley, Kan. Mike will return to Westminster college in Fulton, Mo. early in September to begin his senior year.

A double-header birthday celebration with the family honored Carol and Bob Gabrielsen Sunday at the home of their parents, the junior George Gabrielsens, [illegible] here to share the fun and add their congratulations were the childrens' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Martin and the senior George Gabrielsens, all of Chicago. Carol was 8 last Saturday and Bob will be 3 this Saturday.

Kathleen Dalton celerated her August 9 birthday Tuesday with an afternoon party for eight at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Dalton, 522 S. Dunton. Kathleen was 6.

TWENTY neighborhood children of the ever-active 1000 block on South Dunton had a party Saturday afternoon partly because Cindy Vinberg will be moving soon and partly because they figured it was about time they had a party and their parents stayed home. The William Patterson backyard, at 1011 S. Dunton accommodated the 20 children, lots of hot dogs and innumerable marshmallows.

Thomas Richard, infant son of the Richard Graczyks, 718 S. Chestnut, was christened Sunday in Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic church of Arlington Heights and honored later at a family gathering in the Graczyk home. Among the 17 family members adding their blessings to the day were the infant's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tondrowski and Mrs. Jean Graczyk of Chicago; his godmother, a lifelong friend of his mother, Mrs. William Gunderson of Itasca and his godfather and uncle, John Ciezarek of Skokie.

THE WILLIAM Grahams, 508 S. Lincoln lane, have had a yen to visit Alaska for a long time, and this year it became a reality.

They decided to drive to Colorado, leave their two older daughters, Debbie and Susan, at their maternal grandparents' ranch and take 8-month-old Mary Pat, who is too young for the rugged ranch life, to Anchorage with them. The Grahams were not disappointed in Alaska and found it even more beautiful than they anticipated.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Foster, 623 Mayfair, and their children, Craig, Brian and David, returned August 1, from a vacation at Glen Lake, Mich.

Earl Ervin of Canton, S. D., spent the past weekend with his son and family, the John Ervins, 704 Lynden lane, before leaving for a tour of Europe. The Jack Cushings, 330 S. Beverly lane, have had a fair share of houseguests during the past month. Recent guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Brownell and their children of McLeanboro, Ill., and Mrs. Herman Boe of Alexandria, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Mummert of Burlington, Ind., parents of Mrs. Cushing, arrived Friday for an extended visit.

Decorations were carried out in pink and white.

Miss Koske's marriage to George L. Walker of Haines City, Fla., is planned for September 12, at St. Alphonsus Catholic Church of Prospect Heights.

Mrs. W. A. Miles, 1115 Mayfair, entertained Saturday at what she humorously called a "crab fiesta" for Mrs. Armin Retter and her daughter, Wallis Jacobus of Tucson, and Mrs. William P. Scholz, former Stonegate residents who are visiting in the area. Guests were all of Mrs. Retter's and Mrs. Scholze's friends and neighbors who came to spend an afternoon reminiscing of former days.

The group, which has been on an extended tour this summer, was staying at the Coco Palms hotel, Honolulu, when evacuated to another hotel situated five miles up on a plateau. This second hotel, which usually accommodztes 30 guests, was ocupied by 175 persons, under the jurisdiction of the civilian defense. Miss Handlin writes, "The 18 hours of anxious waiting passed more quickly than one could imagine and was very interesting."

An Editorial

are in sympathy with it. "Smut" has no known author and is peddled secretly and illegally. It does not meet the test for obscenity and is rarely made into a movie (as was "I Am a Camera"). Nor does it receive favorable reviews from Broadway critics. The distinction between "smut" and art is sometimes vague to persons with little artistic taste or reading ability. These persons can often be found on censorship boards.

We feel that any village board so presumptuous as to establish a group to govern the community's choice between good or bad books, plays, or movies is insulting the intelligence of the people who elected them. Such a censor board can only result in religious bickering, intolerance, and bigotry.

Books on Biblical History In Demand at Local Library

The Bible has been a prolific source of subject material for the modern novelist and the numerous books at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library based on Biblical history are in constant demand.

Old Testament stories, with all their color and drama, vie favorably with the tender stories found in the New Testament as the basis for recent Biblical historical novels.

One of the most recent Biblical novels is Laurene Chinn's "The Unanointed," which is the story of King David and the men and women surrounding him. David, according to the novel, had a magnetic personality and those who came in contact with him loved and served him steadfastly. Joab gave up the lovely Reba to David, and unselfishly devoted himself to helping David unite the Israelite tribes and become the King of Israel. "The Unanointed" is an exceptionally good novel, full of drama, romance, and human interest and is a remarkable picture of one of the most fabulous periods in Bible history.

ANOTHER RECENT novel is "Dear and Glorious Physician," by Taylor Caldwell. The author gives a moving and convincing picture of St. Luke, who was obsessed first, last and always by the vital urge to be a physician. The star which heralded the birth of Jesus lighted Luke's way as the personality of the Christ led him to make one of the dearest contributions to Biblical literature — the Gospel according to St. Luke.

Author Frank Slaughter has been a prolific writer of Biblical fiction as well as fictionized medicine. He has combined both most expertly in a recently-published novel, "The Thorn of Arimathea." The hero is Quintus Volusianus, a physician and Roman Centurion, whose life is linked closely with Joseph and his ward, Veronica. Other recent Biblical novels by Slaughter include "The Galileans," "Song of Ruth," and "The Scarlet Cord." His latest book, "The Crown and the Cross" is on the best seller list.

SHOLEM ASCH also has written a number of novels with Biblical themes, including "The Nazarene," "Moses," "The Prophet," and "The Apostle."

About half of the movies made are inspired by novels and short stories. Some of the books which have made great movies in recent years are available at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library. Movies appearing locally which have been based on books almost always bring requests for the book.

"The Nun's Story," by Kathryn Hulme, a widely read best seller during the past three years, has now been made into a movie starring Audrey Hepburn. It is the story of a dedicated nun who served first as a nurse in a hospital for the insane, then in a Congo mission, and finally in a TB sanatorium in occupied Holland.

TWO OTHER recent best selling books — John Voelker's (Robert Traver) "Anatomy of a Murder" and Ernest Hemingway's "The Old Man and the Sea" — have also been made into outstanding new films. "Anatomy of a Murder" is a fascinating analysis of the defense of a man who had taken the life of another, while "The Old Man and the Sea" tells of the courage and tenacity of an old Gulf fisherman in landing a monster marlin.

Other new films from the works of writers include "The Last Angry Man," "Green Mansions," "Some Came Running," "Anne Frank: The Diary of a Young Girl," "The Sound and the Fury," and "The Angry Hills."

NUMEROUS well known literary classics have also been made into movies. Some of these classics are "Ben Hur" by Lewis Wallace, which is to be released as a movie soon; "The Brothers Karamazov" by Fedor Dostoevski; "Gone with the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell; "Moby Dick" by Herman Melville; "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" by Jules Verne; "Richard III" and "Julius Caesar" by William Shakespeare; "War and Peace" by Leo Tolstoy, and "From Here to Eternity," by James Jones.

In addition the library has hundreds of other books that have been the basis for famous movies. A few of the titles include "The High and the Mighty," "The Bridge on the River Kwai," "Not As a Stranger," "Magnificent Obsession," Raintree County," "The Young Lions," "Sayonara," and others. (A

Familiar Landmark May Soon Pass On

An old landmark may pass into history when and if the half century old Arlington Heights Bowling lanes, 8 N. Vail, is remodeled.

Sold August 2 by Edward A. Wolf, 319 S. Walnut, owner of the bowling alleys for the past 14 years, the property is being managed by Paul Jacobsen, 1714 E. Northwest highway.

Jacobsen, who is acting as agent for the owner, has offered the property for rent, either to someone who wishes to retain the character of the bowling alley, or to someone who wishes to transform the building into another type of business.

IN THE LATTER case, the owner has offered to remodel the building.

Previous to being owned by Mr. Wolf, the bowling alley was the property of Charlie Poss, who retained it for a year after purchasing it from Pete Varnick.

Jacobsen recalled several villagers who had rolled up a 300 score during the history of the lanes, including John Duthorn and the Late Romo Becker. A 290 game was bowled by Eric Plonike.

Meanwhile, it is rumored that the property will lose its ancient character and become a thriving restaurant or some other type of business. (A

Ballet Almost Dateless

The ballet seems to be almost as old as time itself. Telling stories in pantomimic dance certainly dates back to very early times.

The beginning of ballet's present form, however, probably dates back to the early 18th century. Marie Anne de Cupis de Camargo, first female ballet star, was responsible for the brief skirt, tights and dancing slippers without heels.

Ballet, both classical and comic, continues to attract an ever-increasing audience in this country.

While Communities Are Sleeping

Arlington Park Is Beehive Of Activity in Dawn Hours

by LIZ ALANNE

At 4:30 a.m., when most people are at home asleep, Arlington Park "residents" are at a peak of activity.

Behind the grandstands, where few visitors to Arlington Park go, is a thriving "city" inhabited by more than 1800 denizens of the sport of kings - owners, trainers, jockeys, grooms and stablehands.

Last Sunday we visited this "city" with Nick Fields, a race [illegible] owner from nearby Itasca, and we were introduced to an atmosphere which was at the same time relaxed and dramatic.

It was 9:30 a.m., five hours since some 1500 men had gathered for breakfast at the restaurant. The horses, too, had eaten at the sunrise hour.

FIELDS drove us past rows of horse barns to the exercise track where a few people had gathered to watch. About 200 horses use the track every day. "These horses will probably be racing tomorrow or the next day," he explained. The exercise boys breez them once around the track in preparation for the coming race."

He pointed to a man standing in a wooden tower. "That fellow times every horse's workout and passes on the results to the racing fans."

As a sleek riderless colt galloped by, led by a rider on a lead pony, he explained that toward the end of the morning, when the race horses have finished using the track, trainers use it to get new horses used to the racing pattern and keep them in peak condition at the same time.

MOST HORSES at the track are worked out every other day, unless sidelined by injury. "It can be a headache when that happens," Fields told us. "Not only does an owner lose racing days while the horse is laid up but it takes that long again to get the horse back in racing condition."

Fields drove us over to his stable area in one of the lengthy "shed rows" in Arlington Park. His two horses, Nik-Nik and Stroller, eyed us suspiciously.

"After the horses are worked out, they are brought back here and cooled out under the roof of the shed row. It takes about 4 minutes more or less, to walk a horse cool. Then they are put away for the day."

Paul Cadarean, Field's trainer, was checking Stroller's legs. Cadarean lives in a trailer Park on the grounds and spends his days looking after his charges. Like other stable personnel, he can get all the comforts of home without leaving the track area, if he wishes.

In this "race track city" are a store, a restaurant, swimming facilities and a recreation hall with television, card tables and game facilities. Nick feels that the track management has made every effort to provide a wide variety of services for the stable personnel.

A trainer may have as many as 50 horses under his tutelege at one time but this is the exception rather than the rule. Trainer Cadarean is able to offer personal attention to his horses since he is handling only three currently the maximum a man can handle properly alone. With many horses in his care a trainer will have assistants.

In addition to Cadarean's duties with his horses, he finds time to help keep the racing equipment in excellent condition and maintain a neat and attractive stable area.

IT WAS near 10:30 and we were amused to see heads poking out of every stall in the shed row. Nick smiled as he told us they were impatient for their lunch.

"They have built-in alarm clocks," he said. "If they have to wait they stamp and whinny and get really noisy." Every horse in Arlington Park is fed at the same time.

We strolled across the area between the shed rows to the restaurant for a leisurely cup of coffee. On our way we saw a few goats tethered out and numerous cats and dogs roaming amidst the army of horses and people.

"Some of them are mascots, some are pets and some are for fractious horses who behave better with some special "companion" always in tow," Nick told us.

The coffee concession was booming and an interesting assortment of people were seated at the tables with one predominating topic of conversation — racing.

Fields and his friend and partner in racing, Jay Levy, also of Itasca, told us that a majority of people in racing are a highly specialized group.

"Most of them grew up on racing," they said, "and while you might find someone who couldn't read or write, you could be sure that he knew racing backwards and forwards from every angle."

Fields, himself, has been an owner for ten years, but as a youngster spent time as an exercise boy and later, a trainer. Now owner of a barber shop, he doesn't have the time he'd like to in order to help train his horses but he visits the track three or four times a week, nevertheless.

NICK FIELDS is typical of a majority of race horse owners in that he is a small owner. "People usually associate racing with the big outfits who have 30 or 40 horses racing at every meet," he said. "A majority of the people in racing are those with from two to six horses, called gypsies, in racing jargon."

Racing people have a 7-day week and it's a family affair. Wives and children join with the men in their interests and activities in addition to attending to the necessities of housekeeping and schooling. They also have a unique social world. Constantly on the move, they renew friendships at the "next meet." Whether it be in Maryland or New Orleans.

We finished our coffee and headed for home. It wasn't quite noon. Had it been a racing day the activity would have been renewed with more grooming, polishing, walking and worrying. But it was Sunday.

As we passed by the stalls on our way out all was quiet and serene. Except for minor activities, the work day was over for the people of the "city" behind the grandstand.

Hospitals Vital in Times of Disaster

by PAUL JOHNSON

When a community disaster such as a tornado, flood, fire, epidemic, industrial explosion, or transportation accident strikes, people turn to hospitals for help. The job of providing immediate medical and hospital care falls directly on the nurses, doctors and hospitals within a stricken area. The disaster's impact on the community's medical resources is immediate and demanding.

In order to be prepared to meet these possible disasters, hospital administrators organize mass casualty programs for their institutions. It is necessary for every member of the hospital staff and the medical staff to be thoroughly familiar with the program, and periodically the program is reviewed so that it will operate smoothly and effectively.

IN GENERAL, all hospital disaster plans are similar and most of them are divided into four main sections. These are (1) receiving and sorting the casualties; (2) assignment to initial treatment; (3) initial treatment and release; and (4) transfer to inpatient facilities for further threatment, convalescence, and discharge.

Certain areas of the hospital are designated for specific use in the mass casualty program so that the flow of casualties can be handled efficiently. Each department of the hospital is assigned definite responsibilities.

When the disaster plan is put into effect, the chairman of the Disaster Plan, who is a staff doctor, the heads of all departments of the hospital, and the medical staff are notified. A disaster tag is placed on each victim as he enters the hospital and all treatment given the patient is written on this tag.

The Nursing Department is assigned to the various treatment areas set up under the disaster plan. Each nurse is responsible to see that the necessary equipment and supplies are on hand. The Chief Pharmacist is responsible for organizing his department to dispense the necessary medications and prepare drug kits for use in the treatment areas.

X-RAY, CENTRAL Supply, Anesthesia, Dietary, Laundry, Laboratory, Maintenance and Housekeeping Departments see that proper service and supplies are provided by their departments.

The hospital's medical staff generally is organized into Receiving, Sorting, Fracture room, X-ray, Burn, Surgical and Shock teams. Some hospitals also have Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, Antibiotic and Cutdown teams.

We all fervently hope that our community will not have to deal with a major disaster. However, it is reassuring to know that if one should occur, our hospitals have well organized disaster plans to minimize the suffering and loss of life.

Arctic Animal Finds Heat Wave Is Easy

by DICK HOFFMANN

With the discomforture index inducing states of solar insensibility this month, here's a recipe for relief:

Ice cream cones (without the ice cream), raw eggs, grapes by the bunch, and well-dried meat.

At least that's the diet of one dog who yawns contentedly even when the thermometer climbs to the suffocation stage.

Even stranger is the fact that the dog is an Alaskan Malamute, that hardy canine breed distinguished by its ability to pull sleds and endure artic freezes.

But "Skimo's" secret for beating the heat is his heavy coat of fur which allows him to romp in 50 below weather; it also acts as insulation against the assaults of summertime.

"He doesn't eat much in the summer," admitted his mistress, Peggy Bell, 21, of 1515 W. St. James st., Arlington Heights. "If he eats too much, he gets hot."

BUT SHE ADDS that the heat doesn't seem to bother him either, due to that heavy coat of multi-shaded grey he wears.

Peggy and Skimo are familiar faces at the Arlington Heights News agency, 200 W. Campbell st., where Peggy works for her father, Paul Bell.

The Malamute, still a growing lad ("He weighs 85 pounds now but should reach 100") is usually the principal topic of discussion among news agency clientele viewing him for the first time.

Resembling a great grey wolf, his appearance does not exactly inspire petting among the public.

Peggy allowed that just his fierce countenance would probably qualify him as a watchdog. "He's also so big he would no doubt scare anyone but I doubt if he would bite them."

ANOTHER DETERRENT to his questionable service as a watchdog is a trait peculiar to this breed: they don't bark.

"He howls instead," she gestured at Skimo stretched out comfortably under a news agency desk. "But when he howls at people, it scares them to death. It's the most errie sound."

Skimo, now nine months old, was born in the snow, one of a litter of pups blessed to "Diamond Lil" and "Bobo," two Malamutes owned by a Des Plaines family.

"The mother just left the pups in the snow," Peggy related, "but I didn't have the heart to leave him out. He was only six weeks old."

Nature has also endowed the Malamute with a snowshoe-type paw which keeps snow from getting between the pads.

Skimo shares the Bell residence with "Hank," a dog whom Peggy describes as a mongrel. Although the two have had their difference, the big Malamute has never engaged another dog in a fight.

"I keep him on a choke chain when we're out," she said. Even with such restrains, however, Skimo's enthusiasm is difficult at times to curb.

OUT ON A farm once where Peggy keeps four riding horses, Skimo's excitement became considerable over a flock of sheep and also for one of the staples of his diet, chicken eggs.

Peggy, who had read that a Malamute could outdistance a man on foot over the snow while pulling the handicap of a sled loaded down with 800 pounds, was convinced of this feat after Skimo caught scent of the sheep.

Despite the fact that the wolfish appearance of the Malamute doesn't inspire the confidence most members of the "canis familiaris" family do as household pets, Peggy said that if they're raised around children they make ideal pets. "Skimo hasn't been around small children, though, and I'm afraid he'd be too playful."

She also pointed out that the Malamute differed from his cousin in the sled traces—the Husky—in that he grew to more impressive proportions.

WOULD THE camera upset Skimo at all? "No, he's a big ham at heart," Peggy replied. (Uh-huh, we'd better adjust this camera to a different setting; five feet is too close to shoot from.)

The pop of the flashbulb, however, which upsets all sorts of homo sapiens only caused Skimo to blink, convincing us of his complete domestication.

Peggy underlined this fact by disclosing that Skimo—although equipped to stand any vacillations of the thermometer—is insured the comforts of a constant temperature. Dog houses and braving the elements are not for him. He sleeps in Peggy's bedroom year-round.

NO, IT'S NOT THE PELT of a timber wolf, but only "Skimo," an Alaskan Malamute, who is left yawning by this hot weather. His heavy fur coat insulates him from the heat, says his owner, Peggy Bell (right) of 1515 W. St. James st., Arlington Heights. At left is her father, Paul Bell, owner of the Arlington Heights News agency.

Q. What is considered the best time to make a chance call?

A. Sunday afternoon or evening are considered the most popular times for this type of visit.

Water De-Salter Works

The first municipal water desalting plant has gone into operation at Coalinga, Calif.

The San Joaquin Valley town had received its drinking water for a number of years in railroad tank cars because its regular commercial supply was too salty. Separate water systems handled the two grades of water.

The new purifying plant will deliver palatable water for less than $1 per 1,000 gallons. The city formerly paid the railroad about $7.05 for 1,000 gallons.

Virginia Terrace News

Guests of Tommy, son of Peggy and Thomas McGuire, 1400 N. Yale, felt as though they were attending a circus the afternoon of his eighth birthday party, for such was the motif, from balloons on down to paper plates and such. Marty Bloom and Henry Silver were unable to attend, but Tommy Green, Glen Klopfenstein, Jeffrey Fairield, Tommy Reed, Chuck Moser, John Reinhardt and Tommy's brother, Bobby, were on hand, as well as Gary, Scott and Chris Steffens, former playmates who now live in West Northbrook. The children had cake, ice cream and punch, and played games, after which all were rewarded with a grab bag gift.

A week ago Sunday, Gene, son of Margaret and Eugene Dougherty, 1417 N. Wilke, was treated to a buncheon at the Milk Pail, Dundee, in honor of his sixth birthday. Also in on the treat were his sisters, Joanne and Kathleen. Birthday cake and ice cream were served night before at a family party.

Just back from a 2-week vacation are Helen and Virgil Marienau, 134 N. Illinois, and children, Danny, Leonard and Timothy, whose travels took them to Kearney and Omaha, Neb., and Sioux City, Iowa, where they visited most of Virgil's relatives. Virgil's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Marienau and his four brothers and their families, all of Kearney, were delighted to see everyone, but Timothy, whom none of them had seen, was the center of attraction.

PIERRETTE AND Walter Leckie, 1429 N. Chicago, and their sons, Bruce and Bryan, enjoyed a week's stay at Glen Lake, Mich., where they rented a cottage for their vacation time. They had fun swimming, sightseeing and fishing and then came home to relax for another week before Walter had to return to work.

Ephraim, Wis., was the locale for a vacation for the junior Herbert Trowe family, 124 N. Chicago, where they enjoyed their annual 2-week stay at Cris-Mar, the Trowe family summer residence. Herb was only able to spend a week there, but Hal stayed on with their children, Brad, Margaret, Martha and Barbara, and Herb's sister and her family. The weather allowed them much time for swimming, boating and hiking, with little cold weather or rain to mar a good time.

With stop-overs at Gettysburg, Pa., and Washington, D. C., where the Dean Arnold family, 1410 N. Race, enjoyed viewing the Senate and Congress in session, a tour of the White House and the U. S. Treasury. They also went on to the resort area of Virginia Beach, Va., where Ginny says it's like a combination of Florida and Atlantic City. With their educational tours over, they relaxed and did some sightseeing and swimming before heading for Ft. Wayne and Garrett, Ind., where they visited their respective mothers.

Excitement prevailed at the home of Florence and Max O'Brien, 1405 N. Race, a week ago, when their son, Denis, was rushed to Resurrection hospital, Chicago, for surgery, following an acute attack of appendicitis. He was permitted to return home Monday.

August 4 is the birthdate of Lars William, fifth child of Betty and Carl Bloom, 1345 N. Illinois, who weighed 6 pounds 11 ounces in Resurrection hospital, Chicago. Betty's mother, Mrs. Sven Dahlberg, Arlington Heights, was on hand to care for Lars' brothers, Marty and Eric, and sisters, Cheryl Lynn and Wendy Sue. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bloom, Roselle.

NEW RESIDENTS of the Terrace are Ethel and Robert Emmons, 1317 N. Race, from Chrisman, Ill., with their son, Jess, who will soon leave for college. He attends the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana. Mr. Emmons is employed by the Arlington high school, in the joint capacity of biology teacher and wrestling coach.

Another couple who varied their vacation were Jerri and Bill Rix, 1244 N. Chicago, and their children, Jill and David. The first week was spent with friends, Marilyn and Bob Sand and their three children, Itasca, on a camping trip at Be-wawhic park, Crystal Falls, Mich., where the majority of time was spent swimming. The Rixes then joined Bill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rix, Chicago, at the resort area of Lost lake, near Saynor, Wis., for a week of loafing, dining out and at the beach.

Cathy and Bill Gunnison, 1407 Clarendon, and their sons, Bobby and Scott, recently returned from a trip to Daytona Beach, Fla., by way of the Smoky Mountains. In Florida, they made several side trips, the highlights of which were Silver Springs, St. Augustine and Marineland. At home, to take care of the baby, Mark, were Cathy's parents, who were visiting for a month.

Sandy Mullins, 1415 N. Illinois, entered Oak Park hospital a week ago in preparation for major surgery. Bruce's mother is at home taking care of the children, Michael and Kevin.

A THIRD daughter was born to Jeanette and William Gaffney, 1405 N. Illinois, July 29, in Rockford. Kelly Jeanette weighed 7 pounds 9 ounces and her sisters are Cynthia and Patricia. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ted Gaffney, Rockford, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Matthews, North Caldwell, N. J.

Acting as a life guard at Boy Scout camp this year is Robert, son of Geraldine and Donald Gardner, 1302 N. Race, who also has time at Camp Napowan, Wild Rose, Wis., to enjoy the many activities there. He has recently achieved the status of an Eagle scout, for which formal ceremonies will be held in several weeks.

Ruth and John Griffith, 1326 N. Race, and children, Mike and Julie, have returned from their vacation spent at a lodge in Minocqua, Wis. Their time was spent swimming, fishing and horseback riding.

JoAnne and William Herndon, 1333 Wilke, entertained for their son, David, at an afternoon party last Saturday in honor of his fourth birthday. Enjoying ice cream, cake and games were Linda Francis, Ruth Ann and Jennifer Nordland, Ronnie Jensen, Tommy Green and former playmates, Robin and Steve Morrill, Mt. Prospect, and guests from Schiller Park and Elmhurst.

Later in the day, the Herndons entertained his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Nixon, Chicago, and aunts, uncles and cousins at a family dinner party. The highlight of David's birthday was receiving a 2-wheel bicycle.

A HOUSE GUEST for the next several weeks at the Herndons' is Miss Suzanne Henry from Silver Springs, Md. Getting acquainted with 3-month-old Wayne, birthday parties for David and other activities have kept this 16-year-old busy, but she also hopes to visit the races.

Karen, daughter of Donna and Jack Garland, 1317 N. Chicago, celebrated her sixth birthday last Thursday at an afternoon party for school friends. The children who played games and devoured birthday cake and ice cream were Linda Brown, Joan Kohler, Linda Cech, Mary Beth Martin and Linda Rogers.

Sunday Donna and Jack invited Karen's Grandfather Garland and Grandmother Anderson and aunts, uncles and cousins over to share in the birthday cake and ice cream. Also wishing Karen many happy returns were her brother, John, and sister, Debbie.

Michele, daughter of Diane and Charles Moser, 1418 N. Illinois, was 3 August 10 and her afternoon party was attended by her brothers, Chuck, Michael and Christopher, sister, Valerie, and Steve and Don Von Ebers, Stephen Balow, Marty, Cheryl and Wendy Bloom, Dennis Herrity, Janet and Beth Grassley, Gail Chodera and John and Jamie Reinhardt. The party was held outside, and the older children decorated the yard as well as supervised games of the younger children. (A

Ex-Diplomat Recalls Japanese Surrender

Fourteen years ago today, a man waited for death in Tokyo. His Crime—? He wanted peace, and he used his position with the Japanese foreign office to broadcast a thinly-veiled appeal for negotiations.

Fourteen years ago tomorrow, Kiyosue Inui's life was spared when that peace was signed on the decks of the U.S.S. Missouri. The 76-year-old Japanese ex-diplomat will be a visitor to the northwest suburbs in coming weeks.

Lee Chesley, long-time newspaperman from Prospect Heights, recalled his friend's broadcast—a message beamed to the allied leaders meeting at Potsdam.

"When Kiyosue stepped to the microphone that day in 1945, he may well have thought, 'This is the one thing for which I was created, the highpoint of my life," said Chesley this week.

THE BROADCAST was made shortly before the first of two atom bombs exploded over a Japanese city.

Inui, a former student and traveler in the United States, had been torn between his love for his homeland and his deep affection for the country in which he had spent so much of his youth.

When war broke out between the two nations in 1941, Inui chose the diplomatic service as his best opportunity to work for peace. In 1945, he saw his opportunity, and radioed a speech to the outside world that the Readers' Digest later termed "one of the most important factors leading to the surrender of Japan."

For his act Inui was sentenced to death.

NOW IN Washington, D. C., the diminutive Japanese gentleman has scheduled a return trip to the heartland of America, the Mid-West, which he toured 50 years ago as a student at the University of Michigan.

In 1909, Inui, then 26 years old, paddled down the Mississippi in a canoe "in search of America's democracy," as he has termed his trip. The democracy he found kindled a deep affection for this country.

Late this summer the distinguished visitor will relive the journey of a half-century ago with another voyage down the Father of Waters.

Chesley, who has been making arrangements for the septuagenarian's visit, plans to take Inui on a tour of the northwest suburbans "in three or four weeks." (B8

KIYOSUE INUI, 76-year-old ex-diplomat for the Japanese foreign office, who will be a visitor to the northwest suburban area in coming weeks, is remembered as the official who broadcast for peace while the war between his country and the U.S. was still being waged.

ONE OF EIGHT SEMI-FINALISTS in the Miss O'Hare Stadium contest is Eileen Sundquist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Sundquist, 1025 E. Palatine rd., Arlington Heights. Eileen is a student at Northern Illinois university and a summer employee of Ekco-Alcoa Containers, Inc., Wheeling.

Suburban Matriarch Honored By Family on Her Birthday

Ninety four candles flickered last week on the birthday cake of a suburban matriarch, one of whose daughters is Mrs. Otto Scharringhausen, 1535 S. State, Arlington Heights.

A family gathering met in conclave to pay homage to 94-year-old Mrs. Meta Berschet, in the home where she now lives with a granddaughter, Mrs. Robert Herzog, of Des Plaines.

Mrs. Berschet, born in Greiswald, Germany on Aug. 5, 1865, has lived in America since she was 18 and has been a resident of this area for the past 39 years.

A former resident of what is now O'Hare field, she has been active in farm work, working in the fields until eight years ago.

CURRENTLY, she maintains a flower and vegetable garden in Des Plaines and does a certain amount of her own housework and cooking.

She is the mother of William Jr., who lives at the same address; Walter, of Elk Grove, and Mrs. Scharringhausen, six grandchildren, Mrs. Henry Molenkamp, Mrs. Robert Herzog, Marvin Berschet, Mrs. Dave Epley, Walter Berschet Jr. and Robert Berschet.

Also, there are 11 great-grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Mary Freidel, of Chicago. A son, Arthur, died in 1953 and her husband, William, died in 1931. (A BUS OPERATOR Waldo Tinsley complained this week to school officials that seat repair was costing him over $1000 per year. Shown above is just a part of the damaged seats and seat backs which had to be replaced. He told administrators of the high school and grade schools that some students intentionally rip the seats with screw drivers, knives, pencils and other instruments.

"DOGFIGHTING" is popular with the model airplane club members. Here Larry Clore and Bill Roozee hold ribbons as Bob Sauer, Gary Yeast, and Mark Hannum ready for a tift. The dogfight is over when one plane captures the ribbon of its opponent.

New Cornerstone

The Rev. Dr. Hughes B. Morris, pastor of the First Methodist church of Arlington Heights will conduct a ceremony for the laying of the cornerstone of the new church sanctuary at 3 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 16.

This is the second phase in a building program that started three years ago. The ceremony will be held on the church grounds, members and all interested friends have been invited.

Three years ago, an 18-acre plot of ground was purchased. Upon this was to be built an educational building, and, later, a new sanctuary. The education al unit, built first, accomodated a tremendous growth in the church school from 1125 to 1635 children, young people and adults. During this three-year growth, the church membership has increased from approximately 1100 members to 1635 and has worshiped in Fellowship Hall (A

Ridge Park—Sherwood

FROM RIDGE PARK

This reporter is back from a 2-week camping trip around Lake Michigan, which accounts for no column last week. The Cryer family had such a good time they recommend camping to all who enjoy the outdoors and roughing it.

It's a girl for the Edward Elenzes, 1008 N. Ridge. Sandra Lee was born August 3 in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, weighing 8 pounds 10 ounces. She has three brothers: Danny, 10, Mark 6, and Russie, 23 months.

The menfolks in the William Broadfoot family, 936 N. Kaspar, are getting the camping bug after having spent three days camping in northern Wisconsin. Mr. Broadfoot, Tom and Jim joined two other men and their sons for the trip. It was their first experience, and from all reports it won't be their last.

Last week the Dick Bulinskis, 725 N. Kaspar, had fun at the IBM picnic at Lake Zurich. There were games, races and swimming. The Bulinskis took Dick's mother with them.

THE WELCOME mat is out to the family of Jack Williams, now living at 1021 N. Yale. Jack is no stranger to these parts, having graduated from Northwestern and working as a newsman for WBBM-CBS, Chicago. Patti hails from Chattanooga, Tenn. Two children help make up the family: John Jr., 3, and Mandy, 1½. Attention: Ridge Park bridge tournament officers - the Williams play a good game of bridge.

After a 3½-month trip to Alaska, Arlington Heights looks good to Bruce Kilbury, son of the Winston Kilburys, 1011 N. Illinois. Bruce saw just about everything to be seen up there, including a plane trip to Point Barrow on the Arctic ocean. He also did his share of hunting and fishing and bagged a 400 pound bear, which turned out to be one of the most exciting experiences of his trip. He brought back the skin and the family plans on making it into a rug.

On the spur of the moment, Mrs. Robert Chaplin, 815 N. Fernandez, flew to Pittsburgh to be matron-of-honor at the wedding of her sister, Darlene Hackard and Walter Lang at Trinity Lutheran church. Mrs. Chaplin's mother flew with her for her first airplane ride, which was quite exciting.

The Vince Cunninghams, 802 N. Harvard, chose Phillips, Wis., for a week's vacation at a cottage on the lake. Lorraine's sister and brother-in-law, the Joseph Heindls, and their son, Wayne, went with them. Besides swimming, there was golf available and even Donna and Kevin played a few games.

CHARLOTTE AND Noreen Ronayne, 1011 N. Kennicott, are home after spending a week with Charlotte's parents at a cottage near Brainerd, Minn. It was the same spot Charlotte and her brother went to when they were children.

The Ralph Elsners, 819 N. Kaspar, are back from Delavan, Wis., where they stayed at Assembly park for a week. It was an ideal vacation for the children, with plenty of swimming. They also visited Mr. Elsner's brother there.

Norma and Al Snap, 1012 N. Kaspar, went to Door county camping--it is cherry season there and they came home with a good supply. They camped at Nicolet bay in Peninsula State park, where young Steve had fun in the water.

Mrs. Catherine Megary, who makes her home with her daughter and her family, the Joseph Dunnes, 1016 N. Ill isg,hsneao back to Philadelphia for a month of visiting with friends and relatives.

June Hetzel and Kathleen Dunne are working hard these days as co-chairmen of the Holiday Shop bazaar to be given this fall by the St. James Women's guild.

THE BOB READS, 1019 N. Kennicott, packed a lot in their 2-week vacation back east. They camped in Maine, Vermont, Rhode Island and New York and visited relatives in Maine and Massachusetts. Sailing and swimming in Narraganset bay appealed to Charlie and Pris, but a visit to the seaport of Old Mystik, Conn., proved fascinating to them all. This is a restored whaling town, complete with a whaling ship, the last wooden one in existence. They had lunch at Durgin park in Boston and even included two clambakes in their busy schedule.

There is great rejoicing at the Philip Rosheger home, 807 N. Kennicott. Patti Marie was born August 8 in Resurrection hospital, Chicago, weighing 6 pounds 1 ounce. She has a sister, Pam, 3. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Mario LaPlaca and the senior Philip Roshegers, all of Chicago.

The Douglas Jenkins, 808 N. Patton, are looking forward to a weekend visit from her cousin and family, Ginny and Billy Phillips and their two children. The Phillips are going to spend a few days here enroute from Akron, Ohio to a new home in Georgia.

The Vernon Jensens, 935 N. Kaspar, announce the birth of their fourth child and second Julie Kay, August 7 in Evanston hospital, weighing 8 pounds 4 ounces Bobby, Jeff and Lynn are her brothers and sister. Grandparents are Rev. and Mrs. James Love of Madison, Wis. and Mrs. Anton Jensen of Neenah, Wis.

After a 3-week camping trip to the east coast, the Bill Warrens, 817 N. Harvard, are even more sold on camping. They camped in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, coming down the coast to Boston before heading for home. They found lots of things to do at Bar Harbor, Maine, Cape Cod and even went through the Sandwich Glass Works and museum at Sandwich, Mass. They visited a school friend of Millie's in Boston, then headed for Grand Rapids, Mich., for her parents' golden wedding anniversary celebration. They brought her parents back here with them and they stayed for a week before returning home.

FROM SHERWOOD

The junior Lloyd Bemises, 1345 N. Yale, have a new son, Lloyd Bemis III, born July 15 in Wesley Memorial hospital, Chicago. His brothers are Greg and Jim.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Moody of Houston were guests of the W. L. Johnsons, 1308 Watling, last week.

There was a linen shower Tuesday afternoon for Jane Holloway, daughter of the Wayne Holloways, 1004 Oakton. A group of neighbors gathered at the home of the Jack Burgesses, 1218 W. Clarendon, where Mrs. James Wood acted as co-hostess. They chose pink, white and silver as their color scheme and Mrs. Wood had cleverly decorated a chest (hope chest) in which the gifts were placed.

The Robert Fernstroms, 1219 Watling, are still glowing from their wonderful five weeks in Europe. They sailed on the French liner Liberte, arriving in France, where they purchased a car to tour France, Germany, Holland, Denmark, Sweden and Norway. They stayed a few days in Paris, but preferred Copenhagen or Stockholm.

A week was spent with relatives in Norway; in fact, Mrs. Fernstrom's mother is still visiting there. They regretted that after flying to London from Sweden they had only 2½ days of sightseeing before they flew home. As proof of a wonderful trip, Mrs. Fernstrom wore out two new pairs of shoes, finishing them off completely on a busy tour of London and the surrounding countryside which they enjoyed tremendously.

THERE WAS REASON to crow a bit at the John O. Millers, 1221 Clarendon. Molly was chosen to go to Colorado Springs, Colo., recently, for the Girl Scouts International Roundup for two weeks. Molly found talking to girls from other countries most interesting and she was quite impressed that they spoke English so well. Right on the heels of that wonderful experience, she arrived home in time to go on a 2-week vacation with her family to Egg Harbor in Door County, Wis. They stayed at a cottage close enough to the water to get their fill of swimming and fishing.

The Thomas J. Polaceks, 1220 N. Harvard, enjoyed their week's vacation at Sturgeon Bay so much that they stayed till the 11th hour. Their new boat accounted for that and they found it lots of fun taking it up to Egg Harbor to visit the John Millers. Karen did a bit of water skiing there and they even had a sailboat at their disposal for awhile.

Sunday the Donald Kiehls, 732 N. Kasper, attended his mother's family reunion. Thirty-five of the Gehrkes gathered at Deer Grove for a picnic.

THE JOE Heinzes, 906 N. Patton, spent three days of last week at the Wagon Wheel in Rockton, where they golfed, and swam. This weekend they are looking forward to a dinner party in their home for the Charles Cassidys of Arlington Heights and the Charles Walshes of Wheeling.

Arlington Pioneers Organize First Church, Open School

by PHILIP NELSON

(It was all a man had strength for in those early pioneer days of Dunton, now called Arlington Heights, to put in a full day of work. But the noble inspiration of these early settlers soon resolved upon two steps — an organized church and organized schooling for their youngsters. To the purpose of the first step, the origin of the Methodist and Lutheran churches was described in the last installment of "The Prairie That Bloomed." This week, the author will continue with a description of the founding of the Presbyterian church in the village and the birth of the village's first school.)

Almost everywhere in the crude beginnings of Dunton, the figure of William H. Dunton can be found flitting across the scene to lend a helping hand.

So it was with the church, for which the Yankee farmers hungered to make their lives more spiritually complete. At a meeting on Sept. 28, 1855 in Dunton's barn at the corner of State road and Northwest highway, officers were elected for the First Presbyterian society of Dunton.

William Scoville was named chairman, Dunton, secretary. Dunton and E. A. Allen became trustees, whose duty it was to solicit subscriptions for funds to build a church.

Four months later, on January 5, 1856, the society met again, this time to give the go-ahead for trustees to plan and contract for construction of a church building. On March 20, 1856, they approved a plan by Wright, Harper and Wright to construct a church.

COST OF THE 32 by 48 foot building was $2300, and both the lumber and land were thrown in free—by Dunton.

A loan of $500 was made from the Church Erection Fund of the Presbyterian church in Chicago and either pledges or receipts were rapidly increasing.

A year after the society was organized, on September 24, 1856, a committee from Chicago organized the church, members of which included: E. A. Allen, Mrs. Lydia Allen, Mrs. Eden Baker, Mrs. Narcesses Field, William Scoville, Mrs. Lucinda Scoville, of Elk Grove Congregational, Asa Dunton, of Presbyterian church, Oswego, N.Y., (father of William).

Mrs. Aurelia Dunton of First Congregational, Norwich, Vt., John Peter, Mrs. Margaret Peter, of Reform Dutch church, Thorn Grove, Ill., J. V. Downs, Lake Congregational, John Mrs. Elizabeth P. Downs, Crystal Fleming, Mrs. Matilda Fleming, Mrs. Margaret A. Lewis, William Wallace, Mrs. Philelia Tayler, I. C. Dumser and William Dunton.

Elders named were Asa Dunton and John V. Downs, and the Rev. D. H. Kingsley, of Elk Grove Congregational, became the first pastor.

LETTERS FROM churches in New England, from England, from Sweden were presented by the early members. In 1857, Downs was named first delegate to a meeting of the Presbytery in Chicago.

And in 1868, permission was given to purchase a communion service.

Many of the members remained only long enough to make plans for homesteads west and north of Illinois, and there were many changes of pastors.

Calvin Clark served as the church's spiritual leader during 1860, and was followed in turn by by C. F. Beach, 1860-62; T. S. Hubbard, 1862-64; N. Barrett, 1864-1873; J. R. Sutherland, 1873-74; G. D. Marsh, 1874-76, and W. M. Bartholomew, 1876-84.

Until the church was built, members met and held services in the Rand store, with the first prayer meeting conducted by the Rev. Kingsley, Asa Dunton and Mrs. Esther Miner. The first Sunday school was organized by Mrs. Lydia Allen. The Rev. Kingsley and his family occupied the first parsonage, built at a cost of $800 with funds raised by the Ladies Aid society at the southeast corner of Vail and St. James streets in 1858.

RELIGION HAD A firm foothold in the soil of Arlington Heights, with the Yanks of English and Scottish ancestry now having their own house of worship. Many of these had been Congregationalists.

Methodists, too, had become firmly entrenched, and the early German immigrants, who were to add so richly to the texture of the village history, brought to the religious fabric a Lutheran church for both those who could not as yet speak anything but their native tongue and for the others who had mastered English.

Nor were the children to be neglected by the hardy pioneers.

The first school building was a schoolhouse 16 feet square, built in 1849. It was constructed of rough boards, which made up its bare walls.

Against the bare walls were wooden benches, and an account by Theodore Militzer describes the little schoolhouse as having a wood-burning stove in the center, and the schoolmistress, Miss Sarah Thurston, acting in the double capacity of teacher and janitress.

Pupils, he said, took turns supplying heat and water and in keeping the rough floor as free from dirt as possible.

WHAT DID they learn? Reading and writing and spelling and arithmetic and "the penmanship was none too good," reports Militzer, who went on to describe the Cook county report of illiteracy in 1850.

Of the 43,385 living in the county then only 5,257 attended school, including 3,702 American-born and 1,552 foreign-born.

Among the illiterate were 302 white males, 379 white females, 47 colored males and 34 colored females for a total illiterate population of 7620.

The increasing demand for schooling led in 1856 to the establishment of a two-room building with two teachers to instruct their charges, an almost luxurious provision for these hardworking pioneers.

Dunton was growing. For the young, schooling was available, perhaps somewhat more crudely than we know how to administer it today.

AND SPIRITUALLY the entire Dunton population was participating in services, as churches sprang up.

Society grows as an entity, with the whole being equal to the sum of its parts. Parallel with the growth of school and church was the development of other social important aspects of the booming village.

(In the next installment of "The Prairie That Bloomed," the author will trace development of the village government, its police and fire departments). (B8

Newspapers Defined By New Legislation

by REP. J. W. CARROLL

One of our most progressive states (Illinois, of course!) has been among the weakest from the standpoint of laws dealing with newspapers.

Actually, there was no clear-cut legal definition of a newspaper, or its requirements and obligations in the publication of legal notices.

But today, thanks to a hard-working group of lawyers on the judiciary committee of the Legislature in Springfield, we have a brand new set of rules and regulations to guide publishers, citizens and public officials.

At the request of the Illinois Press association, a series of bills was introduced early in the last session by three of us — Reps. Simon, Troy; C. A. Walker, Forest Park, and myself.

As the chief sponsor of the legislation, I had to get an early search to be done since much of the law on the question was found to be in conflict.

EVEN THE courts came up with vastly different interpretation of the statutes, with the result that public officials, in trying to legally and properly place legal notices for bond issues and other matters that dealt with public funds, found themselves in hot water through taxpayers' suits, etc.

In some communities in Illinois, it was not too difficult for a person to get out a hand-bill and call it a newspaper.

Because he was of the "right" political party, his handbill could qualify within six months as the "official" newspaper of the county, to handle all legal notices. It led to much confusion — and feuding. There were many legal ramifications.

Now, all that has been changed, for the new law has gone into effect with the signing of the legislation by Gov. Stratton.

NOW TO qualify to handle legal notices a newspaper must publish 50 consecutive weeks a year. Previously, the period was six months.

What is a newspaper?

The new law says:

"Whenever it is required by law that any legal notice or publication shall be published in a newspaper in this State, it shall be held to mean a newspaper that consists of not less than four pages of printed matter and contain at least 130 square inches of printed matter per page.

It must be printed through the use of one of the conventional and generally recognized printing processes such as letterpress, lithography or gravure.

It must annually average at least 1,000 column inches of news issue or annually average at 1,000 columns of inches of news content per issue.

THE NEW ACT, in defining "news content" says:

"For the purpose of the Act the term 'news content' means any printed matter other than advertising; miscellaneous reading matter, legal or other announcements and notices, and news and information concerning current happenings and passing events of a political, social, religious, commercial, financial or legal nature."

Revisions also were made with relation to libel suits and publication of personal property tax delinquencies.

Previously, suits for libel, slander and others dealing with the invasion of a citizen's private rights could be filed within two years of the commencement of the cause of action.

Under the new law, such suits must be started within one year, or run afoul of the statute of limitations.

Heretofore, the law required personal property delinquent taxes to be printed in the county of their origin.

THE LAW HAS been changed to read that they must be published in the county of their origin.

We haveanumberofnes ——

We have a number of newspapers, long established in a county which are printed by presses in areas outside of their county because adequate equipment may not be available in their area.

It was felt that the old law was unfair to such reputable newspapers, and so the word "published" was substituted for "printed."

Increased Demands Face Cancer Group

The Northwest Suburban branch of the American Cancer Society is preparing for an increased demand upon its service during the coming year.

Two hours were spent at a budget meeting held at the Howard Baumann residence in Mt. Prospect, August 4. The budget was increased to $10,385, made necessary by the increased population and the expected opening of two new hospitals.

The facilities of the Northwest branch were taxed during the last few months. Today the lay service is providing beds for 14 cancer patients in addition to dressings, transportation of patients and other services.

THE OPERATION of the branch the coming year will need more volunteers to help supply dressings, and to provide transportation which makes possible patient's trips to county hospital clinics.

Included in the Northwest Suburban chapter are Arlington Heights, Barrington, Des Plaines, Elk Grove, Hoffman Estates, Mt. Prospect, Niles, Orchard Place, Palatine, Park Ridge, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg and Wheeling.

Its purpose is to save lives from cancer, to educate the public concerning the symptoms; to aid, voluntarily, in cooperation with accredited physicians, cancer patients in securing diagnosis and treatment; and to carry on any activities which may contribute toward the control of cancer.

Millions for cancer research are being given by philanthropically-minded persons and fund foundations. The northwest area met its quota this year when over $30,000 was pledged.

Eugene DiBlase, Niles, will be chairman of the 1960 financial drive to be held in April. (B8

Man Hurt In Collision Of Two Cars

A Mt. Prospect man was seriously injured and an Arlington Heights couple were shaken up in an automobile accident at the corner of Sigwalt and State Friday night.

Capt. John D. Stringer, 29, of 704 N. Main, Mt. Prospect received lacerations to his scalp and face and suffered a possible concussion when his automobile smashed into the rear of a vehicle driven by Kenneth W. Kennedy, 58, of 511 S. Pine, Arlington Heights.

Kennedy told police that he was stopped on State waiting to make a left turn onto Sigwalt when he saw a "red vehicle" approaching from the rear. Sensing a collision, Kennedy braced himself against the steering wheel, which was bent forward by the force of the crash.

Mrs. Kennedy reported that her glasses and hairpins were jarred from her head and were found in the back seat. She suffered a neck injury.

Stringer, who was issued a ticket for driving too fast for conditions, was rushed to Glenview Naval hospital. (ACM

Just for Fun

Lifeguard Is a Villain

by JOEL CARTER

How do you sleep? Do you hear whistles throughout the night? Are you reprimanded for taking a few fast strides? Are you stared down upon by a stern character with a white crown on his head and an ornament around his neck?

Undoubtedly some of the water-logged youngsters who inhabit the park district pools have such nightmares. They are haunted all day by the villain in shining armor, the lifeguard. To the child-swimmer, when the lifeguard takes his stand he is on his throne with a white sun helmet for his crown and a whistle for his sword.

To the young child, the lifeguard ranks along with the fireman and the policeman as a hero of the first order. But to the older folks and to the lifeguard himself it is a job with great responsibility at which he can never relax, no matter how monotonous it becomes.

A GOOD lifeguard must have the realization that his job is protecting lives and that his work is not measured by what he does but by what he prevents. Lifeguards must anticipate accidents and prevent them from occurring by enforcing strict safety rules and it is on these disciplinary occasions that their shining armor gets a few dents in childhood eyes.

To become a lifeguard a candidate must be an expert swimmer and be trained by the Red Cross in advanced techniques of rescue. Fortunately this training is rarely used here because of the safety rules and on account of the Red Cross learn-to-swim program, in which many local children have learned to handle themselves in the water.

According to Bob Mors, the head guard at Recreation Pool, the most important qualifications of a lifeguard are alertness, punctuality, and love for other people. He must have clean habits and strength of character enough to be ready to put another person's life before his own. He must also have confidence and self-control to meet any aquatic emergency.

SO SWIMMERS, be thankful for that shrill whistle. Be of good humor when he reprimands you for running on a wet deck or jumping across pool corners. Chuckle when you see the stern face of Big Brother the lifeguard scowling at you for a little "innocent" horseplay. These are the jobs of our lifeguards.

The water ballet which local residents enjoyed last weekend will be seen Saturday in an abbreviated version at the Tam O'Shanter Country Club. The Symphonettes, a club of the ballet's performers, presents several private shows each year. ...ms a shame to close the beautiful show after only two appearances when the girls have worked so hard all summer preparing it so the club de... ...e arranged and people in different parts of Chicagoland are able to see one of the nicest features of our recreation program.

The clubs pay the troupe's expenses so there is no cost to the taxpayers. In this way the thrill of performance is given the aqua belles a few more times.

Wisdom is the ability to judge the facts and do the right thing at the proper time. To delay gives an attacking germ or virus the opportunity to multiply and ravage your body.

Gas Station Fight Lands In Courts

Another fight over a proposed gas station has landed in the courts.

This time suit has been filed to upset the County Board's refusal to rezone an acre tract at the southwest corner of Arlington Heights and Biesterfield rds., Elk Grove township, for a gas station.

CONSTRUCTION of a filling station on the property would constitute "spot zoning," the commissioners said. Land in the area is zoned for residential and farming uses. The corner tract is classified as a farming district.

The suit, filed in Circuit court by Bernhard Von Bergen and his wife, Esther, seeks to void the zoning. The parcel has a frontage of 200 feet on each road. (ACM

Texas' quarter horse population of 30,664 and 77 annual shows is the largest representation. California, second, has 13,047 animals and 25 shows. Oklahoma is third with 8,490 quarter horses and 23 shows.

The new science of automation can do many things. But machines are no substitute for the human touch. The kind of thoughtfulness of the many folks on our staff is irreplacable.

Sunday a bridal shower was given by Mrs. Ken Reed for her sister-in-law, Phyllis Reed. Thirty-five guests helped make it a successful party. A buffet supper was served.

AN ORIENTAL PARTY was given by Mr. and Mrs. William Sevilla Saturday night. Eleven couples danced and sang, celebrating Bill's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marchetti were surprised by 50 people Saturday night with a belated house warming party.

An Eastern Star picnic was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde House Sunday. Mrs. Theresa House was hostess to 60 guests for dinner, supper and an afternoon of cards. (AM

University Prof Takes New Position

PAT RANDLE

W. L. (Pat) Randle, supervisor of Southern Illinois university's booming adult education program for the past three years, has resigned to accept a position at Arlington high school. He came to SIU in 1945.

Randle's resignation will be effective August 3. He will assume his duties as Vocational Guidance Counselor for the suburban Chicago school beginning August 31.

Since 1956, when Randle took over as supervisor of SIU's noncredit night classes for adults throughout the region, enrollment has tripled from 3,400 to nearly 10,000. He estimates he has traveled from 75,000 to 100,000 miles, organizing classes from Cairo to Pittsfield, which is 200 miles from home base. In addition, Randle has served as secretary of the Southern Illinois Civil Defense association, assistant director of the SIU Civil Defense committee and, for the past dozen years, Jackson County First Aid chairman for the Red Cross. In that capacity he taught first aid courses throughout southern Illinois.

AFTER COMING to SIU (where he received bachelors and masters degrees in education), Randle served until 1951 as a job counselor on loan to the Veteran's Administration. He joined the newly-formed division of technical and adult education in 1951 and was named student counselor when the Vocational-Technical institute day program got underway in 1952.

A Centralia native, Randle is married and the father of two sons, Richard and Scott.

Schedule Suburban Hearings on Zoning

Public hearings will be held in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships by the zoning board of appeals to discuss the Cook county proposed comprehensive amendment to the zoning ordinance.

Previous to these hearings, held in townships having unincorporated lands, villagers will have an opportunity to study both text and maps of the proposed amendments by visiting the office of the rezoning committee, Room 1712, 130 N. Wells, Chicago, in the office of the County Clerk on the fifth floor of the county building or in the office of the Zoning Board of Appeals in Room 1619, 130 N. Wells.

Earlier meetings have been held in the assembly room of the board of commisioners in the County building.

On Thursday, Sept. 3, at 2:30 p.m., residents of Elk Grove township will take part in a public hearing in Mt. Prospect village hall.

Public hearings will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 8 in the Arlington Heights village hall for residents of Wheeling township.

FOR RESIDENTS of Palatine township, there will be a public hearing at 2 p.m. on the same date in the Palatine village hall.

And on Wednesday, Sept. 9, at 4 p.m., residents of Schaumburg township will attend the public hearing in the Blackhawk school.

Members of the zoning board of appeals, including Andrew J. Dallstream, chairman, and Robert S. Hunt, Russell B. James, Walter T. Popjoy and Richard L. Weldon, stated:

"All persons interested should attend these hearings and will be given an opportunity to be heard." (B8

Open Sales Room For Sports Cars

If you're "35-years-old, married, and make about $15,000 a year, then you're the average sports car driver—the man for whom driving can be fun again instead of a chore."

These are the words of Harvey Bender, Barrington, who recently opened the Bender-Rieger sports car sales room in Mt. Prospect.

Bender carries the British Motor corporation line of sports and economy cars. These include the Austin, Austin-Healy, Magnette, Riley, M.G., and Morris.

THE GRAND OPENING will be in fall, when the new line of cars comes out.

Price of "fun driving?" Between $2,000 and $3,000.

Bender said service and parts will be arranged so drivers won't have to go to his Barrington show room.

The Mt. Prospect sales room is geared to take care of an expanding market, Bender said.

"Sports car use in this country has risen in the last 10 years from 3,000 to close to one-half million a year," he added. The greatest growth, however, has been in the past three years. (B8

Over 10 per cent more suburban Cook county residents have been X-rayed in the 1959 summer survey for unknown TB cases than were X-rayed last year. More than 48,400 persons were X-rayed from June 1 through July 24 this year.

The survey will continue through October 2. It is sponsored in Cook county by The Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook county, the Christmas Seal organization and The Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitarium District.

In the 1958 survey of suburban Cook county 28 per cent of the new, active cases of tuberculosis reported were discovered in the chest X-ray program of The Institute and the SCCTSD. (B8

Homeowners Warned of Phony Furnace Repair Solicitors

Arlington homeowners were warned this week by Herb Kieskowski, president of the chamber of commerce to be on guard against the furnace repair racket. Unless mindful of the deceitful tricks used by furnace repair gyps who solicit jobs during the heating off-season, Kieskowski stated, even otherwise cautious homeowners may be swindled by one of the most vicious and costly schemes of the day.

The text of Kieskowski's warning follows:

"Despite frequet exposure, the furnace repair scheme continues to mulct homeowners all over the nation. So cleverly is this scheme worked that many of its victims do not even know that they have been swindled. It is imperative that homeowners be on constant guard against this despicable scheme during this period of the year when furnaces normally are cleaned and serviced."

"Actually, this scheme can easily be identified by an alert homeowner. Here is how it usually is worked. —A man may ring the door bell and say is he a furnace 'inspector' and ask access to the basement. If given permission, he generally makes a cursory inspection and reports that he will have an 'engineer' call to look at it. Whn the 'engineer' calls, he dismantles the furnace, in part, and then calls the housewife. He alleges that the furnace is cracked, or in such terrible condition as to endanger life and limb if used again. After thoroughly scaring the housewife, he uses high pressure selling to induce her to sign a contract for a new - and frequently over-priced installation."

"SOMETIMES, THE scheme may start with a salesman soliciting a furnace cleaning job. He may call in an 'engineer' who will use the tear-down-and-scare 'em technique." On occasion, the salesman may employ this technique himself.

"If anyone attempts to use this technique on you, beware! If any official inspector calls at your home, he will be glad to show his credentials. If the person posing as an inspector has to admit he represents a furnace concern, report the incident to the Chamber at once. Should a salesman gain access to your furnace and later bring in an 'engineer' who takes your furnace apart and then attempts to frighten you into signing a contract, again beware."

"Of course, furnaces eventually wear out and need replacing. However, reputable heating contractors do not go around falsely posing as 'inspectors,' nor do they dismantle furnaces without permission. In addition, reputable heating contractors do not attempt to frighten people into buying their equipment."

"If your furnace equipment has been operating satisfactorily, don't let anyone scare you into signing a contract for a new furnace. Seek verification of the true condition of your furnace from an independent heating engineer."

"Homeowners can avoid the furnace repair scheme by having their servicing work done by a concern of known reliability. If in doubt, consult the Chamber of Commerce." (A

Can door-to-door salesmen prescribe?

We mean prescribe medications for your health. Of course not. Only physicians are professionally qualified to do this. And only registered pharmacists are professionally qualified to dispense these prescriptions for your use. These are facts of law and medical ethics—designed for the protection of your health. So before you buy any vitamins or other medicinal preparations from a door-to-door salesman, ask him to wait while you call your physician or your pharmacist. He probably won't.

Schaller Heads Impressive Tennis Program in Arlington

Sport Gains Popularity In Suburban Communities

by BOB FRISK

Anyone for tennis?

A few years ago that question served as a standing joke in this area among people unfamiliar with the sport.

Today tennis has definitely earned its place as one of the most popular sports in these growing suburban communities.

Why the increased popularity? What has changed Arlington Heights, for instance, from a suburb relatively unaware of the tremendous appeal of tennis into what could be called one of the state's current "hot-beds" of young net talent.

THE MAN behind this "birth" of tennis in Arlington is a personable coach at Arlington high school, Ken Schaller. With an A. B. degree from Washington in St. Louis and a Master's from the University of Wisconsin, Schaller has been the leader in the building of a net program which has few rivals in Illinois.

Even Hinsdale, generally regarded as the state's most prominent prep net center, failed to match the size of Arlington's 1959 summer program which just terminated last week.

When Schaller took over as varsity tennis coach at Arlington in 1952, he had to start almost from scratch. Although the school did field a team, it had failed to turn in a winning record and the interest was lagging.

BUT SCHALLER was aware of the hardships which can arise concerning a sport which is unfamiliar to many people. He had started playing tennis when he was about eleven, but as he lived in a small town, there weren't any adequate facilities. "A boy from college taught me many of the fundamentals," Schaller said, "and we built a dirt court so we could play more often."

As the high school didn't field a tennis team, Schaller had to play on his own and his determination paid off in two trips to the Illinois state tennis finals.

When he came to Arlington, he had to start the long process of building up interest in the game. As Schaller commented, "Unless people know about tennis, it's considered a sissy sport. It has that stigma to overcome. A few wrestlers came out for the sport in my first years at Arlington, and this helped take out some of the sissy sting."

THE BUILDING of an acceptable tennis program has been an arduous process, but Schaller's patience is being rewarded. In the past two years Arlington high varsity teams have won 30 of 42 matches, and last spring the combo of Jim Erickson and Bob Inman placed second in state doubles. Erickson and Inman copped the junior division of River Forest doubles play last week, and Keith Butterfield, a Schaller product before moving, won the Minnesota prep singles title this year.

In considering the future of Arlington tennis, Schaller again stressed that the building of strong teams takes many years. "Right now in Arlington we have several good young players and if they improve as expected and come out in high school, we should have some exceptionally strong teams. We beat Hinsdale's tennis club in two meets this summer which should be indicative of the future.

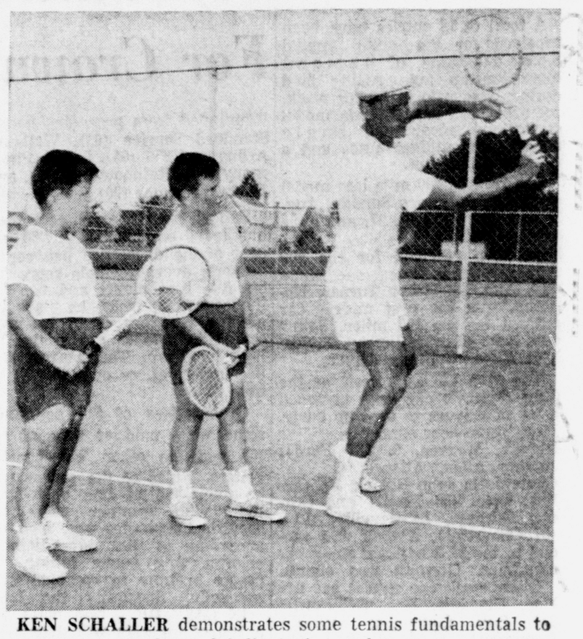
"MORE PEOPLE are becoming acquainted with tennis, and it is excellent for helping other sports, particularly basketball. Five of the top six young players in the country this year are out for basketball in high school."

And so the tennis story in Arlington Heights has taken on a "new look" under the guidance of Ken Schaller and with the support of the high school and park district.

"Tennis is a sport which takes a lot of persistence," Schaller inserted in summing up. "You have to be someone who is willing to practice. But I'm convinced that if a player stays with the game for about a year and a half, he will stick with it for many more years. Tennis sells itself!"



KEN SCHALLER demonstrates some tennis fundamentals to two young members of Arlington's popular summer program. Left to right are Bill Von Boeckmann, 9, and his brother Bob, 12.

Tenth Annual Paddock Golf Tournament Sunday

Rollie Franzen on Skeet Team for Pan-Am Games

Arlington Man Qualifies In Virginia Beach Trials

by BOB FRISK

Arlington Heights will be represented in the forthcoming Pan-American Games.

Rollie Franzen of 819 So. Beverly qualified for the United States Skeet team in the trials held Sunday and Monday at Virginia Beach.

Joining three men on the U. S. squad with two others shooting as individuals, Franzen will participate in a preliminary shoot Sept. 3-4 with the Pan-Am finals Sept. 5-6. Both events will be held at the Lincoln Park Gun Club.

Although the United States will probably be favored in the Pan-Am shoot, several of the South American countries do field good teams and a tight battle is expected.

Franzen, who is married and has two children, has lived in Arlington since 1941. He obtained his undergraduate degree from the University of Iowa and law degree from Northwestern and he practices at 102 So. State road. His father is president of the Arlington Heights National Bank.

ROLLIE HAS been shooting skeet competitively for five years, but this is the first time he has entered international shooting.

The International Rules for skeet which will be followed in the Pan-Am games differ from the American setup. For example, the stock of the gun must be touching the body at hip level or below in International shooting while it may be mounted to the shoulder in American rules.

Franzen, however, does his shooting normally according to International rules with the gun at hip level.

"MY DAD STARTED me in hunting," he explained, "and this led to the skeet shooting. We both do some shooting in the winter skeet leagues."

Rollie has shot with the famous Carola Mandel at the Lincoln Park club. She is the national champion for women who is no longer shooting under American rules but doing well in Europe. However, she has been bothered recently by a shoulder injury.

The Pan-Am shoot will be a 200 target event with 100 each day. The men will not shoot simultaneously as a team but will be teamed with members of the other competing units. They will shoot over the lake with the wind definitely expected to be an important factor.

"IN ALL probability," Franzen inserted, "the winning score for the 200 targets will not exceed 198. In the qualifying at Virginia Beach, the best score was 297 of 300 with the lowest 289 among the team members."

Skeet shooting has gained in popularity since the war. There are sites at Lincoln Park, Hilldale on Route 72, Northbrook Gun club, and at Chicagoland on North ave.

In addition, there are winter leagues so the shooting is handled the entire year. Rollie has been shooting in the winter league at Rolling Green the past two years.

A small clay target has become a familiar sight to skeet enthusiasts for many years now. As Franzen summed it up: "They're not hard to break, but they're pretty easy to miss!"

Berwyn Loses In Final, 10-6

Murphysboro captured the Illinois state legion baseball championship with a 14 inning, 10-6 triumph over Berwyn.

The victory was Murphysboro's nineteenth straight of the summer campaign and sent the club into the sectional at Princeton, Ind.

Berwyn had eliminated Litchfield 2-0 Sunday on a three-hitter by Bob Peters and a two-run seventh inning single by Arnie Vesely.

KICKIN' IT AROUND

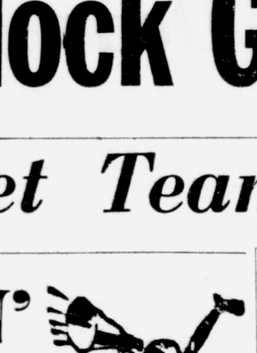
By BOB FRISK

JOHNNY UNITAS, Al Ameche, Lenny Moore and company are fourteen points better than the College All-Stars!

With that in mind, let's make our annual prediction for the Soldier Field spectacle tomorrow night: Baltimore 31, College All-Stars 17.

We hope we're wrong.

Now that we've accomplished that little chore, let's transgress along this same football line. We're looking forward to those crisp Friday evenings and Saturday afternoons of football, and tomorrow's contest officially kicks off the 1959 campaign.



LEN ROHDE

In pro ranks, talk has it that it'll be Los Angeles and Cleveland in the playoff. What about the top college team in the country? Mississippi has been getting the nod but Northwestern may take over. In the West Suburban Arlington has a good chance for a loop title while in the Interim, Proviso West is expected to rule the roost. But we'd like to see Prospect do something about that.

Insofar as individual talent, the talk of this area revolves around a Palatine boy who is tagged for possible All-America honors in college. At 6-4, 225 pounds, Len Rohde of Utah State is considered a definite prospect for the post-season honor teams. An All-Skyline tackle last fall, Rohde is a spearhead in the Agies' variable T-formation. A former Illinois state wrestling champion at Palatine, Rohde was coached by Chuck Feutz in prep football.

Hinsdale has a boy who is expected to stand out in the Ivy League. Dick Winkler was the top Eli scorer as a junior with 32 points and he picked up 319 yards in 107 carries. Winkler is the most talented Yale halfback but a soph, Dick Wisner from Palatine, may see some action.

For what it's worth dept.: Winnipeg is pegged to rule Canadian football and the big reason is an Evanston, Ill. boy, Jim Van Pelt. Van Pelt was brilliant as a frosh quarterback for the Blue Bombers.

That, briefly, is the football picture for the moment. We'll elaborate at a later date.

WE HEARD SOME interesting golf stories recently and with the Paddock tourney just around the corner (Sunday to be exact), this seems like the appropriate time to pass them along.

Dave White's round at the Winchester country club started fine, but he blew up on the fifth hole and took a 13. Then the Massachusetts pro settled down with vengeance. He shot ten straight birdies to par the course with a 72.

Then there's the time a fivesome teed off at the Itasca country club and playing on a par three hole, turned in scores of 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5.

The first contest for distance driving was held at Pinehurst, North Carolina in 1906. The winning "blast" carried 180 yards, 6 inches. Twenty-seven years later Craig Wood blasted one 430 yards with no wind or downhill roll. Times do change!

Six Turnesa brothers were professional golfers. The seventh, Willie, didn't want to be a pro but he took the U. S. Amateur title in 1938 and the British Amateur in '47.

Lawson Little once shot a 62. Now that doesn't sound too unlikely until you consider that he recorded his round in a driving snowstorm over a 6,500 yard course.

Bobby Jones was a tremendous putter but he outdid himself on a green at St. Andrews, Scotland. Mr. Jones dropped a 120-footer.

That's it for this week!

Grace Urges Early Action

Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today!

Athletic Director H.W. Grace urges all Arlington high school athletes, including incoming freshmen, to get their physicals as soon as possible.

The athlete should mail the physical to School Health Services, Arlington high school, Arlington Heights, Ill.

Athletic registrations will be from Aug. 24-29 in Mr. Grace's office from 9-12 noon.

Before registering for athletics the student should register for school at which time he will pay the insurance fee. The fees are as follows: football—$9.75; cross country—$2.85; towel fee—$1. These are payable to Grace when registering.

No student will be registered by the Athletic Director unless he has met three requirements: (1) registred for school, paid insurance fees; (2) physical is in hands of school nurse; (3) parents card signed.

The Kouzmanoff Story

Arlington Man Termed Dean of Prep Writers

This is the first in a series of four articles concerning the life and times of one of the northwest suburbs' leading sports personalities, Tommy Kouzmanoff. Today's story is about Tommy and his profession as a sports writer. Next Thursday will recall his days as a semi-pro pitcher. The August 27 article recalls Tommy's days on Bensenville's first football team. The final story on September 3 concerns Tommy as one of the state's leading athletic officials.

by BOB BUCHANAN

One day in the early forties, shortly before Pearl Harbor, one of Chicago's better known jewelry buyers gingerly asked his close friend and confident, a suburban weekly editor, a question which has been brewing in his mind for years.

"Stuart," the young father bluntly said, "do you think I have it to make the grade as a sports writer?"

The weekly editor, Stuart Paddock, replied confidently, "I'm sure you do Tommy."

STUART, WHO IN the early '40's had 40 years of newspapering under his belt, stood on sure ground. The editor had seen Tommy write sports on and off for his paper for 14 years.

Tommy recalls with ease how he'd type at home—38 S. Mitchell in the Heights—with one hand on the keys and the other arm holding his eldest son, Jimmy, now 19. Filling the sports pages at Paddock's in the late '30's netted the Kouzmanoff family two dollars a week.

Asked if this was his main line of work, Tommy replied, "Heavens, no! When I left to join the sports writing ranks I had seven years experience as a ring buyer for one of Chicago's leading loop jewelers."

KOUZMANOFF WASN'T sure of himself when he asked Stuart the burning question. Tommy realized he'd never been to college though he had two years of business school, including typing, behind him. He did have 14 years experience.

Placing ads in trade magazines netted Tommy his first full-time sports writing job with the Springfield (Ohio) Daily News. That was 1942. Two weeks later he no longer was a writer. He was sports editor. The previous editor had been hastily inducted into Uncle Sam's army.

Tommy was in a tizzy. Two weeks after he joined the sports biz, he found himself deluged with writing headlines, editing copy, and making up the sports pages. Tommy learned hard and Tommy learned fast. He had to. He was on his own.

BEFORE TOMMY left Chicago, he asked a good friend, Howie Roberts, now baseball writer for the Chicago Daily News, to keep his eyes open for any jobs in the Windy City.

Six months elapsed before Tommy got the word that Sports Editor Leo Fischer was looking for a writer for his Herald-American. Tommy called Leo and the old story, "It's wartime and who knows. Remember, you'll hear from us."

The odd thing is Tommy "did hear" and on Aug 1, 1943, he joined the Herald-American. Today, 16 years later, this 49-year-is the dean of Chicago's prep sports writers.

15 Teams To Battle For Crown

Fifteen teams, representing the "elite" of the summer golf leagues in this area, open fire Sunday in the tenth annual Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap tournament.

Sixty players are slated to tee off on the 6,429 yard Glendale country club course between 11 a.m. and 12:38 p.m.

Foursomes from the fifteen competing units are made up on the basis of individual handicaps with no two players from the same team in the same foursome.

Low handicap foursomes will tee off first in order to keep things moving smoothly and to make for more competition within the foursomes.

The tourney is strictly a team affair with a trophy to the winning team and medals to members of the first, second, and third place outfits. A dozen golf balls will go to low individual net player, regardless of how his team finishes.

REPORTS HAVE it that Glendale is a high handicap course with few obstacles for the golfers. With that in mind, the men with the high handicaps may have quite a bit to say about the tourney's outcome.

Faetz Insurance will carry the highest team handicap into Sunday's meet with an aggregate 90 from its four golfers, while McLennon Acoustical Tile of the Old Orchard Scratch loop will carry the lowest total — only 13 for its four men.

Low handicap players in the '59 meet will be Bill Hugo from McLennon team and John Troyke from Pik-Kwik. Two men, Bob Louthain and Bill Schwerin, will take two handicaps into the meet.

INDICATIVE THAT outstanding golf is expected in the tourney is the fact that 17 of the competitors carry a handicap lower than ten. All four members of the McLennon Tile team rank below six with Hugo at one; Schwerin at two; and both Fred Steinken and Woody Haake at five.

Glendale is not a tricky course as distance will be the only factor confronting the golfers. Only three holes have sand traps while one hole is covered with a water hazard.

PADDOCK Publications has sponsored this tourney for ten years. Bob Paddock, tourney promoter, formed the meet and now it is the only one of its kind in the area where league team leaders have a chance to compete with leaders of other leagues on a handicap basis.

In addition to the 90 team handicap for Faetz Insurance and 13 for McLennon Acoustical Tile, other team totals are as follows: Pik-Kwik (35), Prospect Heights Service Station (37), Grigsby Co. (41), Arlington Milk (53), Keefer's Pharmacy (54), Moler's Barber Shop (56), Team No. 8, Post 2149 (62), Pure Oil No. 9 (62), Safford's Stamps (63), Stan's old man from Arlington Heights

Be Prompt!

Glendale country club, site of the 1959 Paddock tourney, is located on Lake street on the South side of Route 20 between Route 53 and Roselle road. The club is east of Bloomingdale. Glfers are requested to allow plenty of time for the trip to the meet so they will be sure to be there at the designated tee-off times.

Sixth Annual Speed-O-Rama In Wisconsin

A total of 18 entries have been received for the sixth annual Speed-O-Rama of national championship auto racing held during Wisconsin state fair week, featuring two days of late model stock car races; and single races for midget autos and a speedway big cars.

The 150 and 200 mile late model stock car races are Sunday, Aug. 23 and Thurs., Aug. 27, and have attracted 12 entries. Five entries have been received for the 200 mile speedway big car race, Sunday, Aug. 30. Harry Turner, Kenosha, was the first midget car entrant for the 100 miler, Saturday, Aug. 29, with Jimmy Davies Van Nuys, Cal., as driver.

The rich $16,000 payoff at the July 19 stock car race hastened a lot of drivers to sign up early. More prominent entries are Mike Klapak, Warren, 0. (57 Ford); Johnny Allen, Atlanta, Ga. (57 Chevrolet); John Rostek, Ft. Collins, Colo. (58 Ford); and Gordon Gorman, Libertyville, Ill. (57 Chevrolet). Klapak was second in the 1958 national stock car standings, Gorman was eighth.

Other stock car entries are Art Hec, Hinsdale, Ill. (58 Ford); Joie Ray, Louisville, Ky. (57 Chevrolet); Clyde Parker, Detroit, Mich. (57 Chevrolet); Red Swanberg, Carpentersville, Ill. (57 Chevrolet); Sol Tovella, Chicago (57 Chevrolet); Allen Swenson, Glenview, Ill. (58 Ford), and Bill Shoulders, Waukegan, Ill. (58 Olds 88).

Prince of Peace, St. Theresa Win

Prince of Peace and St. Theresa captured victories last week in the Hoffman Estates Church softball league.

Prince of Peace stopped Our Savior, 12-2, while St. Theresa routed the Baptists, 36-4.

Next week will find St. Theresa meeting Our Savior and Prince of Peace taking on Beth Tikvah.

Illness Takes Toll

During the last government fiscal year there were 438 million instances of illness in the U. S. sufficient to curtail a worker's activity. This was the equivalent of 2.6 work-stoppage conditions per person each year, claiming 356.5 million work-loss days.

Standard Service (63), Walls of Arlington VFW (65), Lohr's Pharmacy (69), Rainbow Inn (72), and Faetz Insurance (90).

Padock sports staff computed handicaps on this basis: "80 per cent of the difference between a player's average 9-hole score for his five best nights and par for the course on which he plays including fractions is to be multiplied by two to obtain the 18-hole handicap. The nearest figure under, at, or over .5 will be used."

Greens fees of $16 per foursome were paid at time of entry with no other costs for golfers. Rules of the course will be explained at ime of tournament with summer rules observed. Foursomes will step off according to list in adjoining column. Any golers failing to report in time to compete will, naturally, disqualify the four-

IN CASE OF a first place tie, a flip of the coin will determine which set of names will be engraved on the trophy with duplicate medals given. In event of a tie for second, a flip of a coin will determine who gets second place medals. In event of a third place tie, duplicate medals will be given.

Technical adviser G. A. McElroy will send off the foursomes after giving instructions and answering questions.

MAC SAYS

Football Season Approaches

This is the time of year when high school athletes and coaches start to think about football and get the urge to start practice. The press is full of news of the professional football teams and the All-Star-Baltimore Colt game, which will be played in Soldier Field Friday night. About this time coaches are sending letters to athletes asking them to get in shape through calisthenics and running so they may be ready for organized practices when the opening day comes, the Monday prior to Labor Day. Arrangements for physical examinations are being set up for the coming two weeks prior to practice. The state association rules require physical exams for all athletes prior to practice or game participation.

Insurance for boys participating in football is very high compared with other activities. Where a student may be insured for the whole school year including sports other than football for about $2.25, the cost for the football season is $11.00. Many schools ask the boys to pay part of this insurance as it is too heavy a burden for the school athletic department to finance. Taking care of physicals and insurance are two matters to be completed before suits are issued on Saturday, August 29.

Some Coaches Violate Rules

THERE IS A STATE RULE that no organized football practice may be held between December 1 and the Monday prior to Labor Day. The main idea of this is to forbid spring practice which interfered with spring sports activities. It also was passed some years ago to prevent eager beaver coaches from having summer practice to get the jump on opponents. It has been necessary to set a certain date for practice but some coaches still violate the spirit if not the letter of the rule by their late summer plans and activities. Several schools in Illinois at various times have been penalized for breaking the rule by not being permitted to play part of their schedules and starting football in October. In other cases schools have brought the ill will of conference members by violating the spirit of the rules and by direct violations which are known but cannot be proved.

Any time rival coaches, players, and fans see players of other schools working out with footballs either on the school grounds or at some farm or backyard, the school is under suspicion and the story gets around that the rules are being violated. It does not make any difference that the coach is not present for it is figured that he has planned the practices and is not present to clear himself if direct charges are made. Sometimes over zealous fans, or booster club members, and parents try to take the place of a coach and hold practices. This is a violation of the rules. It is a violation for the coach to give out plays and plans for practice and ask the players to practice. The coach may give out footballs to a few individuals to practice kicking at home without violating the rule but it is not recommended and would be looked upon as practice if other athletes engaged in practice with such individuals. Coaches may not hold meetings of boys before the Monday prior to Labor Day, to plan for the opening of practice. The coach may not drill boys coming to high school from the 8th grade though it might appear that they are not high school students until school opens.

What Can Be Done About Problem?

IN ORDER TO AVOID CRITICISM coaches should not give out footballs and should permit only individual running and exercising on the school grounds. Anything else would be looked upon as football and if held at school would be considered school sponsored and so illegal. Equipment may be given out and checked for size prior to the legal opening of practice but may not be worn outside the locker room. Some of the schools in this area have at various times been charged with violation of the rules. We know of several cases where the rule has been violated but no one would complain to the state office because of the hard feeling which would result. Still, ill will was built up in the schools which knew certain rivals were getting the jump on them.

One coach in this area, at one time, took members of the football squad on a trip just prior to the legal practice date and other coaches had an idea that at least organizational work went on if not actual practice up in the north woods where no one could watch and prove the rules were violated. It seems to us that it is all important that school administrators and coaches see to it that nothing is done which can bring suspicion of rules violation. It is important to have the boys clearly informed of what constitutes practice and the importance of maintaining a good reputation for the school through strict observance of the spirit as well as the letter of the state rules.

Cage Coaches Attend Clinic

PALATINE'S BASKETBALL COACHES recently attended the Indiana Basketball Coaching School held at New Castle and directed by Cliff Wells, coach of Tulane University and former Indiana high school coach. Wells had 23 teams in the Indiana state finals and two state championships. He is president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches. At the coaching school featured speakers were E. N. Case of North Carolina State, "Peck" Hickman of University of Louisville, and Walter Shulblom of Wyandotte High of Kansas City. Shulblom won 84 and lost 4 the past 3 years with as many state championships. Peckman had two national winners and no losing seasons in 14 at Louisville and Case won 4 Indiana high school titles and takes his conference annually at North Carolina State.

It is hoped that Palatine coaches got some help from his high powered coaching school staff. Palatine has been down in basketball of late but has signs of a revival with two real good frosh teams in a row. This year's varsity is not expected to be up to the level of a contender but after that Palatine may be on the cage map again. Dick Kolze, varsity; Carl VanCleave, soph; and "Chick" Anderson, frosh; are the coaches who attended the coaching school to help bring a basketball revival to Palatine High.

WHEN THE calendar turned to the 1950's, Tommy got his second major post, golf editor. This was right up his alley since he's an ardent golfer with a 13 handicap.

Tommy recalled how his present golf column, "Tee Shots," is similar to the one he wrote for Paddock entitled, "Short Putts." His "Prep Patter" column, Tommy likens to "Chatter Box," regule Paddock sports column of the 1930's.

In his years with the American, Kouzmanoff's by-lines have originated from 16 Illinois state basketball tournaments, 16 Chicago prep bowl games, the NCAA basketball finals at Northwestern university, and U.S. Golf Opens at Rochester, N.Y., and Toledo, Ohio.

SOME OF TOMMY'S proudest moments are memories of walking down the fairways at Glen-eagles with Sam Snead where he (the sports writer) shot an 82 in pro-am and the greens at Mt. Prospect country club which he toured with Patty Berg in 87.

Tommy isn't the lone Kouzmanoff who loves golf. His brothers, Nick and George, are both members at Itasca country club, a few miles down the Milwaukee Road tracks from where all three graduated from Bensenville high school. The youngest of Tommy's two sons, Jerry, now 17, is a caddy at Rolling Green country club.

Tommy's wife, Alvina, is a former Scharringhausen whom Tommy wed off her Higgins rd. farm in Elk Grove township.

When it comes to writing, Tommy loves basketball best though it was the poorest of the three sports in which he earned letters at Bensenville high. It's no wonder that Tommy declares Hebron's overtime victory over Quincy in the 1952 state cage finals thrilled him the most.

Tommy relaxing on a well-earned vacation at his present home at 102 S. Mitchell, talked of memorable moments when he played football, basketball and baseball for Bensenville high school in the 1926-28 era. Sorry we haven't got time. That's next week's tale.

Deadly Drink

Drinking drivers were responsible for 5,625 traffic deaths last year and injuries to another 500,000 people, according to an insurance company's statistics.

Two Teams Battling For Lead

The Indians and Tigers are putting on a real dog-fight for the top slot in the Palatine American League with both clubs sporting 5-2 marks.

Dick Freeman got the win over Denny Becker as the Tigers stopped the Red Sox, 13-9. The winners' Randy McWilliams got four hits, including three doubles.

Greg Bedoe picked up his third straight pitching victory and the Yankees dumped the White Sox 7-4, and Bill Hard pitched a neat two-hitter in the Tigers' 12-0 whitewashing of the Yankees. Ron Schnecloff slapped a homer and Hard added a triple in the latter contest.

Hank Cauwells got the win in the Indians' triumph over the A's, and a homer by Jim Johnson provided the impetus in the Indians' impressive 8-0 victory over the Red Sox. Curt Menick was the winner.

The final contest between the Athletics and White Sox was rained out.

Slim Margin

With only three nights left in the current golfing season, it has become apparent that the Faetz insurance team in League No. 1 will take 1st place. They presently lead their league by 20½ points. The battle is on right now for the 2nd place position, between Kruse's Liquors and Trapani Plumbing.

In the No. 2 League, 1st place can still change even though Safford's Stamps leads by 6½ points. Ackerman Insurance in 2nd place leads Busse Texaco by 6½ points. So anything can still happen. Ackerman Insurance was top point winner this week with 9 points, from Van Driel's Drugs. Trapani Plumbing won 8½ points from Strass Ladies.

One Game Remains in Playoffs

Four Champions Crowned in Arlington Baseball

It's ALMOST all over but the shouting!

Only one more game remains in Arlington's post-season baseball playoffs as the leagues prepare to pack up after another successful campaign.

The Intermediate loop is the only division lacking a 1959 champion. Monday, Aug. 17, the Huskies and the Comets will battle for coveted post-season title.

But the results of the other leagues are in and the Indians, Vikings, Padres, and Athletics reign as the official Arlington champions.

Jim Millay's Padres stopped George Herbert's Owls, 6-2, for the Junior division title.

GARY McDOUGALL fanned 10, walking only five in stopping the Owls and lefty John Vetter. However, Vetter turned in an impressive chore in losing with 11 strikeouts and only five walks over the six frames.

An eight-year-old, McDougall also hit a third inning homer with one man on. Kasl of the Padres and Kehe for the Owls both had two hits and the winner's Mark Schueneman rapped a triple.

The infield play was excellent and both clubs played tremendous ball. The Padres finished with a 19-3 mark while the Owls stood at 15-3-1.

Owls	101 000—2-4
Padres	202 02*—6-5

WINNING BOTH the first and second half crowns, the Vikings claimed the Varsity league championship. In the finals the Vikings slugged the Rams, 10-1, Aug. 10 at the high school.

In the Major League playoff Frank Frohne's Athletics came back after an opening defeat and clubbed Joe Mader's Pirates in two straight for the title.

Baer and Jim Jakubiec shared the toiling for the Pirates in the 7-6 victory, Aug. 6. The winners came from behind with four big runs in the third and two in the fourth for the decision.

Angeloff and Barker worked for the A's with Angeloff getting the loss.

Athletics	105 000—6-10-1
Pirates	104 20*—7- 7-3

SPLITTDORF and Pete Barker worked for the A's in a 3-2 triumph Aug. 7 while Mader and Carlson teamed up for the Pirates, Carlson absorbing the defeat.

In the important third contest Johnson and Gregory limited the Pirates to two hits with Johnson getting the win. The A's tall right hander worked five innings and allowed two hits, striking out four and walking three.

Jakubiec went five innings for the Pirates and struck out six, walking two.

Athletics	200 003—5-8-2
Pirates	010 000—1-2-2

IN THE CONTEST leading up to the playoffs, the A's stopped the Red Sox for the American League crown, 8-3. Splittdorf got the win with Witter slapping a three base hit.

Athletics	240 020—8-7-1
Red Sox	300 000—3-7-2

The Pirates won the NL crown with a 12-1 decision over the Dodgers. Jekubiec got the win on a neat two-hitter.

Steve Donchess' Huskies gained the finale with a 5-2 win over the Seals, and Bert Van Duzer's Comets gained the North side title with a 10-9 decision over the Bruins.

The Comets were trailing by five runs at the end of the fifth but scored seven times in the sixth. Tossi and Lindmark hit homers.

Berwyn Gains State Finals In Legion Ball

Sweeping to its third straight victory in the Cook County Jr. Legion tourney, Berwyn rocked Park Ridge 5-3, Aug. 5, to advance to the state finals in Murphysboro.

With Larry Mack and Bob Peters sharing the mound chores, nbrgr, and Jim Vopeee Jim Regan's Berwyn nine never trailed and exploded for the four decisive runs in the sixth inning.

Hits by Arny Vesely, Don Eichenberger, and Jim Vopicka coupled with two walks brought in the trio of counters. Vopicka, son of the Morton high cage coach, delivered a big triple, driving in two runs.

Catcher Ron Michaelson paced Park Ridge's attack with three hits while Jim Humay, who covered left field and also did some pitching, slapped out two.

Bob Kunkel started for Park Ridge with Humay and Ken Buccieri working in relief.

Ticket Sales Up for NU's Grid Tilts

Northwestern University's football team will play before the largest crowds in recent years this fall, according to Ticket Manager Sid Richardson, who announced recently that the sale of season tickets for home games is up 38 per cent over last year.

The presence of Oklahoma, Orange Bowl and Big Eight champions, as the opening game attraction September 26, has served as a major incentive for the big increase in season ticket sales, according to Richardson.

The Oklahoma game tops all home games in sales, being nearly three times in excess of other home games which are also running ahead of last year. Other home games are Minnesota, Oct. 10; Indiana, October 31, and Wisconsin, November 7.

Enthusiasm over team prospects has also contributed to the upswing in ticket orders, according to Richardson. Alumni orders are well ahead of a year ago, while sale of faculty and staff tickets is double that of last year.

"Many season ticket purchaschers of a year ago have increased their orders, white new season ticket orders are being received asers," Richardson said.

from former single-game purch-

Demond for tickets to out-of-town games is also well ahead of a year ago, Richardson reported. Northwestern's allotment of tickets to the Notre Dame game is virtually exhausted, while a brisk sale is also reported for the Iowa, Michigan, Michigan State and Illinois games.

Cards Shift Morton Great To End Slot

Bob Konovsky, former Morton High school and U. of Wisconsin great lineman, in addition to being the Big Ten's heavyweight wrestling champion, has been shifted from offensive guard to defensive end by Coach Frank Ivy of the Chicago Cardinals, and it looks like he should have been there all the time.

One would think so from the way he was in the Argonauts backfield all the time when the Cards beat the Canadian entry 55-26 in Toronto August 5. Konovsky, a native of Cicero, Ill., who is 6-2 and weighs 245 had a big piece of that success and looms as a terrific help to the Cards this year, his fourth with the club.

During the off-season Bob has been doing a great job wrestling for Promoter Fred Kohler and it seems that his knack of slipping out of opponents' holds while in the ring wrestling, is helping him avoid the grasp of offensive linemen during football games.

The Cards this week journey to Norman, Okla where they meet the Detroit Lions in the U. of Oklahoma Stadium Saturday night (Aug. 15).

Keefer's Golf Lead In Danger

The Tuesday division of the Mt. Prospect Twilight league, which at one time appeared to be tied-up by Keefer's Pharmacy, tightened into a contest this week as dark horse Wille Lbr. & Fuel scored a smashing 9½-½ victory over the hapless Nelson Realty team and moved to within a point of the league leaders.

It was a case of the underdogs turning on the favorites as the top three teams all went down in defeat before second division clubs. Keefer's, suffering from Paddock tournament palpitations, succumbed to a determined Licht's Paint Store aggregation, 6½-3½; Mt. Prospect Electric Constr. dropped a 6-4 contest to former cellar dweller Geo. O'Day Realtor; and Golden's Food Shop, unable to shake out of their slump, was humiliated by Mt. Prospect Bowling Lanes, 8-2.

WILLE LBR. lost no time in capitalizing on the confusion. In their match they took low team net, low individual net, and losing only ½ point to Bob Carncross of Nelson's who tied his match but lost the medal. Nelson's, in second place on June 23 and only four points out of first, have been able to score but nine points in six weeks of play.

In other matches Carl's Food Shop plunged Annen & Busse into the cellar by defeating them 7½-2½ and Kersting's Garden Center overwhelmed Mt. Prospect Jewelers 9-1.

Birdies were reported by Commissioner Patheal and Ron Hawkinson No. 1 and Walt Kadlec No. 8.

John Eiler Gains Ace in Golf Loop

Woody Haake was deposed of his "celebrity ace" crown Friday night while playing his match against John Eiler. John started the night by taking the tenth hole from "Ace" Haake, then they teed off on the 155 yard water hole 12th and John Eiler commenced to stroke a dynamic 7 iron shot that lit on the green curled to the left and disappeared into the cup. Eiler's hole-in-one put him with Woody Haake in the "Ace" category but the "Pilot" went on to defeat Eiler by finishing with five pars and a birdie. Woody's 37 round paced the McLennon Tilers, the scratch league elite, to a 7½ point win and a step off spot for their try at Paddock's tourney on Sunday.

Big Jim Keane, who was John Eiler's playing partner, came up with the best round of the evening when he bettered par on the back nine by one stroke. Big Jim started with a bogey then after a par on the eleventh he dropped a 25 foot putt on the 12th to go even. Keane went one under par on the 540 yard 15th when he was on in 2 and two putted for his bird. Keane's card read as follows.

Par	4	4	3	4	5	5	4	4	3—36
Keane	5	4	2	5	4	4	4	4	3—35

Straight hitting Chuck Kleinhofen and Marsh Balling teamed with Big Jim and the Peterson Floor and Tilers were six point winners of the Roto Mercury power drivers.

Young Wayne Rolfs shot a fine round of seven pars and two bogeys to best the two-head tournament entree, Ed Moehling Jr. Rolfs' 37 was one better than Moehling's 38 and the match was decided when Ed bogied the ninth. Rolfs' teammates, Carl Berlin (38) and Marv Prellberg (38) contributed to the team's six point collection.

The Webber Paints split with the Arlington Rest Home quintet when Bob Blessing shot a one over par 36 to pace the brush men.

Arlington Milk Maintains Lead

Arlington Milk held on to the lead that they aave either shared or held since the season started and thereby qualified for the Paddock tournament. The rest of the teams in the Wayside-Colette League at Chevy Chase will have only three more Wednesday nights to chop away at the nine point spread that the dairymen have over the second place Quadriga Mfg. Co. team.

Garden Liquor was the latest victim of the milkmen's surge to the Glendale championship finals by succumbing 6-1. Mert Taylor of Arlington Milk led the team and the league with a 39-7-32. Bud Garms, Bowler Lysien and Larry Taylor each chipped in with a match victory while Frank Plennert again proved to be a tough match opponent by winning the liquor store's only point. Arlington Milk will be represented by Homer Cokenhower, Mert Taylor, Bud Garms and Dick Michalski with Bowler Lysien the alternate in the Paddock tournament at Glendale.

Quadriga Mfg. Co. took a firm hold on second place by downing Jim's Service Station 4-3. Augie Bonucchi, Oscar Dolleslager and Stan Bailey scored for Quadriga while Don Engstrom and Lou Stefanik counted for Jim's.

CONTINENTAL Can defeated T. A. Catino Bldr., 4½. Only four matches were played thereby accounting for the six point total.

Al Austin shared the league low net by getting a 45-13-32 score to be Continental's top point maker. Jim Cronin and Norm Rud combined for the rest of the team's points while Jordan Italia and John Bolling did it for Catino.

Lauterburg & Oehler, with only three men making an appearance defeated Roll King, or we should say Merle Kingsley, 4-1. Merle was the only Roll King member to show up and it isn't quite true that they defeated him as he won the only match played. Now that vacations are just about out of the way, let's have a perfect attendance record these final three weeks.

Scores Soar In Golf Action At Mt. Prospect

Sand traps, long rough, back tees and poor golf scores seam to go together.

With the change in layout at Mt. Prospect country club and the addition of a few refinements, team total scores in the Friday night League were the highest they have been since the first night of play.

Don Robinson turned up three birds and Don Odbert two to lead the field of only seven golfers who had birds. One each were recorded by Andy Gorr, Pete Chimes, George Miscevich, Al Seyler, and Chuck Staadt. Cecil Jamison had the low gross of 40 and Don Robinson took low net of 34.

We will have our second two ball foursome at Mt. Prospect on August 23 at 2 p.m. Be sure and bring the wife out for a real good time. Election of officers for 1960 will be held August 21 after league play.

Lumber Unit Ties Grigsby For Top Slot

Wheeling Lumber's fine team picked up a half point in their race with the Grisby Co. outfit to tie them for the league lead in the Arlington Friday night loop.

Following by only 1½ points is Webber Paint and with three weeks of league play remaining, it will be a three team race with the rest of the field 9½ points and more behind.

Scores soared as the wind blew at Arlington Friday. A steady mist also aggravated the conditions. Only two golfers, Bob Sabin and Al Snell, succeeded in breaking the 40 mark with their 39s. Low net was shared by Ed Betke, Al Snell, and Joe Carlson with 32s.

Webber Paint Takes Rob Roy Ladies Lead

Several teams in the Rob Roy Ladies golf league are really working for that top position. Webber Paint took Hagenbring's for seven points to take over the first place. Capt. Paula Farrell of Webber's chalked up a nice 34 net, to take two points to help her team.

Senne's Grocery took Prairie Lee Paints for six points to take second place. Marge Leslie of Senne's had a nice 35 net, to take two points for her team.

Morava Stationers have been holding that top place for several weeks by a very close margin, but Thursday Arlington Pharmacy took them for six points to put them down to third place.

Des Plaines Liquors have been doing so well and were tied with Webber's for second place last week but Grove Inn took them for five points to hurt them. Ann Sobol of Grove Inn took two points by her 36 net score.

The weekly event was low gross. The winners were as follows: 1st position, Paula Farrell, 45; 2nd position, Marge Leslie, 48; 3rd position, Grace Tompson, 55; 4th position, Gabby Buffington, 65; 5th position, Marion Vischer, 62.

The team standings are as follows:

Webber Paint Co.	59½
Senne's Grocery	56½

100-Lap Test on Friday's Card at O'Hare Stadium

A grueling 100-lap test Friday night for late model stock cars is expected to crown Chicago's 1959 champion at O'Hare Stadium, Mannheim and Irving Park rds. The event is billed, in fact, as the 100-lap Chicago City Championship.

It's a true description for drivers will be competing from the several Chicagoland speedways just as they did for the same title last year which went to the eventual runnerup for the O'Hare track title, Bill Lutz of Louisville.

Now aiming for the 1959 title at O'Hare as well Lutz will be much in evidence Friday night along with the cream of the crop of late model stars and cars. Gates open at 6 p.m. with the first race of a full program of action and thrills set for 8:30.

AMONG LUTZ' chief rivals will be Fred Lorenzen of Elmhurst, defending O'Hare and National Champion. Also such other "name" chauffeurs as Bud Koehler of Blue Island, Johnny Schipper of Harvey, Don Oldenberg of Highland, Ind., and many more.

Chicago itself is expected to be heavily represented by stars like Bob Williams, Whitey Gerken, Harry Simonsen, Neil Houston, Rudy Gawenda, Roy Czach, Rick Kleich, Sal Tovella, Ted Hane and Pat Weirich.

Other suburbs will be sending entries like: Ray Young of Blue Island, Bryant Tucker of Hillside, Arnie Gardner of Geneva, Hank Chapman of Aurora, Red Swanberg of Meadowdale, Gene Marmor of Schiller Park, Roy Martinelli of Halfday.

ALSO, KENNY PAULSEN of Stone Park, Tom Cox of Villa Park, Bob Meyers of Forest Park, Bob Schultz of Elmwood Park, Leroy Roberts of Elmwood Park, Butch Linden of Deerfield, Mal Lane of Lansing and many more.

Friday night's program, which will be followed Saturday night by another of O'Hare's regular doubleheader shows, will include speed trials, heat races and other events. This will be the longest race this year at O'Hare.

O'Hare Stadium is a highly banked, dustless asphalt track. There is complete, permanent seating, refreshment stands and the Trophy lounge and policed, off-the-highway parking for 3,000 cars.

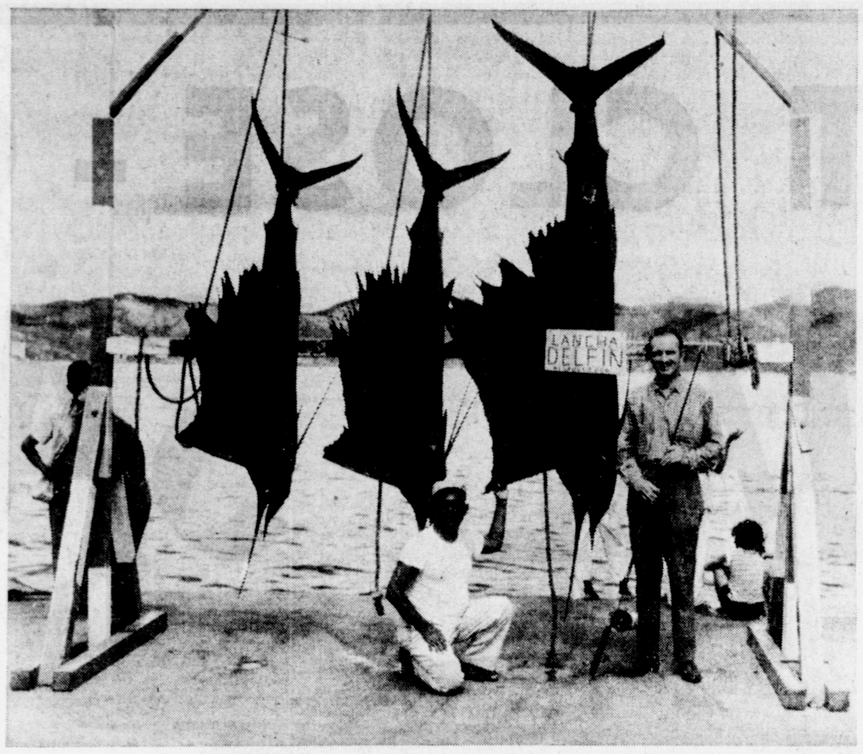
Roll-Over Event At Speedway

Modified stock car racing moves into its fourteenth week at the Waukegan Speedway, next Sunday night, August 16. Highlighting the program of racing will be three added attractions, made up of spectator racing, a demolition derby and a thrill packed roll-over contest.

Track manager Michael Kaishian announced that the roll-over contest will feature strictly stock automobiles being deliberately rolled over and over until they are no longer able to run. Points are scored on the basis of the number of times each competing driver is able to turn his machine over. If he tips on his side he gains only one point, if he lands on his roof two points, and if he goes all the way over and back on his wheels again, he earns four points and the like. All cars still able to run and those failing to turn over in the roll over contest will be demolished in the Demolition event.

Top drivers will head a field of nearly 50 modified cars as the stocks take to the track for four ten lappers, a 15 lapper, and the 25 la main event. Eddie Stillman, still ranks as the number one driver to beat with a total of 2,380 points to his credit. Miles Melius of Slinger is trying hard to catch him having 1,315 points to his credit. Melius has won four out of the last five feature events, and poses the most serious threat to all competitors. Others competing will be Bob Ratajczyk, Kenosha, Milt Curcio, Racine and Erik Johnson of Highland Park. Time trials at 7:15 first race at 8:30.



JOE BRYSON, 1620 N. State, Arlington Heights, recently made a record catch at Acapulco, Mexico. The 11 ft. long sailfish weighed 174 pounds, biggest catch of the year at the resort. Bryson, assistant branch manager for the Horace Mann Insurance company, said he would have to do some remodeling in order to exhibit the prize. He caught the sailfish while visiting Acapulco on a combination vacation-insurance convention.

Estacion Heads $50,000 Matron Handicap Field

M. H. Van Berg's Estacion, winner of the race last year, will try to make it two in a row Saturday when she faces a strong field in the $5,000-added Matron Handicap at Arlington Park.

The Matron highlights the second week of the Washington at Arlington Park meeting, which, on the following Saturday, Aug. 22, will feature the $100,000-added Arlington Turf Handicap.

Among those nominated to face Estacion in the Matron are the mares who finished third and fourth in last year's race—Calumet Farm's Rosewood and Poltex Stable's Born Rich.

J. GRAHAM BROWN'S Bornastar, Handicap Mare of the Year in 1958, also is nominated for the Matron. She was fourth in the Delaware Handicap July 25; won her last six races in a row last year. Among her stakes triumphs in 1958 were the Spinster Stakes, Vineland, Beverly and Falls City Handicaps. At three, in 1957, she won the Spinster and Yo Tambien Handicap.

Another standout scheduled to run Saturday is Poltex Stable's Born Rich, like Bornastar, a six-year-old mare. Last year Born Rich won the Santa Margarita and Milady Handicaps in California.

Estacion also will be up against Zevs Joy, owned by H. F. Dick. Zevs Joy won the Vanity Handicap at Hollywood July 16 and has been in the money in all but one of her last eight starts.

E. Janss, Jr.'s Honey's Gem won the Beverly Handicap at Washington Park June 20, returned to Hollywood Park to win the Milady Handicap and finish second to Zevs Joy in the Vanity.

ROSEWOOD, Calumet's stretch-running mare, won the Black Helen Handicap at Hialeah last winter and has closed ground in all her races at Chicago this summer though failing to win. She is certain to like the mile and an eighth distance in the Matron.

Team 3 Leads Hoffman Estates Golf Division

Leading the Hoffman Estates men's golf league with 128½ points is Team 3—Rainbow Inn. Second is Team 7—Plaza Liquors with 118 points. Third is Team 5—Buggy Whip with 106 points. Next is Team 4 captained by Harry Grover with 98 points. Team 6—Bud and Bob's Pure Oil—is close behind with 94½ points. Team 1—Don Specht, Captain, and Team 8—National Screw are tied with 90½ points each. Bringing up the rear is Team 2 captained by Bob Rivenes with 80 points. Next Wednesday is the last tournament match.

Team 3 is planning to play in the Paddock Tournament.

At the August 5 tournament, first place in individual low net was taken by Jack Reedy. He shot 42 with 10 handicap. Second low net was a three way tie between Ray Larson, Roy Palmer and Louis Solovay, each with 33 net. Ray Larson and Harry Grover tied with lowest gross score of 37, which is par. Team low net was won by Bud and Bob's Pure Oil—Team 6.

Old Orchard Ladies

Event of the day, Aug. 4, in the Old Orchard ladies golf league was Putless, one-half handicap.

Winners on the second nine were Helene Harper and Lorraine Mertens. Winners on the third nine were Elsie Kurtz and Irma Wilkens.

Gunnell's Set For Paddock Classic Loop

Another team is set for the new season of competition in the Paddock Classic Traveling league with release of the roster for the squad from Gunnell's Bowling Lanes.

John Ribando will again captain the team, but has named himself "sixth man." Bowlers who will be competing and their averages include Al Walter 194, Al Valentino 190, John Lynch 190, Ward Siewert 186 and Ernie Koche 184. Team average is 944.

One change has been announced in the roster for Tommy Thomas's Casablanca with John Baskes of Elgin replacing Herb Engstrom. Baskes will carry a 195-average into play this year.

Paddock Classic will open play Saturday night, Aug. 29, at Jeffery Lanes in Wheeling. All six teams will be on hand that night to kick off the new year.

Proper Stance Vital For Long Iron Shots

(This is the twelfth in a series of golf columns by Chuck Pedersen, Class A PGA professional at Rolling Green country club.)

Accurate long irons an cut strokes off your golf score. A good long iron shot should give you distance and accuray. The trick in long irons is to put accuracy as well as distance into your shots. That's the way to make them count double and pare your scores down. A full swing with a follow through is always the rule and if you concentrate on judging your distance, adjusting your stance to the terrain and swing properly, the ability to place the ball long and accurate will ome naturally.

On long iron shots the stance is the most important element in accuracy,—once you have selected the proper club. The basic stance for the number two iron is square. That means that both feet are toeing the same line. For this basic shot your weight should be equally distributed between your right and left foot, and the ball should be played on the line off the let foot. Here are some basic rules to remember when hitting long irons:

The stance is all important - vary it according to distane, terrain, and obstacles.

Practice your four, five, and six irons before you use the one, two and three irons.

Learn to shoot for the green, also practice keeping your eye on the ball.

Make your swing high and wide and end it with a full follow-through.

Relax and let your arm motion carry your body around the stroke.

Maintain perfect balance from start to finish of the stroke.

VFW Golf League

With only three more nights left to play in this golf season, the margin is narrowing between the three leading teams in VFW golf. The Walls still hold an eight point lead over the second place Sneads. There is only one point difference between the second place team and the third place Mangrums. This situation could prove to be a very interesting contest to the end.

There were no exceptional scores made Monday night; however, George Snelton of the Sneads team did eagle the fifth hole at Old Orchard and still lost his match by one point. Nickson took low gross honors with 39-5-net 34. Spies took low net with his 45-12-net 33.

A reminder to the wives of the golfers—our golf banquet will be September 12 at the VFW Club.

New Team Standings:

Walls	68
Sneads	60
Mangrums	59

Demarets	51½
Hogans	48½
Nelsons	48½

Shalom Park Names New Vice President

Herschel Auerbach, 2310 W. Farwell st., Chicago, has been promoted to executive vice-president of Shalom Memorial Park, the all-Jewish garden-plan burial ground at Rand and Wilke rds., Palatine.

The announcement was made coincident with the disclosure that Shalom Memorial Park, in less than three years since its inception late in 1956, has sold more than $1,000,00 in Family Memorial Estates.

Auerbach, who came to the Shalom organization as executive director in 1956, after several years as a Memorial Counsellor and field manager for Sharon Memorial Park, Boston, Mass., has built a staff of 12 Memorial Counsellors at Shalom. He instituted a Synagogue and Organization Sponsorship Plan, whereby 15 Chicagoland synagogues and temples and the Jewish War Veterans, Department of Illinois, have sections in the park for their members. These congregations encompass all branches of Judaism and include Orthodox, Traditional, Conservative and Reform.

A NATIVE of New York, Auerbach served in the armed forces during and after World War II, and was a Major in the Counter-Intelligence Corps acting as intelligence officer in preparation of evidence for the Nuremberg War Trials and other tours of duty. He is an Army reserve officer with the rank of Major.

He is vice-president of the Zionist Organization of Chicago and member of the National Executive Council of the Zionist Organization of America. He served as national director of membership for the latter group. He is active in countless other organization and is a member of the National Association of Cemeteries; the Illinois Cemetery Association; Reserve Officers Associations, and National Counter Intelligence Corps Association. 40 Years With Firm, Fred Tice Retires

FRED TICE

After 40 years with Scott, Foresman and company, Fred A. Tice voluntarily retired July 31. Having started with this company in Ohio, he transferred in 1923 to the Pacific northwest, and was brought into the home office in Chicago in 1936. As a director and vice-president, he had charge of the company's salesman at the time of his retirement.

Tice is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university, and served in the Army during World War I, as captain in the Field Artillery. After demobilization, he taught school in Ohio for a year before joining Scott, Foresman and company, one of the leading educational textbook publishers in the country. He will remain on the board of directors of the company, and will serve in a consultant capacity for a few years.

Many hobbies and interests will occupy his time. Mr. and Mrs. Tice are planning to remain indefinitely in their home at 625 N. Douglas ave. in Arlington Heights, but will spend the winter months in a warmer climate. This winter it will be California, where it may be possible that they will eventually settle, as both of them have many friends around the San Francisco Bay.

Modern Etiquette

Q. When approaching a revolving door with a woman, does the man enter first so as to push the door for her, or should she precede him?

A. He allows the woman to go ahead of him and, in fact, he is better able to control the revolving door if she does go first.

Q. Is it necessary to write anything, besides your name, on the card that accompanies a wedding gift?

A. No. Good wishes and congratulations may be offered at the reception.

Q. Is it a "must" to call on newcomers to one's neighborhood?

A. While not considered exactly obligatory, it still is a kindly and courteous act of friendship. Many of our communities have become very lax about this. Surely, it doesn't require too much time or trouble to welcome a new neighbor and make him feel "at home."

Q. When one is at a banquet and doesn't care to drink coffee, is it proper to turn one's cup over as a signal to the waiter?

A. No. It is better to indicate the fact by a slight shake of your head and a "No, thank you" to the waiter as he is about to serve you.

Offers the Choice Exclusives

It pays to buy a Quality Home in a well established neighborhood

Pictured below are a few of our many exclusive listings situated in mature, well established neighborhoods in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

If you have never owned a home, take a tip from the experienced home buyer — the beautiful trees and shrubbery, the luxuriant lawns, the colorful beds of flowers, the overall charm of a house that has been a home is no accident. These features are the fruits of months, and many times years, of hard work and loving care. If you have owned a home you know well what we mean.

Another very important factor to take into consideration if you are planning to purchase a home is the re-sale possibilities. The average American family is on the move. Transfers, promotions, family growth, and increasing incomes are the major contributing factors to this condition. Most people prefer a home in an established neighborhood. If you are like most people today and there is a possibility of another move in a few years, give yourself a break — do it the easy way — buy a quality home in an established neighborhood.

225 Area Boy Scouts Attend Final Camp at Camp Napowan

The largest number of scouts ever to attend Camp Napowan during one camping period climaxed their long term camp stay last week with the closing campfire. Camp Napowan, owned and operated by the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America, welcomed over 25 scouts to its 300 acres of ground, two weeks ago.

Scouts and scouters from Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Skokie, Mt. Prospect, Niles, Palatine, Barrington, Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights, Morton Grove and Rolling Meadows were present at Camp Napowan for the two weeks of scouting adventure.

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER prevailed, with the days warm and at night the breezes through the pines, which surround the camp, made sleeping ideal.

Seven basic tenting sites were the homes of the scouts that enjoyed the facilities of the camp located in mid-Wisconsin. In these tenting areas, scouts passed the various second and first class cooking requirements under the direction of their own unit leader or a capable staff member.

Of great help to the staff and to the scouts, was the presence of many adult leaders in camp during the third period. These scouters not only assisted the boys in their own units with many aspects of the scouting program, but also offered their services in the various camp program areas.

THE ADULT leader in camp is the biggest help that can be offered to boys who attend, for he is familiar with their needs and can help them select a schedule that fits the scout's individual needs.

One of the greatest honors that can be bestowed upon a scout by his fellow scouts, is the right for membership in the Order of the Arrow. This organization was set up to honor outstanding scouts and scouters for their leadership and service in the home troop or Explorer post. During the third period 25 scouts and scouters took their Ordeal, which is required before they can become full members of the Order of the Arrow and its local lodge, the Lakota Lodge.

Once again a highlight for many of the boys attending Camp Napowan, was the overnight wilderness canoe trip. Each day of the period saw one trip begin and another draw to a close. To campers of explorer scout age, a special and more rugged canoe trip was offered. This explorer trip lasts three days and found many boys shooting the rapids of the swift Little Wolf River.

THE PRIMARY objective of scouts who come to a summer camp and in particular Camp Napowan, is to advance along the scouting trail. Again the previous advancement record was shattered by the scouts who attended Camp Napowan during the third period.

The old record, which was set the second period, was replaced by the ambitious scouts in the third period as over 300 merit badges were earned. On a percentage basis, each scout advanced one rank and earned over one merit badge, an outstanding accomplishment.

Besides all of the work spent on advancement, much of the scouts' time is devoted to the general recreation areas such as baseball, scavenger hunts and other camp-wide activities.

The closing campfire ended a two week stay of advancement, fun, fellowship and good scouting for the largest group of scouts to attend Camp Napowan during one period of the 1959 camping season. (BB

Hi-Fi Festival Set for Flagg's

Plans for a 3-day stereo hi-fi music "festival" Thursday through Saturday, August 13-15, have been announced by Charles Hartmann, manager of the Andrew Flagg store in the Village Green Shopping center, Park Ridge.

The event, co-sponsored by the Admiral corporation, will feature continuous playing of a stereophonic recordings and displays of 24 stereo hi-fi phonographs and stero tape recorders. Also on display will be a stereo hi-fi unit in a transparent plexiglass case that will enable "festival" visitors to see exactly how stereo hi-fi works.

Units on display will range from economical portable models to the most elaborate console. John Oke, an Admiral representative, will help Flagg's personnel explain the principles of stereo hi-fi sound and answer questions about the units.

"We have arranged this Admiral Stereo Hi-Fi "festival" to give people an opportunity to become better acquainted with the 'magic' of stereophonic sound reproduction and to show them that they needn't turn their homes into professional sound studios to enjoy music at its best," Hartmann said.

Flagg's store hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursdays and Fridays and 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays. (BB

WORD STUDY

"Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day. Words for this lesson:

QUOTIDIAN; daily; recurring daily; as, "a quotidian fever." (Pronounce kwoh-tidd-i-an, accent on second syllable).

ADVENTITIOUS; accidental; casual. "He gained much fame from his adventitious discovery."

DISPARAGEMENT; diminution of esteem or standing. "His attempted disparagement of the governor had no effect upon that man's popularity."

PARABOLIC; of the nature of a parable; allegoric. (Accent third syllable). "The speaker illustrated his points with frequent parabolic references."

AVERSION; a state of mind in which attention to an object is coupled with dislike of it and desire of turning from it. "Some persons have an aversion to work."

DISINGENUOUS; not frank and candid; deceivingly simple. (Pronounce diss-in-jenn-yu-uss, principal accent on third syllable). "We must be wary of this disingenuous office seeker."

Develops Compound

Development of a new synthetic rubber compound which will give motorists 5,000 extra miles for ever 30,000 miles of driving was announced by Raymond C. Firestone, president, the Firestone Tire and Rubber company.

Tires built with X-99 tread rubber combine the rare characteristics of a smoother, softer and quieter ride. The annoying 'squeal" that may now be considered normal in turning corners, even at low speed, is practically eliminated by the remarkable new tread compound.

"Drivers will get 15 per cent more mileage out of the new rubber," Firestone said, "which also is silent and soft riding."

FIRESTONE said Rubber X-99 has been approved for immediate use in the firm's Premium Quality tire. The Premium Quality, a blowout-safe, puncture-proof tire, is the top tire in the company's line.

The new tread stock resulted from the discovery by Firestone of a new polymer and the development of the most advanced compounding techniques in the rubber industry.

The new compound has been subjected to every conceivable test in preparation for its eventual use in consumer products.

Resurvey O'Hare Area Obstructions

An airport survey, which will chart the obstructions to air traffic in an area of about 50 square miles around O'Hare Field, Chicago International Airport, is now being made by an airport survey party of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

The Chief of Party, Henry J. Bozzo, estimates that it will take about three weeks to survey the circular area around the airport. Bozzo's party arrived at Chicago Aug. 5, after conducting a similar survey in Duluth, Minn.

O'Hare Field was previously surveyed by an airport survey party in August 1956. The results of the present survey will appear on a chart to be published in approximately four months after the airport has been resurveyed.

The survey, which will determine the location and elevation of any obstructions to air traffic in the vicinity of the airport and the horizontal position of all aids of air navigation, is part of the regular program of the Coast and Geodetic Survey in the production and maintenance of Airport Obstruction Charts of all transport-category airports in the United States.

The prime purpose of the charts is the representation in plan and profile of the obstructions to air navigation in the vicinity of the airports. Each chart comprises a plan or planimetric map of the airfield and vicinity, particularly the approaches to the runways. A profile of each runway approach is included. The charts indicate the position, elevation, and character of all objects in the area that are potential hazards, is established. (BB

Summer Day Camp Offers New Hope for Retarded Children

by DICK HOFFMANN

The sky crouched under a burden of rain clouds as the sign "Countryside school" - and in more subdued lettering, "for mentally retarded children" - came into view.

Almost obscured by rows of apple trees which marched in solemn procession up the gently-sloping acreage was the home acquired by the Countryside association last fall to serve as both day school and summer camp.

This week marks the end of the eight-week summer day camp for 16 children; the day school of nine months, duration is to follow.

Centrally located some five miles from Palatine, Barrington and Lake Zurich, the association is in its seventh year of training the mentally handicapped child.

This, however, is the first year the summer day camp was initiated; and Mrs. Gwendolyn Pittenger of Barrington, school director, was effusive in praise of teenagers from the surrounding area who have donated their time and efforts to the training situation.

HERE, THESE mentally disenfranchised children hover over looms learning physical coordination as they weave; a language master machine mouths words in teaching tongue coordination; music is made available by records and a piano in one classroom.

And it becomes evident that here life is as much one of feeling as seeing in a world often bewildering, and incomprehensible to these youngsters whose chronological age runs from four to 20 years.

Their mental age, however, seldom exceeds the kindergarten level of comprehension, Mrs. Pittenger disclosed.

BUT THESE children do thrive on love, she pointed out. "They do have feelings," she emphasized, noting that more and more pressure is being put on society to accept the retarded as human beings.

"Through no fault of their own or their families they are this way," she elaborated.

The Countryside school is comprised of six acres of land, including the five-room residence, a workshop, two bathrooms, a standard-equipped playground, garden (which the children planted themselves), and an outdoor wading pool.

As Mrs. Pittenger talked, a counselor came walking up carrying a well-drenched little girl who had taken an unannounced dive into the pool.

The children also look forward to Fridays when a horse, Rye, is brought from a nearby stable for rides.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR of the summer camp is Rex White, 19, of Barrington, who is a psychology major at Wheaton college.

White is still uncommitted as to whether he will continue work in special education with such children upon graduation.

"Many of the teenagers who have given up their time this summer to work with the children here," Mrs. Pittenger said, "have expressed a desire to go into special education.

"If just one out of this group did wind up in special education then I'd think all our work was worthwhile."

The school had its origin seven years ago when Mrs. Lotte Steinfeld, now a Wilmette school teacher, started a summer day camp in Lake Zurich. Membership swelled to the point where an association was organized four years ago to meet continuing needs. Mrs. Pittenger, a former public school teacher, entered the program in its second year.

The gratifications from such work are small but rewarding. She related the time one young girl, now 18, first learned to tie her shoe laces.

"IT TOOK HER about three years to learn it. When she did, she kept tying and untying them all day long. You realize then how little it takes to make these children happy," she explained.

She disclosed that the school does not accept a child whose IQ exceeds 50, but that often children are brought to them before undergoing psychological testing so that they could conceivably fall into the "educable" mentally handicapped category.

She said a Highland Park psychologist does all testing on a volunteer basis for the school, and that each child is submitted to a physical examination prior to admittance.

"Most public schools now offer some kind of instruction for the educable," she noted. The trainable, however, are offered little in the way of facilities.

"It's expected that the educable will become self-sufficient by the time they reach adulthood; for the trainable, though, the best we can expect is a sheltered workshop situation where a routine is maintained: they thrive on routine.

"But our main aim is to keep these children happy, to see that they get along with others, and to teach them to get along socially," she considered.

THE TRAINABLE are given instruction in dressing themselves, eating manners, and basic hygiene habits. Name recognition is taught by having ducks, stars and other objects numbered to correspond with places on a board; puzzles are employed to improve coordination; picture lotto in which the teacher holds cards with pictures of animals on it from which the children identify them with similar cards is also used in the classroom.

Lessons in "survival" words, e.g., "danger," "stop," "go," "ladies," "gentlemen," "poison," are also stressed in drills.

"There is no corporeal punishment, but mentally handicapped children do have to be disciplined," Mrs. Pittenger said. "If they act up, they are taken from the group; this is punishment enough," she related.

MUSIC, SHE continued, plays an important part in their lives. "We have a rhythm band with tambourines, sticks and bells. The group chooses the leader, and he in turn chooses the next band leader. The child usually selects the instrument he would prefer to play when he steps down as director rather than the child he likes."

The children were taken out to lunch in a restaurant recently, and the manager told Mrs. Pittenger that although he had entertained some misgivings about it, was pleasantly surprised. "Not one thing was spilled. He said a public school class which had been there the week before almost took the place apart."

There seems to be varying opinions as to genetic factors involved among the mentally retarded. Mrs. Pittenger said. Aside from genetic inheritance, however, brain damage at birth and that caused by lengthly high temperatures during child diseases can also contribute to the retarded condition.

IN ADDITION to the teenage volunteers, many civic clubs from the surrounding area contribute their services.

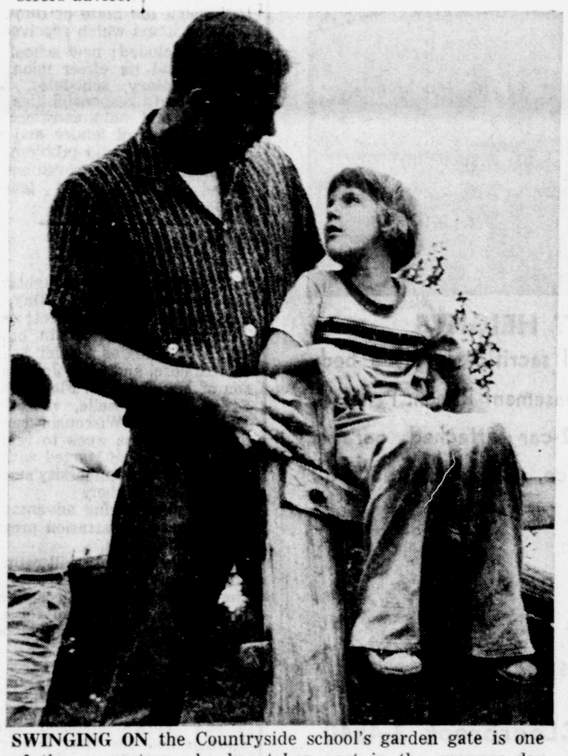
To Mrs. Pittenger, institutionalizing these children should be considered as "a last resort only if their presence is breaking up a home."

"Properly trained and given affection, however, I don't think their presence in the home has any adverse effects on the normal children in the family.

"People come here and say they feel sorry for them; there's no reason to feel sorry for them. People should feel sorry for the parents who get no help with these children." (B-8

ASTRIDE RYE, a horse which visits every Friday at the Countryside School for retarded children is one of the 16 children under the school's summer program care. Holding the reins is Pat Sanders, 14, of Palatine, who has volunteered her time to assissting at the school.

PHYSICAL COORDINATION at the Countryside school is taught by means of looms. Above, one boy concentrates on weaving while Donna Sturm, 16, of Barrington, a counselor, offers advice.



SWINGING ON the Countryside school's garden gate is one of the youngsters who has taken part in the summer day camp. Standing is Rex White, 19, of Barrington, the assistant director at the school.

They are Richard Eckert, 305 Westview st., Roselle, and Roger Steingraber, 1718 N. Mitchell, both of whom attended the course on a grant from Aetna Casualty and Surety company, developer of the new device for giving realistic behind-the-wheel training in the classroom.

A 12-car installation of the Drivotrainer will go into operation at Arlington high school this fall. (CC

by PHILIP NELSON

It wasn't the villagers of Arlington Heights who did it to me, but I was felled by a foul blow.

The insidious and treacherous foe was not to be seen. He did his work and vanished. Or so I thought. How was I to know, that, like the Fifth Column, he was boring from within?

But it wasn't until I went stone deaf that I realized that I had been betrayed.

Have you ever been deaf for three days? When not a sound could penetrate? When no single rustle of a leaf, no pounding cylinders of a motor nor blast of dual exhausts can penetrate the consciousness.

"Oh blessed, blessed night," says the poet. He didn't know the half of it.

He never watched the ball and chain threatening him, her face turning alternately blue and green, as she shouted at the top of her voice about something you had or had not done.

AND A NOD of the head and a shrug of the shoulders was all I would venture her, for I was deaf, completely so, and could watch the frustrated frau take herself off, baffled and defeated for the first time, her arms swinging, her fingers clenched.

It was the first time in the long, long history of marriage that the male member of the married clan remained completely untouched in a typical family brawl. It was the first time.

That's not all.

There was Johnny, too. You know the type, small and impish and full of vitamins and cod liver oil and pills and the ould divil.

AS IS HIS wont, when I am sitting or lying on a couch reading the Arlington Heights Herald or something similar like Plutarch's Lives or the Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire, there he is, his little benign lips beating a rapid tattoo of prattle.

"What is that, daddy? An ant? What is an ant? What is it going, daddy? Why? Where is it going? Why is it so little? Don't it like me? Why can't I pick him up? me? Why can't I play with him? Why is he crawling away from me? Why can't I pick him up What's the matter, daddy? Why can't I put him in my mouth? Daddy, Why does he taste so funny?"

The innocence of childhood. It's apparent in every gentle undulation of his chubby little arms and legs and the way he wraps himself about you when you least expect it. Uggh. Like a spider.

Eager little eyes, learning, perceiving, absorbing, soaking up. The little rat. I'll teach him to spy on me and tattle to my spouse.

But now that I'm deaf?

Here comes the friendly little monster. Chubby little arms and legs coiling, ready to spring, tiny little red lips blabbing, yapping away a mile a minute. Look at that little red tongue darting in and out like a poisonous rattlesnake.

Soundless. Not a syllable of his venomous prattle reaches me, not a whisper of his yapping little mouth. Oh, yes, his teeth are nice and shiny white and I can see the moisture on his beautiful porcelain choppers.

I CAN SEE all the way down to his restless adenoids and noisy tonsils, that keep me awake half the night. But not a breath of sound.

Heavenly virus, microscopic and insidious. Thou art compounded of all the virtues. And I am your slave. No sound mars my inner serenity. I am divorced from the harsh reality of ugly sound.

Nor does this end here.

Somehow, my olfactory nerve has become overly potent. My sense of smell is now so keen that it reaches out like the tentacles of an octopus and soaks up all of the sweetness purveyed by clover and the honeyed fragrance of flowers and carries it to me with the same appeal that must beckon to bumblebees and gnats and tiger beetles and swallowtail butterflies.

From everywhere within reach, the fragrance drifts, finally to be trapped within the clinging tendrils of my nostrils.

Ah, the rare aroma of appetizing food, which the sparring partner is cooking, the rare, delicious, aromatic, sense-rousing essence of beef stew as she cooks it and as my compensatory attributes reveal it to me.

The maddening, hunger-provoking chop-licking, spittle-producing appeal of it.

AND THEN the frustrating, repelling waste of it, as my digestive system rebels at eating and absorbing the delicacy. For each compensation, there is a counter-compensation. And I inwardly groan and I outwardly groan, still unable to hear a sound as my entire ego hungers for it, screams for it, but cannot devour it.

So, too, come the other tantalizing odors — of pizza, done to a crisp golden brown, with mushrooms and sausages and anchovies, and the fragrance of red wine, of rich, green, tossed alads drenched in oil and vinegar, of steaks broiled and smothered in onions, of mashed potatoes, yellow and swimming in butter, of roasted corn — wasted, wasted, wasted, and untasted by me.

Oh, bawdy, treacherous, lecherous villain, lurking within me, lashing your microscopic tail and multiplying, bringing your cousins and your nephews and your great-aunts.

Take back your wealth of smell and give me back my taste and my hearing, yea, even though I must hear again the sounds that blast and disturb my sleep, the yawns and the snores and the adenoidal sounds of Johnny, and his daytime tattles and prattles and yapping and his babbling and let me once again be trapped by the innocent mouthings of the good woman as she lashes me to a bubbling froth.

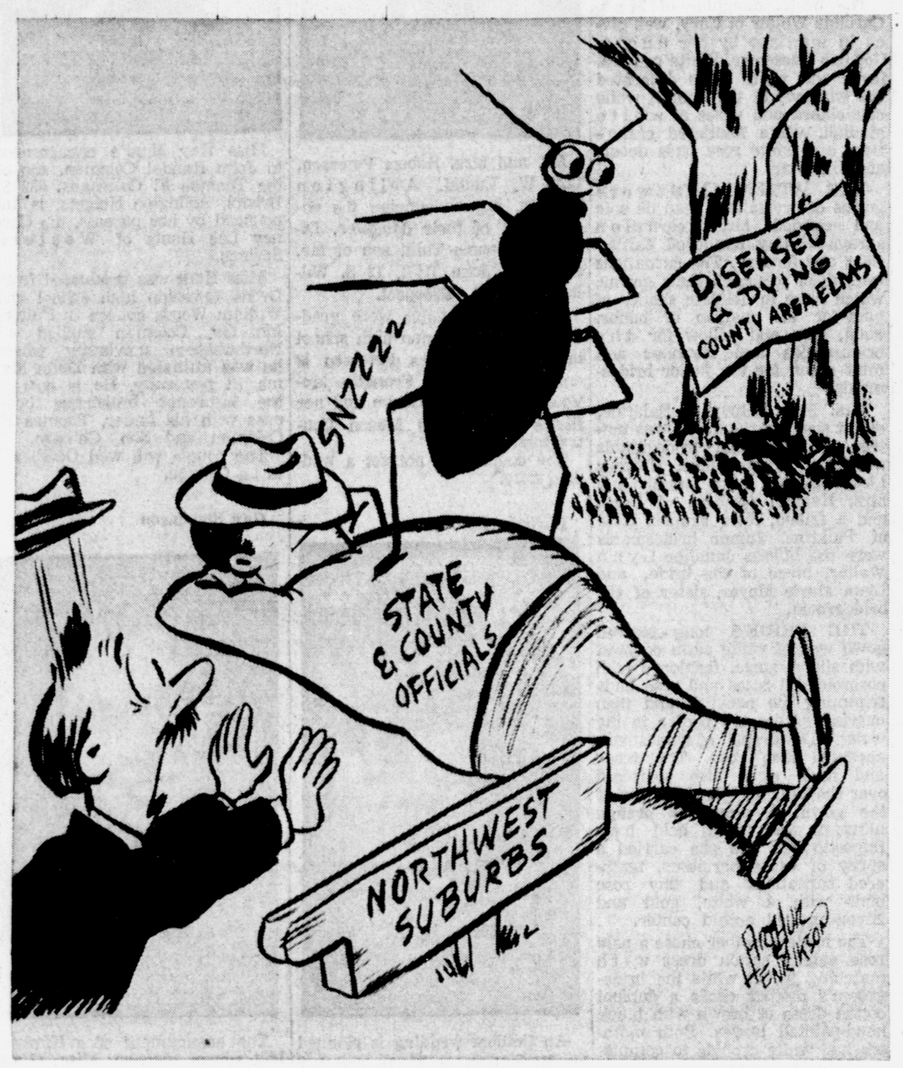
Religion in the Suburb: 'Revival' Finds a Fertile Field to Flourish

Forward!



Critics Eye Church Growth In Suburbs with Cynicism

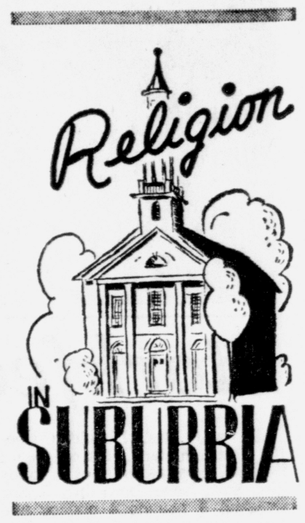
(Beginning this week, Paddock Publications will probe the successes and shortcomings of the church in the suburb in a special series of articles entitled "Religion in Suburbia." More than a year in preparation, the series will aim a searchlight of inquiry into the religious life of the northwest suburbs.)

by CHARLES HAYES

(First in a Series)

Suburban church bells may be developing hollow rings.

They are ringing louder and longer, summoning unprecedented numbers to their halls, and there are more of them than ever before—but there are signs that religion in the suburbs, as elsewhere in the nation, is in need of a frank and searching reappraisal.



Warns one eminent Protestant churchman: "Yesterday the bland led the bland throughout the land. Today conformities are beginning to be challenged everywhere and a cloud of criticism and questioning can be seen coming over the horizon."

University professor David Riesman writes: "Men go to church in increasing numbers, occasionally as in an earlier day to be respectable or to climb socially, and occasionally out of a genuine religious call, but more typically because the church, like the high school and the country club, has become a center for the family as a social and civic unit."

RELIGIOUS sociologist Will Herberg says it is "Peace of mind" that most Americans expect of religion. "Religion, in short, is a spiritual anodyne designed to allay the pains and vexations of existence."

Declaring that vulgarization of religion today takes many forms, Dr. Harold E. Fey, editor of The Christian Century magazine, says these include "the peace of mind cult, the Man Upstairs kind of sentimentality, the nationalistic notion that God is Uncle Sam in a different set of whiskers the superstition-mongers, the psychologizers, and the mass revivalists.

"The current American fashion of religiosity . . . is the greatest single peril faced by valid religion," continues Dr. Fey. "It spreads a thin veneer of piety over millions whose church membership is nothing more than social conformity. It throws its approval over a statistically intoxicated revivalism whose standard of success is the number of card-signing conversions it makes of people who are already church members in most cases."

A NOTED sociologist has observed: "Religious pitchmen in pulpits take the natural cravings for peace of mind and the good life and reduce these to what has come to be known in the trade as successful or confident living. This is the kind of sermon that sends the congregation forth with a glow of self-satisfaction."

The signs of the return to religion in America are to be found everywhere. It is one of the best publicized phenomena of 20th century America, and the nation's newspapers, magazines, radio and television programs uncritically herald the boom.

The religious revival has found fertile fields in the new suburbs.

And the multitudes of ex-urbanites pouring into the suburban villages are being greeted by open-armed congregations.

"There is a fierce sense of competition among churches," charges one clergyman. "Many new members are being accepted by churches in a superficial manner which does not guarantee that they are thoroughly acquainted with the teachings of Christianity. There's an increasing tendency to adopt the attitude that it really doesn't matter what one believes so long as one is sincere."

C. WRIGHT MILLS, noted author and professor, recently wrote: "For the cheerful robots of the mass society, religion is a religion of good cheer and glad tidings. That it is a religion without dreary religious content is less important than that it is socially brisk and that it is not spiritually unsettling. It is a getting chummy with God, a respectable distraction from the sourness of life."

The "return to religion" has had astonishing results.

Denominational memberships are swelling by the tens of thousands. New Protestant church buildings are going up at a rate of one every four hours in the United States. Last year more than $1 billion was spent on church construction, more than $2.1 million of that in Chicago's northwest suburbs alone.

Scores of sprawling new subdivisions are luring congregations eager for growth. The number of Protestant churches in the northwest area has tripled since 1950.

The Catholic church spent $68 million in building new suburban churches in the Chicago area between 1950 and 1955.

THE RETURN to religion has inspired a flurry of new church construction, most of it "modern" in architecture and incorporating as standard equipment such things as cribs for infants, parking lots, soft drink bars, dance floors, foam rubber pew cushions, and air conditioning. Church kitchens are being equipped with television conducts and built-in public address systems. Motion picture screens and projection booths and the latest lighting techniques are being added. Rheostat controls in some churches are used to change lights for psychological effects.

New problems are arising as a result of the suburbs' rapidly changing religious makeup. One leading Protestant clergyman said recently that the image of a Protestant domain in the suburbs is swiftly vanishing. "At the present rate of growth, there's the inevitability of Catholic domination."

Representing no more than a tenth of the suburban populace less than a score years ago, Roman Catholics now comprise nearly half the total population in northwest suburbs—and more than half in some communities.

This influx of Roman Catholics suggests that suburbs are in danger of becoming overchurched with Protestant congregations and that many Protestant bodies have been unrealistic about the move to suburbs.

OTHER CHANGES are taking place. For example, northwest suburbs are now experiencing the first real migration of Jews. The area's first Hebrew congregation was organized two years ago.

Sidney Smith, 18th century English clergyman, wrote that "It is always right that a man should be able to render a reason for the faith that is within him."

Critics of organized religion often cite what they term an appalling ignorance among church members about their church and its beliefs.

And it is certainly true that mistrust and bigotry among persons of different religions is based on a lack of knowledge and understanding. This series will begin, therefore, with three articles probing into the background of Catholicism, Protestantism, and Judaism to help us understand the problems and changes taking place in suburban religion.

Next Week: What is Catholicism?

The Way We See It

Elm Blight Breeding In Countryside Areas

Each year in our suburban area, the towns and villages spend thousands of dollars cutting down trees infected with Dutch elm and other diseases.

Many of the individual residents of these communities spend hundreds of dollars having diseased trees removed from their yards.

The towns have ordinances establishing fines for any home owner who permits infected trees to stand on his property. The laws are enforced by trained inspectors who regularly make the rounds checking for diseases.

After several years of cutting, trimming, and inspecting one might presume that the threat of disease would disappear.

Through diligent work on the part of local governments, the yearly tree toll has dropped. But it is far from eliminated.

The threat still exists in our suburbs because the state, county, and township governments have stood by while the villages and towns waged their private war against the blight.

A cursory inspection of the road right-of-ways outside our incorporated communities will bear this out.

Take a Sunday drive out Algonquin or Golf rds. (state routes 62 and 58), go south of Palatine to the corner of Plum Grove rd. and Emerson st.; look at the trees along the roads.

You will see oaks and maples green with summer foliage, willows dipping gracefully to a stream, an elder, poplar, or pine lending its cooling shade to a picnicking family.

But, in their midst, with spindly stick-branches starkly staring at the sky, will stand a dead elm, shorn of its beauty by the killing sickness.

These trees not only detract from the rural beauty surrounding them, but also serve as nesting places for the beetles that spread the disease.

It is estimated that every Dutch elm beetle lays 600 eggs a year under the bark of infected trees. The only way to destroy the beetles is to burn the trees. As long as they are left standing, they are breeding places for the carrier.

And the carrier can and will spread the disease. What good does it do our villages and taxpayers to spend thousands of dollars a year spraying, trimming, and cutting down these once-beautiful trees if the state, county, and township run breeding grounds outside the village limits? One would hardly expect a beetle to recognize a legal barrier, and limit his travels to the country roads.

Dutch elm and the other diseases are ruining one of our most popular shade trees.

Our towns and villages have recognized the problem and have worked hard to eliminate it. It is time they got an assist from the state, county, and townships.

Suburbanites Should Have Chance to Speak on Zoning

The Cook county zoning board of appeals has announced it will begin hearings this month in various townships on the text and map of the proposed comprehensive amendment to the county zoning ordinance.

Preliminary hearings on the controversial amendment were held last month in the County building in Chicago. At that time representatives of northwest suburban communities urged that further hearings be held in the townships to be affected by the proposed amendment. They argued such hearings would give residents of the townships a better opportunity to express their views on the amendment.

And so they might had the hearings been scheduled at a convenient time for the majority of suburban residents. However, with the hearings in the suburbs scheduled during working hours it remains as before a question of losing a day's work to attend them.

It appears the zoning board of appeals is not interested in attracting record numbers. It further appears it is not interested in making it easy for suburbanites to express their opinions concerning the amendment.

It is not the purpose here to pass judgement on the amendment. It is our concern, however, that its significance should be realized and the people affected by it have an opportunity to comment upon it.

Copies of the amendment and map have been distributed by the county board to all municipalities. These are available for public inspection at some village and city halls. Municipal officials in all communities should ensure that the amendment and map are accessible to all interested parties.

An Outraged Citizenry Will Demand Action on Migrants

The general public is becoming increasingly aware of the problems of migrant farm workers.

Most recently, the Chicago Daily News published a three-part series by Robert Gruenberg which discussed the migrant situation in Cook county:

—Homes of converted boxcars, chicken houses, and shacks, standing amidst overgrown weed patches or clearings strewn with rocks and debris.

—Primitive, stinking, broken down fly-infested toilets.

—Front yards whose mud, garbage and trash are a background to the too-close privy and water pump.

—"Rooms" with dirt floors, hanging electric wires, and partitions ranging from wood to a bedspread doubled over a rope.

—No contact between the Texas Mexican migrant and his neighbors—out of fear of American ways, strangeness, or a combination of both. As a result, the Texas Mexican hardly ever sees a public health nurse; keeping kids in school is a problem.

An outraged citizenry is beginning to demand action to correct injustices and social ills permitted to flourish unchallenged for too long.

In most states, agricultural workers are still not covered by workmen's compensation laws. Farm workers are unprotected by any federal minimum wage or maximum hours legislation. Most farmers ignore the law covering Social Security benefits. In Illinois, there are critical needs in housing, education, and recreation which are unmet. There is a shocking disregard for child labor laws among farmers. Farm pressure groups have successfully blocked any attempts to establish state minimum standards of health and housing for migrants. In Cook county, farmers are excused by law from complying with county building, zoning, and health regulations.

The time has come for all decent citizens to demand progressive state and federal legislation to correct these evils.

Republican 'Reform'

Our representative in Congress, Elmer J. Hoffman, in his ambition to become governor of Illinois, evidently has decided to run against Joe Tumpach, the DuPage county Democratic chairman.

In his latest blast at Tumpach, Rep. Hoffman argues the cost of our new county jail would have been higher if the county board had consulted the taxpayers before buying it.

That's the standard argument of the Republicans in DuPage. "Nuts to the people. Let us decide. It's so much cheaper." It would have been so much cheaper to ignore the law requiring an election for state's attorney. It's so much cheaper to ignore the public's wishes about such things as a river conservancy district or a million-dollar jail. Why bother with referenda?

To read Hoffman's statement, you would almost think the taxpayers didn't pay for the jail; just got one thrown in free for being such good boys. "There was no extra tax for the new jail," he wrote. Baloney! What actually happened was that we were taxed for more money than was needed to pay the county's bills, including illegal claims for supervisors' per diem and expenses, etc., and wound up with an excess in the treasury which the supervisors devided to blow for a new jail.

If you tax the people for more than you need and wind up with a fine balance, it always will be cheaper to pay cash for a new improvement than to borrow for it. But if the taxpayers had been allowed to keep that million dollars they could have invested it at their own discretion and made up the difference.

Not long ago, Hoffman was bragging that he stayed out of taking sides in the state's attorney primary because he felt the voters should decide. The real reason he stayed out was because he was afraid one side of the Republican party in DuPage would get mad at him if he backed the other. He hesitated to exert leadership because his own personal stock could only go down.

The resentment of much of the DuPage Republican voters against the practices of the Republican supervisors led to the election of Bill Bauer as state's attorney. Now that the election is over, Hoffman feels it is safe to defend the supervisors with his schmoldtzy arguments. A Republican can't go wrong attacking Tumpach. It diverts attention from the real need for reform within the Republican Party.

Hoffman's blasts at Tumpach won't hurt Joe any. He is responsible only to the 206 Democratic committeemen of DuPage who are more apt to unite behind him if the Republicans hit him. As for Hoffman, he is a weak sister for party leadership. The Democrats have done more to reform the DuPage Republican party than he has.

Citizen Support

On July 1 physical examinations and immunizations were given to the migrant children at St. James summer school. These were followed by readings of the Mantoux tests, eye examinations, x-rays, dental care, letters and personal visits to the parents.

The 12 local physicans from Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine, 14 nurses from Prospect Heights, Mt. Prospect, and Palatine, the dedicated people at St. James, CFM groups, the public health department, a local dentist, pharmacist and community nurses all cooperated to make this a success. We would like to say a special "thank you" to Mrs. Hannah Wilson, Mt. Prospect school nurse, and Mrs. Thelma Carroll, the Arlington community nurse, for their invaluable advice and assistance.

You know, this is only one instance of the kindness and community spirit of these people. Our communities are very fortunate to have such citizens.

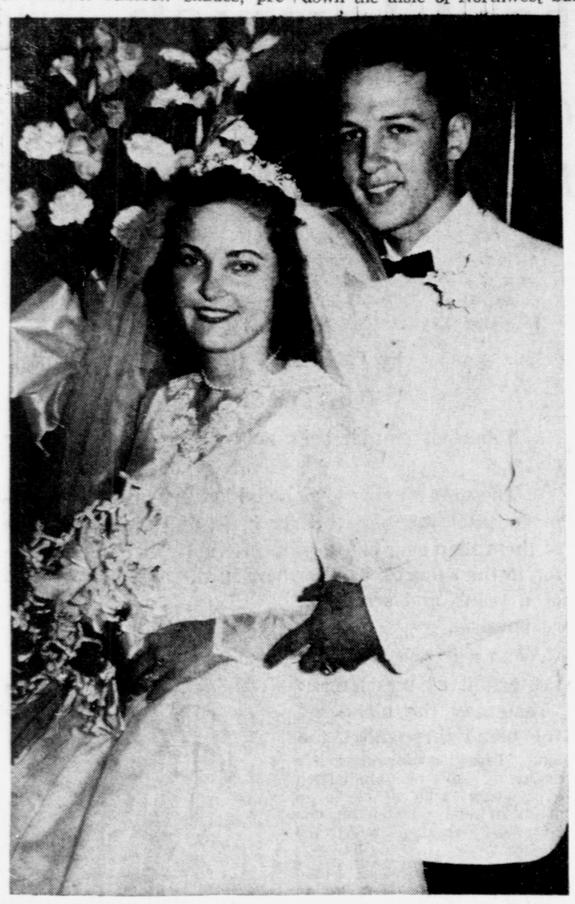
Large Wedding Party Serves Barbara Walter, Jerry Meyer

Six attendants, wearing gowns in delicate rainbow shades, preceded Miss Barbara Walter down the aisle of Northwest Suburbs Bible church on the Fourth of July when she became the bride of Jerry Lee Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Meyer, 773 S. Plum Grove, Palatine. The double ring, candlelight service took place at 8 p.m. with Rev. Emil C. Wittig officiating. Organist was Mrs. Charles Angerer and soloist was Mrs. Allen Steingraber, who sang "The Love of God," "The Lord's Prayer" and "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us."



The bride, daughter of Mrs. Caroline Walter of Cary, was given in marriage by her uncle, Gottlieb Bessemer. White candles, ferns and white bows decorated the windows of the church while candelabra and vases of white gladioli, white feathered carnations and white rose buds decorated the altar.

THE ATTENDANTS wore gowns of crystalette peau de soie and carried large carnation sprays of tiny feathered carnations and fernery. The carnations were dyed to match their gowns, which were in delicate shades of pink for the matron of honor, aqua, rose and yellow for the bridesmaids and lavendar and mint green for the junior bridesmaids.

Mrs. Milo Hotovy of Palatine, oldest sister of the bride, was matron of honor and bridesmaids were her sisters, Mrs. Howard Listhartke of Lake Zurich and Mrs. Hannah Orsborn of Cary, and a friend, Miss Francis Rose of Palatine. Junior bridesmaids were the Misses Jennifer Lynn Walter, niece of the bride, and Lynn Marie Meyer, sister of the bridegroom.

THE BRIDE'S long-sleeved gown was of white satin covered with silk organza, fashioned with embroidered roses and rose buds trimming the neckline and then curving across the bodice to the waist. "Dewdrops" of rhinestones accented each rose. The roses and buds were also scattered over the full, floor-length skirt of the gown. A crown of orange blossoms and pearls held her fingertip veil and she carried a spray of white narcissus, feathered carnations and tiny rose buds with a white, gold and silver-sprayed orchid center.

The bride's mother chose a pale rose sateen cotton dress with matching jacket while the bridegroom's mother chose a dupioni cotton dress of brown with black hand-painted leaves. Both mothers had white orchids to complement their dresses.

Ronald E. Meyer of Palatine was his brother's best man and ushers were the bride's brother, James E. Walter of Arlington Heights, Alvin Gephart, George Huber and another brother, Dennis Meyer, all of Palatine, and Michael Listhartke of Lake Zurich, nephew of the bride.

ONE HUNDRED FIFTY guests attended the reception held in Fellowship hall of the church, after which Mr. Meyer took his bride on a week's wedding trip to Lake Geneva.

Both Mr. Meyer and his bride were graduated from Palatine township high school. The bride is employed at the Pure Oil Co. in Arlington Heights and Mr. Meyer is stationed at Norfolk with the navy. (Jenart Studio.

Joseph Clifford Ramsdale of Pensacola, Fla., son of Rev. and Mrs. Clifford S. Ramsdale of College Springs, Iowa. The service was candlelight and double ring, and was held at 7:30 p.m. in First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights.

White stock, gladioli, roses and delphinium decorated the church altar while the pews were marked with ferns and bows. Miss Carol Kemmeren of Waterloo, Iowa, sorority sister of the bride, was soloist for the service.

The wedding service was followed by a reception in the church parlors for 150 guests, many of whom came from Iowa and as far as Minnesota and South Dakota.

THE BRIDE'S princess gown was of silk bombazine with chapel train. The bodice was fashioned with a bateau neckline, tiny shirred sleeves and a panel of lace re-embroidered with seed pearls. Her headpiece, with finger tip veil, was made of the same lace and also re-embroidered. She carried a lace handkerchief which her maternal grandmother carried on her wedding day and a bouquet of stephanotis and white roses with a white orchid center. Mr. Lommen gave his daughter in marriage.

Miss Holly Lommen was her sister's maid of honor and two sorority sisters of the bride, Mrs. Robert Fletcher of Clinton, Iowa and Mrs. Gerald Salaway of Monmouth, Ill., were bridesmaids. All attendants wore identical princess gowns of hyacinth blue organza with bow hats of the same material. They carried colonial bouquets of pink and white sweetheart roses.

Just Around the Corner from Patty McArdle

Pan American Summer

Dear Peg:

A few days ago I attended a very nice luncheon in the Chicago Athletic Club, the purpose of which was to acquaint the members of the various publications with the plans for the Seminar Program to precede the Pan American Games, during the Festival of the Americas.

Following the creamed chicken on pattie shell and the fresh peach sundae, Colonel Jack Reilly, executive director of the Festival spoke to the group on behalf of Mayor Daley who was not able to attend, and introduced Dean Charles Caveny, Chairman of the University of Illinois Chicago Undergraduate Division. Dean Caveny gave a brief outline of the schedule of the lectures and a little background information about each of the speakers.

The five day Seminar, a combination of lecture and panel discussion, will be held every day from 2:15 to 5 p. m., August 10-14 at Northwestern University's Thorne Hall on Lake Shore Drive. The 40 scholars from Latin America, Canada, and the United States, all highly qualified to speak on their various subjects including: education, cultural arts, international affairs and social and political science, will stay at the Lake Shore Club while they are in Chicago.

According to Dean Caveny, "ideas and experience in education will be exchanged, examined, evaluated and shared by these scholars. The seminar discussions and lectures will be held with a view toward finding an approach to eliminating areas of misunderstanding and friction in the Western Hemisphere."

The public is encouraged to attend these sessions, free of charge (however, in the case of the "weeklies," the luncheon and announcement was held too late to be of much value in encouraging their readers to attend the Seminar.)

I felt, when I left the meeting that this amount of publicity, even though it appears in the daily papers immediately, is too little too late. Maybe everyone else has been aware of this Seminar—I haven't—although I've read a good deal about the Pan American Games. I think for the amount of money it will cost Chicago for transportation and housing of the visiting scholars ($10,000.00) it should have had a great deal more notice. Also, for the public to attend during the week at such inconvenient hours, seems like poor planning to me. I would think the Seminars would have had better attendance had they been held for two days, over a weekend, when at least one member of a family would be free to attend.

My impression of the whole affair, from listening to Col. Reilly and from reading the release given to all attending the luncheon, was that the participants, all or the majority Phd.'s from their various universities, would discuss the problems confronting the people of this hemisphere and intelligently arrive at such academic conclusions as: the problems can be solved through proper education of all peoples in all lands, etc. I truly can't imagine any startling decisions being reached by a group of educators all deeply interested in and devoted to the same principles of education. It seems to me, when most of the countries represented are countries not only influenced but often governed by young patriots and rebels and younger students, that a seminar of representatives selected from the student body of the colleges and universities of these countries would surely be more stimulating and perhaps a great deal more revealing.

My love,
Patty.

A Hot House Flower Withers

No matter how you slice me, I remain a hot house flower. Years ago I may have been the outdoorsy type, but time and soft living have certainly taken their toll. Quite a few of my young are emulating my example.

Off to the North Woods we went with heads held high, spirits high and the car piled high. Back from the North Woods we came and the only thing that wasn't dragging was the pile of luggage on top of the car. That was still high.

No sooner had we arrived at our primitive destination than a daughter flushed her face and informed me she had an earache. Her face was the only thing in the whole place that did flush, by the way. So we found her a physicoan who plied her with antibiotics and she started on the road to recovery.

So I went out and caught a fish. Less than 24 hours later a son also flushed his face, ran his nose and blew up his tonsils to impressive size. Back to the physician who shot him and sent us to the pharmacy for more expensive stuff. And, he started on the road to recovery.

So I went out and caught a fish. In the meantime, we were warned by some passing natives that the bears were pretty thick this season. As our garbag can was rifled every night, we took to going on our night excursions to our little house out in woods in large groups armed with large flashlights.

Meanwhile, down on the dock lived a snake whom we shall call Gertie. She was a garter snake. Large. First one to go out on the pier yelled to Gert that they were coming through and to get out of the way. Most of the time she obliged but she managed to make some members of the party pretty nervous.

Then I decided to get into the act and grew two of the most precious abcesses, one under each arm. This handicapped me quite a good deal. In fact, it left me almost helpless and did nothing for my sense of humor. I informed my mob that we had had it. Mama was going home and suffer in comfort. With alacrity, they packed and joined me.

I have the feeling that the North Woods and I will never make beautiful music together.

White gladioli, stephanotis and white mums decorated the church as the bride came down the aisle on the arm of her brother, Richard Peterson. She wore an imported silk organza wedding gown with a scooped neckline edged with pearl and sequin trim. The gown's empire line was accented with a flower and streamers and flowed into a full skirt. A crown of pearls held the fingertip veil in place, and the bride carried a bouquet of phlaenopsis and stephanotis.

Cheerful, Livable Home Is Goal of Most Women

Women are searching constantly for ways to make their homes more cheerful and livable.

Biggest boon to women who are weary of the drab and the plain is the new trend in home architecture which opens up a home and releases the houswife from the confines of the cubical room, a leading architect observes.

CONTEMPORARY design, featuring the exposed ceiling and utilizing structural beams for accent and ornamentation, has done much to bring new livability into the home.

The monotony of plain walls has given way to a zhole new way of life with the introduction of more wood paneled walls and ceilings, more wood built-ins, and room and space dividers.

Today's architect is using the warmth of such fine woods as west coast hemlock and western red cedar as a definite decorative device. He capitalizes on nature's inimitable handiwork as he features the ever-changing texture of these woods with their bold swirls, thir fin grain and bold swirls, their fine grain and pattern.

MORE AND more often, exposed wood is being finished in clear lacquers and varnishes which capture and retain the wood's soft, beautiful colors which make an ideal background for any decorative theme.

More than ninety per cent of women recently interviewed indicated they want a home which featured wood both inside and outside the home. (S

E. J. Worley Jr. Takes Chicago Girl as Bride

The chapel of South church, Mt. Prospect, was the scene of a double ring service at 2:30 p.m. July 5 in which Miss Jean Claire Tarr, daughter of the William Tarrs of Chicago, became the bride of Emmett James Worley Jr., son of the E. J. Worleys, 1320 W. Lincoln rd., Mt. Prospect. Rev. Ira Stevens officiated at the ceremony amid a setting of white roses. "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding March" were organ selections.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Betsy of Chicago. The bridegroom was attended by Wayne Hesch of Rolling Meadows.

A WHITE, nylon, dotted swiss dress with satin cummerbund was chosen by the bride. She also chose matching satin pumps and a shoulder-length veil held in place with a halo of nylon leaves and seed pearls. Her sister wore a pink, embroidered organdy dress with matching pink slippers and flowered hat.

Immediately following the service, a reception for the immediate families was held in Meo's Norwood House, Harwood Heights. Both mothers received in navy blue dresses with corsages of gardenias and feathered carnations.

For their wedding trip, the junfor Worleys drove to Monterey, Cal. where Mr. Worley will be stationed at Ft. Ord for the next four months. The couple has an apartment at 385 Spruce st., Pacific Grove, Cal.

Changing Schools Can Be Made Easy

The transition from school to school, whether it occurs within one school district or between states, is a major uprooting for most children. Parents can do a lot to ease the strain of a change.

Not all children react the same way to the problems raised by the shift of schools, so don't be misled by surface calmness. Instead, anticipate your child's problems, and you will help him bridge the gap between his old and new schools.

Specifically, here are some of the things you can do:

LET HIM know early that a move is in the offing. Tell him why and let him help in the planning.

If at all possible, give him a chance to visit the new school well in advance of the move. See whether he can meet the principal, the counselor, some of the teachers he's likely to have, even a few of his future schoolmates.

Avoid making your own worries known. If you fear the school may be too tough, don't say so. In any case, beware of making snap judgments.

See that the old school is prepared to ship all necessary records to the new school. Often the hapless youngster is caught in the middle of the confusion that results when this is not done.

Confer with your youngster's current teacher and principal about his work and problems so that you will be in a position to discuss them with his new teacher. (Soc

Simple Lines Need Accent

The simple, subtle, smooth planes of today's architecture sometimes demand decorative relief, a prominent west coast architect observes.

Rough textures and shadow lines are two very effective devices used outside the home, the inside and outside the home, he points out.

The most easily obtained textures and shadow lines, he insists, are achieved with wood, for all lumber comes in broad or narrow vertical or horizontal patterns.

Both structural components in a home, the architect observed, as well as exterior skin, offer a wide variety of possibilities for decorative effect. Siding in any of the popular species such as Douglas fir, west coast hemlock or western red cedar can be bought in planed or rough texture. A wide variety of finishes can be used to emphasize shadow lines, as well as the grain and texture of the wood.

By leaving structural rafters, posts and roof timbers exposed, asditional contrast can be achieved to break the sleek smoothness of contemporary design.

Pancake Omelet Ideal For Cool Supper Menu

by LOIS SEILER

Here is a cool luncheon or supper suggestion for a hot summer day.

It is a delicious fruit topped pancake omelet which is just as tasty as it is nourishing.

The recipe for this omelet has been shared with us by Mrs. Richard P. Kruse of Arlington Heights. It is one of her hot weather favorites which she often uses for luncheon or Sunday night suppers. You may also wish to keep this recipe in mind for the Lenten season.

THIS PANCAKE omelet, made with a pancake mix, is cooked in a skillet and then browned under the broiler. It is folded in half, filled with cottage cheese and topped with fresh or frozen berries. Although any berry may be used, Mrs. Kruse prefers frozen strawberries.

She serves the omelet with a pot of tea, and because it is filling as well as sweet, she often omits a dessert. However, if a dessert is desired, Mrs. Kruse recommends fresh fruit or sherbet.

In addition to cooking, this homemaker enjoys gardening, sewing and cooking as hobbies. She is a memer of Delta Iota Mu Alumnae club and the family attends St. Mark's Lutheran church.

The Kruses moved from Chicago over a year ago to their home at 2123 E. Park in Arlington Heights. They have two children: Kathy, 11, and Johnny, who is 6.

Fruit Topped Pancake Omelet

3 egg yolks
3 eg whites
¾ cup milk
1 cup pancake mix (plain or buttermilk)
1 tablespoon margarine or butter.
Cottage cheese
Fresh or frozen berries.

Set broiler at 350 degrees.

Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Combine with milk. Add to pancake mix, stirring until smooth.

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into pancake mixture.

Melt margarine or butter in a 9 or 10 inch cast iron skillet. Pour omelet into hot pan and cook over direct heat until bottom of omelet is golden brown, about 3 minutes.

Place skillet with omelet under broiler, about 3 inches from source of heat, for 3 or 4 minutes or until omelet top is delicately browned.

Remove to warm platter. Spread cottage cheese over half of omelet. Fold and top with fresh or frozen berries and serve immediately.

Serves 2 to 3.

DELICIOUS FRUIT-FILLED pancake omelet, tasty and nourishing for a cool luncheon or supper, is popped in the oven by Mrs. Richard Kruse of Arlington Heights. Her recipe for this tempting dish is provided by food editor Lois Seiler in this week's "Successful Homemaking" column.

Peaches are Easy, Good Fruit for Home Canning

Plump peaches are versatile fellows. They always taste good fresh. And when canned they're still flavorful, nutritious and a colorful addition to cereals, salads or desserts.

Peaches are one of the easiest and best fruits to can. And Elbertas, which are now plentiful, are a good variety for home canning. For a fine-quality product, Geraldine Acker, University of Illinois foods specialist, says to select firm-ripe peaches that are uniform in quality. They should have a creamy background color; green shows that the fruit is not ripe.

IT TAKES two or three pounds of fresh peaches for one quart of canned fruit.

Although either a hot or raw pack is satisfactory for canning, the hot pack will be more solid because the fruit shrinks in the first heating.

For the hot pack, simmer peaches 3 to 5 minutes in sugar sirup. But don't cook until soft. Pack into containers, placing cut side down and overlapping the layers for uniform appearance. Fill containers with boiling sirup. Process in a boiling water bath 20 minutes for pints and 25 minutes for quarts.

FOR THE RAW pack, place peach halves pit side down in jars, making a firm, uniform pack. Cover with boiling thin, medium or heavy sugar sirup. Process in boiling water bath 25 minutes for pint jars and 30 minutes for quart jars.

Here's HAUGH to Plan a Party

by DOLORES HAUGH

A State Fair Affair

The time is near when in rural areas the main topic of interest and conversation is the Sate Fair, so plan a State Fair Affair. It can be your last cook out of the season and if your neighbor has been bragging about his garden he can bring his prize produce and prove his point.

Invitations

Make three bright colored construction paper pennants and string them on heavy cord so that when stretched out, the attractions such as 4-H, Cooking, Sewing, Horseracing, Pie Baking Contest, etc. can be viewed with ease. On the center flag write the following:

By cracky and a Howdy Do?
You agoin' to to the State Fair too?
Farmer Jones - host's name - and wifey too
Invite you to a home cooked dinner.

State time, place and enclose an entry blank and self addressed envelope, thus letting you know how many guests to plan for an also what catagories will be displayed. The entry blank should have name of each participant, and the classifications, such as, vegetables, flowers, sewing, baking, canning, livestock; for teenagers, or younger, stuffed animals, but be prepared for your guest's imaginations - mules, turtles and grasshoppers, can be slippers, candy or a cocktail, you know.

STATE RIBBON awards: blue first; red second; white third. Mention that the pie blue ribbon winner, the hostess, will welcome competition, entries to serve as dessert. You may want to have a box dessert auction. Put all instructions on the entry blank so you know just what will be available and plan your decorations accordingly. Be sure and have an entry deadline allowing you time to plan.

Decorations

Prepare your fine "State of a Fair" ahead of time. When you tally up the entries you will know how many booths or tables, signs and awards you must make. Use pennants, lots of bright crepe paper, flood lights, and have all the ribbons and classes labeled so that when guests arrive they can deposit them at the proper catagory.

Have name-tags with entry's name so everyone will know each other and have the guests deposit their names in a hat from which the impartial judges will be chosen. Have "judge" badges made from large cardboard circles and have orange ribbons so they can be spotted as judges. The award ribbons should be attached to a card for each category so awards can be made easily. Use notary gold seals and ribbons or paper cut to look like ribbons in red, blue and white, and one grand champion all in gold, blue and white.

IF YOU WANT to, you can go into as much detail as you wish. Have a peek show, midway, popcorn, appletaffies, anything that would go with the idea of a fair.

If you are using this for a teen age party have a lot of participation games set up; that is, feed the kitty or horseshoe pitching. If you need help with the games, decorations or prizes, just call CI-3-3996 and a party counselor will assist you in making your party a big afFAIR. Ask your guests to come in calicoes and overalls, straw hats and sunbonnets.

Menu

You will want to be as free of work as possible so you can enjoy the evenings activities so plan a menu that can be waiting in and on the stove. Start off with a stand of "Homegrown Licker." Make punch and place in jugs labeled McDonald's Snake Bite Medicine, Blue Ribbon Corn or Winner 1899. Let the guests help themselves, use paper cups.

A SUGGESTED menu would be jugs of tomato juice, baked ham, baked sweet potatoes, tossed salad, relishes, hot rolls, butter, homemade jellies, hot corn on the cob, homemade relishes and watermelon pickles, and lots of coffee. Let the guests serve themselves buffet style. The dessert, of course will be the pies later in the evening after the judging so better check on how the coffee is holding out.

Use a scarecrow, Indian corn or just garden vegetables and flowers for a centerpiece. Tin plates and cups or paper ones but keep the work for yourself at a minimum.

Entertainment

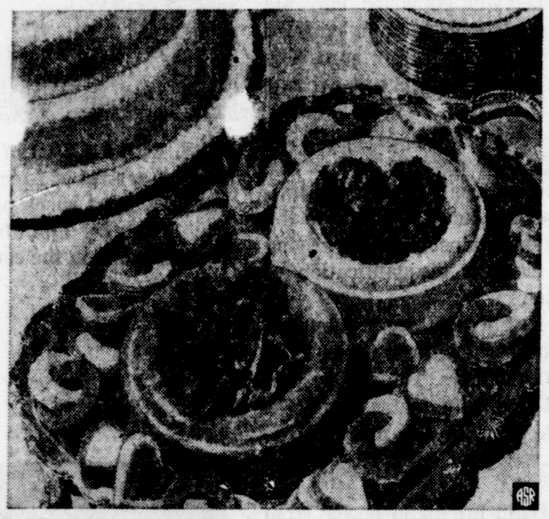
Your entertainment will start the moment the guests start to arrive. Your hi-fi can provide backgrund carnival type music and everyone will be putting their entries around in the proper booths and you will be getting the name tags and judges lined up and ready. Just let the guests browse around for a while, laughing and comparing entries. Serve your dinner and at a lull announce the lucky Judges, rules, and that judge's opinions are final.

AFTER DINING and drinking is over, let the group accompany the judges from booth to booth. Have the games set up such as horseracing, horseshoe pitching and bingo, all going at the same time for those who do not want to follow the judges.

Conduct a pie eating contest if you have too many pies.

WIND UP THE evening with the announcement of the winners and the awarding of the costume awards, and grand champion winner with the most blue ribbons. Have prizes for games or use a point system with large prizes, or have inexpensive items like pencils, corn cob pipes, bandana handkerchiefs, canes, balloons at each attraction. Other booths could be basketball tosses, dart games, hitting the clown with wet sponges. Last but not least, a dessert auction with proceeds to a favorite church or charity.

Guests will all go home with blue ribbons, happy humors, full tsmmies nad hheytwi, tummies, and they will be saying "Let's make this an annual State Fair!"



The double-ring marriage ceremony suggests the decor of the wedding reception table. Here, the ring artistry is achieved by using unflavored gelatine to mold two kinds of chicken salad.

One ring combines diced cooked chicken with pineapple and celery in a consomme base. The second one has chicken, green pepper and celery in a creamy base. The chicken and other ingredients are fully savored because unflavored gelatine offers no competing taste.

Chicken and Pineapple Ring

2½ cups cold chicken stock, divided
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup lemon juice
1 can (14 ounces) crushed pineapple
3 cups diced cooked chicken
½ cup diced celery

Sprinkle gelatine on 1 cup of the cold chicken stock in saucepan to soften. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in remaining 1½ cups stock, salt, lemon juice and pineapple. Chill until the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Stir in chicken and celery. Turn into a 5-cup ring mold; chill until firm. Unmold; fill center with salad greens.
Yield: 12 servings.

Chicken and Vegetable Ring

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
1¾ cups cold chicken stock
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1½ cups mayonnaise or salad dressing
3 cups diced cooked chicken
½ cup diced green pepper
1 cup diced celery

Sprinkle gelatine on 1 cup of the chicken stock in saucepan to soften. Place over low heat; stir until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat; add remaining ¾ cup chicken stock, salt and lemon juice. Cool; gradually stir into mayonnaise. Stir in chicken, green pepper and celery. Turn into a 5-cup ring mold; chill until firm. Unmold, fill center with salad greens.
Yield: 12 servings.

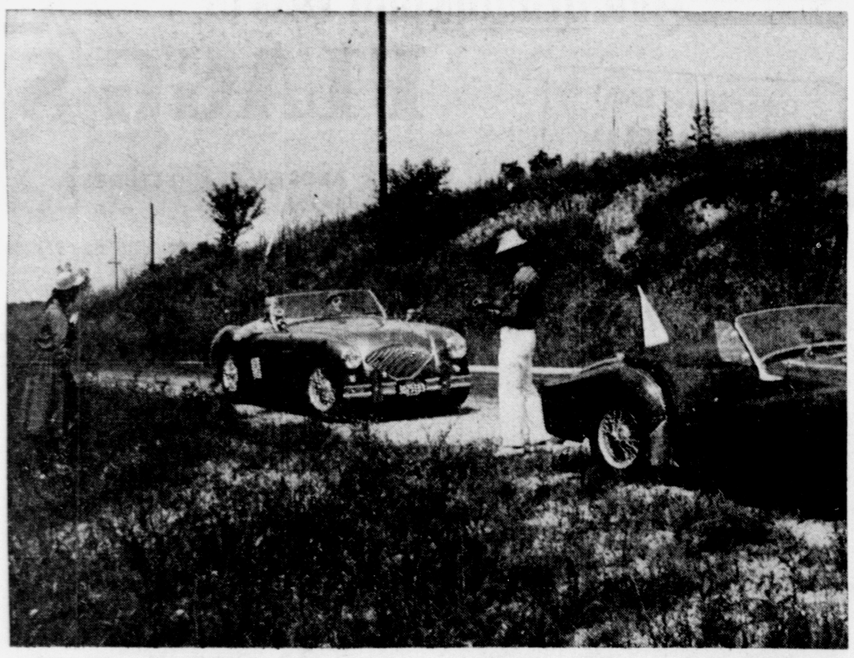
FULL-TIME SCHOOL teacher and part-time mechanic, Barbara Walls of Chicago checks under hood of her 1953 MGTD MK II prior to start of rally. Barbara navigated while her mother drove. A sports-car enthusiast for two years, she does all of her own mechanical work. She recently placed first in a concourse (clean car contest) at Elkhart, Wisconsin.

READY TO RALLY, "Sans Cheval" Sports Car Club members check last minute details at Gate No. 1 at Meadowdale Raceways. Each car will be manned by a driver and a navigator who will attempt to negotiate the rally course at an average speed of 34 m.p.h. A test of computing skill rather than a race, the course covered 180 miles.

A Sunday Afternoon's Fun in the Sun---A Sports Car Rally



TOM FAUST of Palatine mans second check point on State Line rd. in Wisconsin. Flag on rear of his Triumph is signal to participants in rally to stop. Time of arrival and speedometer reading of cars is taken at each check point. Last entrants may open panic envelope, with a resulting loss of points, telling them how to find check point.

Photos and copy by Bill Dulaney

No Speeding Allowed Or Be Disqualified

A couple of Sundays ago a Palatine man and his wife made a wrong turn off U. S. 14, and proceeded to drive in circles for nearly an hour, scorning maps and service stations where they could have easily obtained directions.

Not delirious from the heat or seeking buried treasure, these asphalt aficionados were participating in a rally, one of the most popular forms of diversion for the sports-car owner.

LIMITED INITIALLY to the wealthy, the sports-car is rapidly accelerating its way into the American garage as a second car, both for purposes of practicality and entertainment. It's easy to park, easy to handle, uses little gas, and, when entered in a rally, provides unique tests of skill.

A rally is not a race. It is a mathematical exercise whose solution requires the proper ratio of time, speed, and distance.

With circular slide rules, stop-watches (some use as many as three), and pencil, paper, and clipboard, entrants drive at prescribed average speeds over a route outlined by written instructions they have never before seen. The winner is the car that scores closest to the preset average time.

TO DISCOURAGE SPEEDING average speeds are set at from 30 to 40 miles an hour. Penalty points are levied if a contestant finishes the rally course in less than the preset time. A further precaution against reckless driving adopted by many sports-car clubs is disqualification of any car receiving a traffic ticket.

Pictures on this page are of a northwest suburban sports-car club named "Sans Cheval," (without horse). The club, formed in 1957, boasts 30 members. The majority of cars are manned by husband and wife teams, with the wives doing the navigating. A third of the members do their own mechanical work.

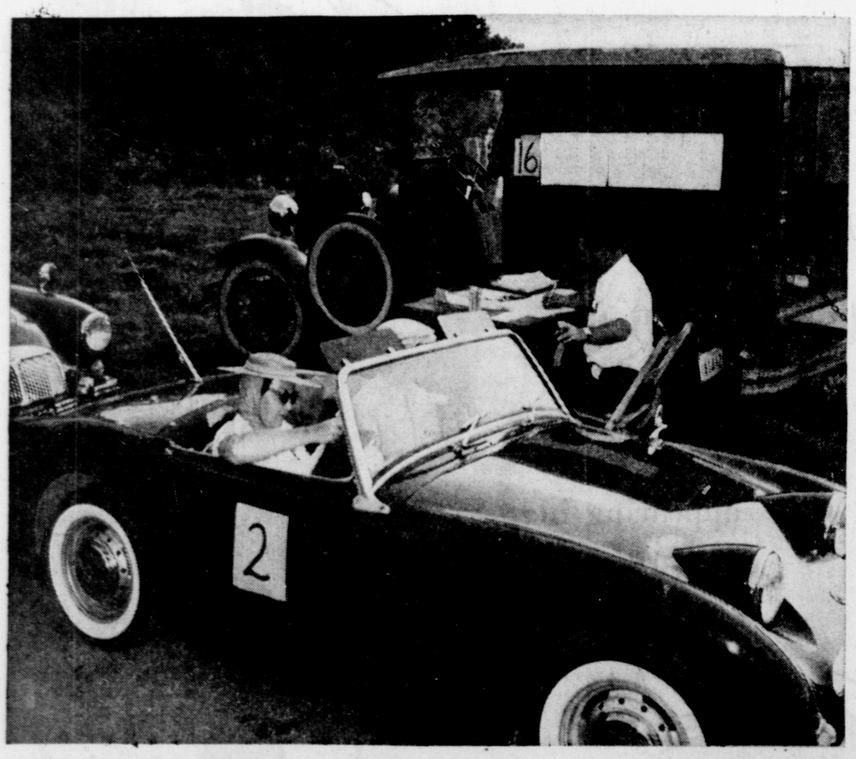
MEMBERS' CARS RANGE in price and power from the Austin-Healy Sprite at $1,935 with a top speed of 85 m.p.h. to the Jaguar XK 150S at $5,245 with a top speed of 130 m.p.h.

Speed and power, however, are of little significance in a rally, with small cars often coming in first. But first or last, rally enthusiasts will tell you there's nothing like spending a sunny Sunday afternoon spinning through a maze of country roads.

MRS. BOB LAYER of Palatine records time of arrival of Austin Healy at Harvard, Ill., first check point of rally. The car, driven by Phil Harwood of Elgin, placed second in the competition. A Jaguar won first place honors. Drivers and navigators were given a 20 minute rest stop at this check point, before proceeding north to Wisconsin line.



A 1928 MODEL A FORD contrasts with slick Austin Healy Sprite at finish line north of Algonquin on Fox river. Scores of earlier arrivals are posted on side of truck. Wrong turns brought one car in at dusk several hours late.

STUDYING INSTRUCTIONS FOR their first rally are William and Orpha Hodge of Palatine. Their red MGA was a "Christmas present from ourselves to ourselves," says the mother of three, who serves as navigator in the rally.

TIRED TEAMS OF drivers and navigators swap sports-car stories at traditional after-rally dinner. All participants received dashboard plaques, with the top five cars getting special plaques.

Clerical Postscript on Mental Health

By MARTIN MARTY

The series of articles on mental health by Richard Hoffmann which this newspaper prepared and carried during recent weeks did us all a service.

It showed some of the opportunities for care in our area—and it showed how far we have to go before we can take care of needs in this booming region. Further reflection on his last article, which related religion to mental health, moved me, after many months, to use this space for a "plug" once again, a plug for the institutional side of religious life hereabouts. Hoffmann's work dealt with the acute side of mental illness. What can religion do for the more nearly normal pace of problem and possibility?

IN WESTERN society "religion" has known at least four relations to mental problems. First was a religious interpretation of all mental illness in demonic terms. People who were different were possessed of demons. A second relationship saw religion helping produce mental disease, by laying impossible weights and threats, compulsions and obsessions on people's consciences. The third phase, which saw the rise of secular analysis and therapy, found religion mistrustful. But today, with such widespread acceptance of this secular interpretation, eligible is tempted to abdicate responsibility for cure. It is so easy for ministers to dial the M.D. or the psychiatrist — both overburdened men—and unload time-consuming human problems on them.

Two recent events have suggested to me that we would do well to recover the specifically religious role of the mental health quest.

Speaking to Veterans' Administration chaplains in St. Louis two weeks ago, I was moved by the subtlety and sophistication of their "bounce-back."

They know how to cooperate with medical men—their vocation depends on it. They also know that they must minister with specifically religious help.

The other event was my reading of a manuscript by a University of Illinois psychologist in which he chided churchmen for abdicating, for playing the role of psychiatrist—when the pastoral ministry is needed in mental health situations.

RELIGION NO longer drives people to mental disease by overburdening the conscience; if it does this is accidental or the product of special teaching of a small and compulsive sect.

But religion is still at the base of many human problems: wrong conceptions of God, difficulties in finding meaning and purpose in life, etc. Dr. Carl Jung (no special hero of mine) is probably correct when he says that religion is somehow involved in the mental problems of all his patients over the age of 35. The new novel, "The Thirteenth Apostle" puts it well: some people feel called, but not chosen. The quest for meaning in its religious dimension is often frustrated.

In this setting aren't we poised to see, once again, where the pastor or priest as counsellor has his place? I can list six assets, immediately. First, universality. Wherever there is a church, a worshipping and working community, there is a potential mental health center —we do not need new institutinos in our suburbs in this respect.

Second, most churches are equipped by men who undertake lengthy professional training (I'm not much more retarded than most, and I was in school continuously from 1933-1956, 11 years after high school, seven after college), most of it dealing with relating human problems to the divine word. This professional training improves with the years. Older ministers with less schooling are often well equipped through experience—if they are alert to the changing times.

Third, they may and must place human problems into a most serious orbit. Pastoral counselling is to be absolutely confidential; even a Protestant minister's wife is never to share its content. If she does, her huspand, per se, is unequipped to counsel, and people will not seek him out. The relationship is so serious because the minister is approached not just as a buddy or a friend but for a role: a "steward of the mysteries of God."

Fourth, the minister is accessible—a telephone call away.

Where else in society is unlimited service without any charge or obligation just a phone call away?

Fifth, an ongoing relationship is possible. Minister and "client," because there has been no commercial relationship, can continue to have contact; there can be follow through with less chance for lapse.

FINALLY, the minister no matter his age, gains perspective by compressing experiences into his years: he sees life constantly in its eternal dimension, is intimately involved in the personal side of interpreting birth, maturity, marriage, illness, death.

Ministers are still paying for the follies of their fathers who often chased people away through terrifying interpretations and prideful judgments of human problems. Laymen and unchurched people are still paying for their folly; turning, too late, for help. Isn't it time to end the impasse? The church announcement page of the Paddock papers print a few dozen nice phone numbers for a start.

New Bank Receives Its State Charter

The Bank of Arlington Heights received its state charter last week, according to W. C. Wolf, president. Having assembled capital funds totaling $510,000 and meeting all the requirements of the Illinois Banking Act, a charter was issued to the bank by Conrad F. Becker, director of financial institutions, State of Illinois, and delivered at informal ceremonies in Chicago August 6.

Representing the Director were Ora D. Dillavou, assistant director and Harold M. Durst, examiner. John Henricks, chairman of the board of the bank, and W. C. Wolf, president, received the charter on behalf of the shareholders.

OWNED SUBSTANTIALLY by local interests, the list of charter shareholders is made up of over 10 members of the community, according to Wolf. In addition to Henricks, Arlington Heights feed dealer, the board of directors includes William H. Ball, Robert M. Calvin, Dr. Keith G. Wurtz, Stephen Jurco, and Richard H. Sampson.

Construction of the new bank quarters in the Arlington Market shopping center, Kensington rd. and Dryden ave., began July 27 with completion scheduled for December 1. The building will include drive-in facilities, ample parking, and lobby space designed to provide quick convenient service, while emphasizing the privacy of customer transactions. (ACM

'Sweatshop under the Sun' Is Sunday Topic at Countryside

Rev. Dortha Ann Weaver will be guest speaker at 10 a.m. Sunday at the Countryside Universalist Fellowship, Roselle. Her topic will be "Sweatshops Under The Sun."

Miss Weaver is head of the ministry to migrant workers in the midwest area for the National Council of Churches.

An ordained minister of the Congregational - Christian Churches, now the United Church of Christ, Miss Weaver began her career as a public school teacher. Deciding to go into religious work on a full time basis, she studied at the Hartford theological seminary foundation's school of religious education, majoring in religious education. Following her graduation from the Hartford institution she served the Upper Mississquoi Congregational parish, Vermont, and later the Jericho center, Vermont, Congregational church. Miss Weaver was also a curriculum editorfortheVermont ulum editor for the Vermont State Council of Churches. She has been in her present post for the past four years.

COUNTRYSIDE Fellowship's minister, Albert F. Harkins, and Miss Weaver were classmates at the Hartford institution.

Following Miss Weaver's sermon-address there will be a discussion period, thus affording those in attendance an opportunity to participate more fully and personally in the service of the day. A coffee and fellowship hour will climax the morning.

Though formal church school sessions are in recess until Sunday after Labor day, provisions are made for supervised play and baby-sitting for small children whose parents are attending the worship service.

Countryside Universalist Fellowship, an affiliate of The Council of Liberal Churches (Universalist - Unitarian), holds its services in the Parkside public school, Maple and Howard sts., Roselle. (A-13

Menasha Skulnik In New Comedy

MENASHA SKULNIK

Menasha Skulnik, the clowning genius who broke all records last year at the Edgewater Beach Playhouse, returns Monday, Aug. 17, in a new comedy prior to Broadway, "The Law and Mr. Simon." It will play nightly through September 6.

For more than 25 years, Comedian Skulnik—with a style that is his own as much as Jimmy Durante's belongs to him — has been a great name on the Yiddish musical stage and, more recently, as a Broadway marquee lure in such plays as Clifford Odets' "The Flowering Peach," "The Fifth Season" and "Uncle Willie"—his smash hit show at the Playhouse last year when the theatre filled every seat at all performances.

JULIE VERNS, who wrote "Uncle Willie," has fashioned a story about an immigrant bookbinder who has a great reverence for the law. Anna Roman is right at home as the bookbinder's warm-hearted wife for she, offstage, is Mrs. Skulnik. She has not been seen on the stage in Chicago for many years.

Others in the cast include Zell Sloane. Direction is by Stanley man, Frank Baxter and Mannie DeCyr, Guy Repp, Lenore Love-Prager. (Bill

by ROBERTA LEE

Q. What can be done when a wedding has been called off, and the invitations have already been issued?

A. Notes or printed cards should be mailed out. There is no need for explanation, as it is nobody else's affair. The cards may say: "Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Leigh announce that the marriage of their daughter, Grace Anne, to Mr. Thomas F. Jackson will not take place."

Q. When lettuce, parsley or watercress is placed around an item of food as a garnish, is it proper to eat this?

A. Certainly, it is, if the garnish is a part of your individuval service. But you should not mar the appearance of a serving dish by plucking out some of its garnish.

Q. What apology should one make after a sudden sneeze in public?

A. "Pardon me" is sufficient.

Q. When chicken pie or something similar is served in an individual baking dish in a public eating place, how should it be eaten?

A. Usually these dishes are placed beside your plate, you help yourself to half the contents at a time, allowing the remaining half to keep hot in the baking dish.

'WAY BACK WHEN'

To Close Cloverdale Post Office (in 1949)

10 YEARS AGO
July 29, 1949

The recent death of Albert Beutler, a member of one of the pioneer families of Palatine, brought back memories to many old timers. Albert Beutler was one of eight children. Born in Chicago Aug. 20, 1871. In the early 80's he came to Palatine, where he grew up, attended public school and graduated from Palatine high school with the class of 1887 at the age of 16. Intead of going to college, Beutler worked for a short time for the Campbell Company now the Arlington Seating Company. Later he was employed at Western Electric in Chicago. He was sent to London, England by the company to their factory there. While in England he met the young lady who later became his wife. He was a charter member of the Palatine Athletic Club, member of the Palatine Military Band, Palatine Lodge No. 314 AF & AM of which he was a member for over 50 years.

Cloverdale

A public service which has existed in Cloverdale for over 62 years will come to an untimely end Sunday when the Cloverdale post office closes. The need of a post office in Cloverdale was first realized in 1887 and that year Charles Tedrahn was appointed the first postmaster. His was the first of three generations of Tedrahns who would run the Cloverdale post office which occupied a small corner in Tedrahn's grocery store. Charles Tedrahn served as postmaster for 25 years, until he moved to Wheaton in 1912. His son Walter held that post until he died in 1944. Evelyn Tedrahn became the third generation of Tedrahns to serve in the post office when she became acting postmistress upon her father's death. It was at this time the Cloverdale post office reached its peak. About 45 boxes were being rented, bring in close to $1200.00 annually. It was considered a very good fourth class post office. On March 23, 1948, Mrs. Lucy Loubenec was appointed the last Cloverdale postmistress and her job will end Sunday. The primary reaon for the closing is the fact that the offices income shrank below the minimum required by law.

August 5, 1949

Palatine — from T. C. Hart's "Tales of the Street." Are we heading for an early fall? Some signs point in that direction. Mrs. Acree reports the first katydids were head down in their neighborhood on the evening of July 25. According to the late Jerry Agree that meant frost in six weeks. That would mean a frost around Sept. 5 which sure would mean an early fall.

Geo. Butler on the other hand claims that 90 days from the first katydid we have the first killing frost. Well, we have seen both of these predictions come true in the past so take your choice folks: a light frost by Sept. 5 or a killing frost October 25. Another early fall sign that we other early fall sign that we noticed the other evening was that the robins were bunching up in flocks and that doesn't usually take place until late in August or early in September.

Arlington Heights

An examination for lieutenant of police will be conducted by the Arlington Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. Sergeant Elmer Karstens is the only one of the officers who is eligible to take the examination.

Mt. Prospect

What kind of movie programs do the people of Mt. Prospect prefer? Single or double features? Drama, musical comedy, or horse oprys? Walter A. Wischstadt advises construction of his new "Prospect Theatre" will begin soon, and he suggest local residents direct a little thought along these lines during the next month or two before the theater's initial operating policies are definitely formulated. "The theatre will have a seating capacity of about 400" Wischstadt stated, "and will be of the latest stadium type noted for its excellent sight lines. In its design every effort has been made to achieve a high standard in quality, appearance, comfort and safety."

Palatine

At last Sunday's service two beautiful stained glass windows, the first to be installed since completion of the building, were dedicated at St. Philip Episcopal church, Palatine. They were presented by Mr. and Mrs. Emory Moore of Inverness on the occasion of the rector's birthday and dedicated to him as the first rector of the new parish.

Students in Palatine's old grade school have no reason to feel slighted since the erection of the new school. The remaining rooms in the old school building will be modernized with flouresscent lights. New color schemes will be arranged for the rooms and new fixtures will also be installed in the wash rooms. One room in the basement will provide a club room for Boy and Girl Scouts. The other will be an opportunity room. There will be 3 third grade rooms, 3 fourth grade rooms, 3 fifth grade rooms, and 1 second grade room in the old building. Of the 838 children who enrolled, 535 of these will use buses to get to school.

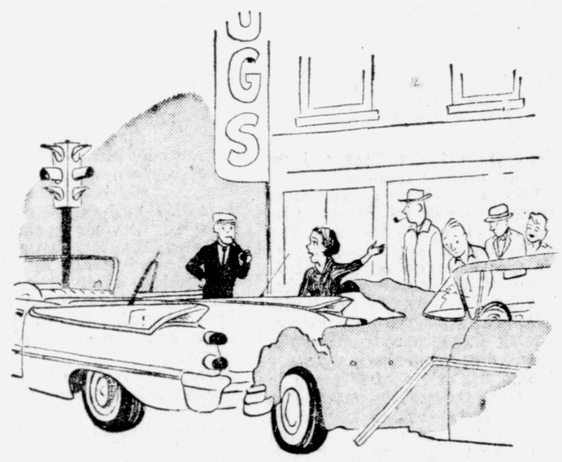
Arlington Heights

A group, of seven Kappa Kappa Gamma alumnae living in this area are getting together next Tuesday night, August 9, at the home of Mrs. Fred W. Reitze, 12 West Willow Road, Prospect Heights. They wish to extend work to any other members of the sorority that they are welcome to come. Those known to be members are: Mrs. Robert E. Russell and Mrs. Robert D. Payne of Mount Prospect; Mrs. Herbert D. McAuliffe, Miss Burneta Burns, Miss Betty Davis, and Mrs. Donald Shaw, of Arlington Heights, and the hostess.

St. John Evangelical church, Bensenville, will celebrate its 10th anniversary October 9th. The beginning of the United Evangelical St. John Church, Addison Township, DuPage County, dates back to the year 1848 when the settlers tried to originate an Evangelical church. The first church was built on two acres of land which were donated. Three more acres were bought for $30.00. This is still the same location where the present church stands. In this anniversary year the church has 46 members. During May of this year the church was beautifully decorated and now has an inviting and pleasing appearance.

Arlington Heights

Home building in Arlington during July continued to spurt ahead. Building Commissioner Paul Taege reported this week that permits for 13 new homes with a value of $183,000 were issued last month. Garages, additions, and alterations brought the combined total to $200,450.



"I don't feel it's entirely my fault. The salesman said this car was fully automatic."

Man Is Creature Of Many Habits

by LELAND ELLIS TRUXELL

So much is man a creature of habit that it may be said with honesty that a man is good or bad according to his habits.

We have habits of walking, eating, sleeping, putting on or taking off our clothing. Habits of scratching our head, biting the rubber on a pencil; cliche phrases which we habitually, and sometimes tiresomely, use over and over again.

Each morning we shut off the alarm; stretch or yawn; roll sleepily out of bed and go to the toilet; wash our face and hands; shave or wash our face; dress; go down to breakfast; gaze absently out the window, or read the paper as we eat; grab our hat; open the door; go outside; close the door; walk to the bus; get on; pay our fare; set down; get off; walk to our place of work punch the clock; and start to work. From the time we got out of bed until now, nearly every act was done without conscious thought. Many of us go through an entire day without consciously thinking about our work. Take a man who digs ditches, lays brick, or drives a truck—nearly all of his movements are made subconsciously. And a good worker is one who has formed the habit of automatically doing each of these things right.

WHAT WE THINK is largely the result of the thought patterns formed in childhood. A woman who habitually thinks only of the last soap opera and anticipates the next neglects her home and her family. A woman who has learned the importance of woman's place in the home thinks habitually how she can better care for her family. She has formed the habit of thinking about family and home. An artist thinks habitually of his art; a musician of music; a mechanic of machines.

And a criminal, of crime. He forms habits of stealing, lying, and fighting in a home where these things prevail. He may grow up to be a murderer merely because he hears a parent say "I could kill you!" in a fit of anger. He may become habitually morose, bitter, sneaking, hot headed, or a thousand other things merely because of habits formed in childhood.

Or, he may grow up to pray, to trust in God, to be honest and hard working, a good husband, a loving wife, or child. Our happiness or misery depends on our habits; and a parent's responsibility for his child's happiness, success, Christian belief and character is a real, and a tremendous one!

Don't be afraid to try "foreign" dishes. There is nothing mysterious or peculiar about them, remember they are only foreign to us . . . Actually many of the ingredients are old familiar ones you have been using for years, just combined differently . . . You will find that you can turn inexpensive cuts into delicious dishes . . . Another point in favor of many foreign dishes is that they can be prepared in advance and will stand extra minutes of cooking time so that the hostess can have a few extra minutes to join the party in the living room before sitting down to the table . . . try a few foreign recipes on the family and pick one of your favorites to serve at your next dinner party . . your guests will go home raving about your meal . . .

49 Illinois Farmers Favor Horizontal Self-Feed Silos

Lower labor requirements and better feeding efficiency are reasons Illinois beef feeders give for self-feeding silage from horizontal silos.

This report comes from R. N. Van Arsdall, agricultural research service economist at the University of Illinois.

In order to outline detailed self-feeding recommendations, Van Arsdall recently interviewed 49 Illinois feeders now using self-feeding programs. He reports results in the U. of I. bulletin 642, "Self-Feeding Silage to Beef Cattle From Horizontal Silos." Here are some highlights from the bulletin:

Four-fifths of the farmers interviewed listed the lower initial cost as a primary reason for building a horizontal rather than upright silo. Another reason, named by two-thirds of the operators, was the reduction in labor achieved by putting cattle on self-feeders. Only a few farmers thought that it was easier to fill an upright silo than a horizontal silo.

THE FARMERS admitted that spoilage losses were greater in horizontal silos, but thought the savings in labor and other costs more than offset them.

Feeding gates are one of the most important parts of any feeders in the study used three types: electric wires, suspended gates and self-supported gates.

Suspended gates proved mostly effective in nearly all respects. They require less labor and reduce silage waste. Electric wires give no protection against hogs and drainage and sometimes allow excessive waste. Self-supported gates are difficult to move.

For protection against spoilage losses, the farmers recommend building silos at least 20 feet wide. They should contain a minimum of five feet of silage.

Most feeders believe that space allotments per animal are fairly flexible. Two to three inches per animal was generally satisfactory.

FROZEN SILAGE often caused minor difficulties, but it seldom interrupted self-feeding except after extended periods of sub-zero weather. For maximum insurance against freezing, the feeders recommend building silos in a north-south direction, with silage fed from the south end. An adequate number of cattle feeding from the silo, proper feeding gate management, and earth banks along the silo walls will also help to prevent freezing.

Few farmers used surface covers, but many were considering using black polyethylene. However, it tears easily and is difficult to hold in place. Some farmers effectively use low-value forages as surface covers.

About three-fourths of the silos were built by farm labor. Initial cost of 200-ton silos varied from $5 to $9 per ton of capacity. The farmers estimated the useful life of horizontal silos at 15 to 30 years.

Persons wishing to obtain this bulletin should write to the Office of Information, 110 Mumford Hall, Urbana, Ill., or request from your Farm Advisor's Office, 201 N. Dunton ave., Arlington Heights, Ill. (FM

Research Grant Awarded Scientist

An accidental discovery of a new form of nitrogen in the soil has led to a special research grant for University of Illinois soil scientist Frank J. Stevenson.

The National Science foundation this week awarded $19,250 to Stevenson to be used during the next two years for basic research in the nitrogen composition of various rock formations.

For several years Stevenson has been studying the chemical of nitrogen in the soil. It was only by accident that he found that this form of nitrogen — a form of ammonium locked in to the lattice-like structure of the clay particles in the soil. The amount of this form appears to be greater than the total of all other mineral forms.

Stevenson emphasizes that the nitrogen in the surface soil occurs in organic matter.

This discovery, a particular interest to soil scientists, geologists, and other scientists, reveals that a vast reservoir of nitrogen exists in the terrestrial areas of the earth as ammonium ions held within the lattice structure of silicate minerals, including those in rock materials.

This discovery also provides a clue to the origin of nitrogen in the atmosphere. The nitrogen in the air is believed to have originated from nitrogen in rocks and been released as a gas during periods of intensive volcanic activity. It also provides an explanation of the chemical nature of the nitrogen in stony meterorites. (FM

U. of I. Men to Study Farrow House Environment

A new farrowing house "environment control unit" designed to provide optimum year-round farrowing environment for sows and litters is the goal of a new University of Illinois research project set to begin this fall.

Art Muehling, U. of I. agricultural engineer, said researchers will test various systems for heating, cooling, and ventilating farrowing houses. They will work to integrate the most satisfactory systems into a single unit which, depending on weather conditions, will heat, cool, or ventilate the house.

Site of the research is a 30 by 64 foot farrowing barn that will house 22 research sows and all test equipment. Working cooperatively with the department of animal science, agricultural engineering researchers plan to test such winter farrowing equipment as radiant heating in floors, radiant heat in stall partitions, and heat lamps. Summer tests include piping cool air to individual sows and cooling by mist spray.

Muehling says performance of sows farrowing under these controlled conditions will be compared with that of sows farrowing under natural conditions in a nearby building.

The U. of I. researchers believe a single unit for heating, cooling, and ventilating farrowing houses would be practical. Once manufactured, it could be used in many buildings without major remodeling. And it would simplify installation of farm heating and ventilating systems.

Corn continued to disappear at a great rate during the April-July quarter. Total disappearance for the 91-day period was 787 million bushels. This was 12 per cent more than the previous record set a year before, and it was a whopping 43 per cent more than the average disappearance in the five years before last year!

Total stocks of corn on hand July 1 were estimated at 2,204 million bushels. These stocks were five per cent larger than those of a year before, which set a record.

We began this marketing year with a total of 5,270 million bushels of corn. By July 1 this mountain of corn had melted down to 2,204 million bushels.

AT THE beginning of this marketing year, we had 428 million bushels more corn than ever before. By July 1 that excess over the previous record stocks for the date had been cut to only 108 million bushels!

The short oat crop and increased feeding of hogs and beef cattle will cause farmers to put heavy demands on old corn. By October 1, total stocks of corn will be very little, if any, larger than they were last fall. The 1958 corn crop, biggest ever produced, will be just about matched by consumption.

Stocks of old oats on July 1 were estimated at 369 million bushels, 14 per cent more than 12 months before. The 1959 oat crop was estimated in July at 1,010 million bushels. Adding carry-over and crop makes 1,379 million bushels, or 21 per cent less than last year. Excessively wet weather in some good oat areas has prevented the harvest of some of the crops.

STOCKS OF sorghum grain on July 1 were estimated at 529 million bushels, up 54 per cent from a year before. But the new crop will be smaller than in 1958 because of a sharp cut in acreage in the usually high-yielding areas of the western corn belt.

Barley stocks on July 1 totaled 193 million bushels, 15 per cent above the previous record set last year. The 1959 barley crop was estimated in July at 414 million bushels, down 12 per cent from a year ago. Total stocks plus crop make 607 million bushels, or five per cent less than lat year.

Soybeans, too, have been doing an unprecedented disappearing act. Disappearance from October 1 to July 1 totaled about 438 million bushels, 13 per cent more than in the previous year. Disappearance during this July-September quarter may be around 105 million bushels, leaving only about 50 million bushels for carryover on October 1.

SUCH A CARRYOVER would be considerably larger than that of last fall, which was 21 million bushels. But the 1959 crop will be much smaller than that of 1958. Consequently, the total supply of beans available for the 1959-60 marketing year will be less than the 595 million bushels available this year.

Farmers are producing large numbers of hogs and poultry, and production will continue large in 1960. This will require large amounts of soybean meal, which is our chief source of protein supplements. If exports hold up, most of the prospective supply of soybeans will be used up before combines roll in 1960. (FM

Down On The Farm

CARL F. MEES

with Your Farm Adviser

by CARL F. MEES
Farm Adviser

Crop reporters across the corn belt forecast a corn crop of 4.2 billion bushels. This is ten per cent more than last year's crop and a 29 per cent increase over the 10 year average. While not all this corn has been harvested, and a lot can happen to the crop between now and harvest time, it appears now that we will have the largest crop on record. This means that the surplus will go into storage and add to an already burdensome supply.

Pork producers are receiving from five to seven dollars less per hundred for their pork now than they did a year ago. Today it does not pay to feed heavy hogs. The feeders therefore should market their hogs when they will top the market and not try to put on additional weight.

THE FIRE LIGHT infection period is over for this year in Illinois, so now is an excellent time to prune out blighted twigs. The dead twigs are easily seen at this time, while the leaves are still intact. Thus, if you can prune now, there is less chance of leaving the potential canker for 1960. Cut the twig or branch at least six inches below the point where infection has stopped. Always cut back to a lateral branch. Sterilize the cut branch with 1 per cent chlorox. Both of the pathogens causing black rot and Botryosphaeria will infect blighted branches and twigs, and these infections are a source of inoculum for later fruit infections.

This is also the time to be concerned about fruit rot. According to Dr. Ed Williams, Purdue University, harvest fruit rot will result from any infections that occur from July 4 to harvest. First, go through the trees systematically and remove all the dead branches and twigs in the trees. Then each time you spray, if you see a dead branch, remove it. Eventually your trees will be free of the important source of fruit rot spores. The only fungibe effective in controlling fruit cide treatment that is known to rot is 50 per cent Captan, 2 pounds per 100 gallons, applie dat weekly intervals until harvest.

Blossom-end rot is showing up in garden tomatoes. The lesion develops around the blossom end of the fruit and may be 1½ inches or more in diameter. The color of the spot may range from gray to brown, with thin dark lines radiating outward from the center. This disease is caused by a deficiency of calcium.

Fusalum wilt is also appearing in tomatoes through the state, causing the leaves to turn yellow and the vines to die. Look for browning of the tissues just under the "skin" of the main stem and branches near the ground. Spraying or dusting with fungicides containing maneb, zineb or captan should be under way for the control of leaf spots and anthracnose of tomato. (FM

See Results of Grass Test Plots

by JAMES FIEZELL
Assistant Farm Adviser

The University of Illinois Turf Demonstration plots at Arlington Heights have shown some interesting results in the first year of existence.

The plots were established to show how different varities of lawn grass grow in this area, and which types of grass do best with minimal care.

The plots were watered only during severe dry spells and only once weekly during that time. The grass was cut when it grew to three inches and was cut no shorter than two inches.

Different varieties of grass differ in their speed of germination, and in the time it takes them to make a turf.

AS USUAL, perennial rye and redtop germinated rapidly from fall and spring seedings. Both had formed a fair turf by winter but were severely damaged or killed outright by the severe cold.

The fescues, bents, and blue grasses were slow to germinate and form a turf. However, the best grass was in these plots. The most outstanding plot was Highland bent sown in fall and cut two inches tall. Spring sowing of these grasses was poor because the turf did not get thick enough to prevent growth of weeds. By mid-summer, spring sown plots were completely over run with weeds and crabgrass. In comparison, the fall sown plots were essentially free of weeds.

IN COMPARING mixtures with straight sown seed, the mixtures formed a more even turf, more quickly, and looked better throughout the season.

In addition to the plots of seeded lawn, one plot was plugged with Zoysia in late spring. This plot is completely covered with weeds, but the Zoysia is growing nicely and spreading. It appears as though it will cover the plot in about 4 seasons.

At present the nice crop of weeds in some of the plots is well suited for trying various weed control chemicals. Several are to be tested before the plots are re-established this fall.

The turf plots are located on the north side of Algonquin Road, ½ mile east of Arlington Heights Road.

Good Results Seen From 'Minimum-Tillage' Corn

Early plantings of minimum-tillage corn at the University of Illinois are withstanding recent dry weather as well as corn planted soils are showing the effects of dry weather. But minimum-tillage soils are looser and show considerably less cracking. They also contain a little more moisture.

U. of I. agricultural engineers took moisture samples at depths down to 55 inches. At 55 inches both plantings showed sufficient moisture to keep the corn supplied with water.

But the critical depth, especially when corn is tasseling and making ears, is only about three feet. Upper-level roots, which supply the plant with nutrients, cannot do their job without moisture.

Although both plantings lack sufficient moisture at this critical three-foot level, minimum-tillage plantings show more moisture than conventional plantings.

The fact that minimum-tillage corn planted on June 1 is not doing as well as early June conventional plantings strengthens the belief that, for best results, minimum-tillage fields should b planted early in the season.

OFTEN MISUSED

One is grateful TO a person, and grateful FOR an act or favor. Thus: "I am grateful TO my parents." "He is grateful FOR the kindness shown to him."

Do not say, "You hadn't ought to go out." Say, " You OUGHT NOT to go out."

Do not say, "I feel like I had slept for hours." Say, "I feel AS IF (or, AS THOUGH) I had slept for hours."

Distinguish between FEWER (used of persons or articles that can be counted) and LESS (referring to quality, quantity, or degree). Thus: "Fewer men, fewer dollars, fewer errors," and, "Less sugar, less money, less strength."

Do not say, "He wore an old pair of shoes." Say, "He wore a pair of OLD SHOES."

Do not say, "I misdoubt his statement." It is better to say, "I DOUBT his statement."

Tired Blood Serious Ill For Cattle

If the term "tired blood" could be applied to cattle, it might refer to anaplasmosis. But cattlemen and veterinarians regard anaplasmosis as a serious disease.

All cattle are susceptible to anaplasmosis, reports Dr. J. R. Pickard, University of Illinois Extension veterinarian. However, it is usually severe in mature cattle, especially cow herds, and milk in calves.

Anaplasmosis was originally brought to the midwest when feeder cattle were first shipped in large numbers from the southwest. It is now established in Illinois.

This disease spreads rapidly in late summer and early fall when biting insects carry it from infected cattle to uninfected cattle. It can also be transmitted by unsterilized surgical instruments. Only a slight, short penetration of a non-sterile syringe is necessary to transmit this disease.

Dr. Pickard said certain signs will show in severe cases of anaplasmosis. Since the red blood cells are attacked, the animal may appear anemic. Its lips, nostrils, mouth linings and other visible mucous membranes look pale. It appears sluggish and weak, and its general condition becomes poor as the animal loses weight.

Calves usually contract a milk form of anaplasmosis. While most calves survive the initial attack, they become carriers.

A considerable amount of research is being conducted on anaplasmosis. A blood test for this disease has been developed that permits definite identification of carrier animals. However, since no specific treatment is known at present, veterinarians advise that carrier animals be removed from the herd.

Illinois A Big Fertilizer User

Illinois farmers have changed from minor users of fertilizer to a leading position in fertilizer used during the past 20 years. University of Illinois soil scientists L. T. Kurtz and S. R. Aldrich report that Illinois ranked fourth in use of total nitrogen, available phosphate, and potash during 1958.

When the phosphate in rock phosphate is added, Illinois ranks first in total plant food nutrients. In 1958, Illinois farmers bought 1,442,883 tons of fertilizers. This amount consisted of 544,592 tons of mixed fertilizers, 387,005 tons of colloidal phosphate.

Kurtz and Aldrich report that during the past four years the rate of increase in materials used has been greater for soluble fertilizer nutrients than for mixed fertilizers. The per cent of nutrients sold in mixed form dropped from 75 per cent in 1950 to 62 per cent in 1955 and 56 per cent in 1958.

The most popular ratio of mixed fertilizer is 1-4-4; next is 1-1-1. The 1-4-2 ratio is replacing part of the 1-4-4.

The University of Illinois department of agronomy has kept records on use of fertilizer by Illinois farmers since 1930.

Arlington in Fifth Place for Business

Arlington Heights went back into fifth place during May in the three-cornered struggle for that position among north suburban shopping towns, according to figures of the state revenue department on collection of the one half per cent local sales tax.

Reporting $15,947 collected for May compared with $13,747 in April, Arlington Heights pushed ahead of Highland Park, which had $14,949 from $13,832 in April. Wilmette remained seventh, where it has been since January, with $14,527, up from $12,792 in April.

The four perennial league leaders, all showed increases with Evanston and Des Plaines having the largest. Evanston reported $46,808 from $43,103 in April; Skokie $42,482 from $40,949; Elgin $30,487 from $29,385; and Des Plaines $19,529 from $16,705.

WINNETKA, which had been ranking 13th in April under the state 2.5 per cent sales tax collection figures, which include use taxes, dropped to 17th in May with the first report of its new local tax, showing $5,883 collected.

This boosted four intervening towns one place each: Niles, to 13th with $8,058; Glenview, 14th with $7,402; Barrington, 15th with $6,818 and Mt. Prospect, 16th with $6,283.

Other high-ranking north suburban towns were: eighth, Park Ridge, $12,967; ninth, Morton Grove, $11,427; tenth, Nrrridge, $9,696; eleventh, Franklin Park, $8,874 and twelfth, Lincolnwood, $8,759.

ILLINOIS BROACHING CO., INC.

INTERNAL — EXTERNAL — SURFACE PRODUCTION BROACHING
COMPLETE ENGINEERING SERVICE

The field of Broaching offers metal-working plants an operation that has proved itself during wartime when greater production speeds and accuracy are needed, not usually possible by other methods.

An organization that specializes in Production Broaching in either long or short runs, as per any drawings or specifications is Illinois Broaching Co. Inc., located at 4200 N. Grace st. Schiller Park, Illinois.

Metal fabricating plants will find Broaching to be the most economical operation for finishing square or rectangular or irregular shaped holes, cutting of keyways in hubs, machining of cored or drilled holes to the required shape, for broaching round holes in parts where reaming does not afford a satisfactory finish and the tool cost is to high, also for irregular shapes in die castings and parts made of steel, bronze, babbit or any of the mechineable metals.

Push broaching is performed for sizing holes in heat treated gears to remove distortion caused by heat treating as well as for small parts having splines, square, hexagonal and other irregular shaped openings, as well as for burnishing operations. Broaching also accomplishes cutting operations difficult to accomplish by other methods, such as finishing inner surfaces or irregular shaped holes.

Surface Broaching permits greater accuracy and closer limits than usually afforded by other methods, making possible the production of parts that are interchangeable and simplifying assembly work, with the cost per piece substantially lower in comparison with other methods.

If you have a problem involving broaching, bring it to Illinois Broaching Co. Inc., who are members of the Tool & Die Institute, and will be glad to submit competent advice as to the most economical methods of handling your broaching operations ...

Incorporation Law Amendments Signed

Four amendments of the law governing incorporations and disconnections of territory were signed into law by Gov. Stratton following adoption by the recent legislative session, in line with some recent complaints of abuses.

Senate Bill 772 by Sen. Little requires a population of not less than 2,500, including 2,000 living in immobile dwellings, compared to 1,000 under the previous law, in order to incorporate as a city.

SENATE BILL 850 by Sen. Canfield provides the county judge shall determine whether an area petitioning for incorporation as a village constitutes a village or not. If he finds it does not, none of the land described in the petition may be included in a subsequent petition for incorporation within one year. If he finds it does, he shall fix a time and place of election. This becomes effective Jan. 1, 1960.

House Bill 459 by Rep. Parkhurst provides a method of disconnecting territory from a fire protection district which has no bonded indebtedness if such territory would receive greater benefit of fire protection from another district of municipality.

House Bill 1572 by Reps. Conti and Lelivelt provides that any territory within a Street Lighting district which is annexed to a city, village, or town that provides street lighting, shall be disconnected as of Jan. 1, 1960. If there are outstanding bonds, such territory shall remain liable for its proprotionate share. (B8

Improve County Assessment Methods

Two measures relating to the assessment of property taxes were passed at the lat session of the legislature and have now been signed into law by the governor.

One of these measures, which I shall discuss in this week's report, is admittedly an improvement in the assesing procedures. The other one, however, provides me a certain misgiving and I shall cover that next week.

THE FIRST measure relates solely to Cook county and provides for splitting the quadrennial assessment over a 4-year period. Heretofore once each four years the county assessor has reassessed all properties in the county. This procedure required a bunching of an immense work load in one year. Then for three years little work was required. Consequently it was impossible to retain over a continuous period a permanent staff to engage in the very important task of reassessing property.

It was felt that if the reassessing procedure could be spread out over a 4-year period, the county would attract carcer people and increase the efficiency of assessing procedures rather substantially.

Accordingly, the new law provides that in Cook county one-fourth of the county will be reassessed each year. In each successive year another one-fourth of the county will be reassessed. At the end of four years, therefore, every portion of the county will have been reassessed and the reassessment of property will be continued in such one-fourth sections in each of the future years.

THIS should enable the county assessor to develop a permanent staff of skilled technicians who will be continuously engaged in the reassessment procedure. This should attract career specialists who can be assured of permanent and continued employment. Theoretically at least, assessment procedures ought to be vastly improved.

There are some attendant problems which the new law does not resolve. For instance, it would be a mistake to divide the county into quarters that would require an assessment of all of the Chicago Loop property only once in four years. For, the specialist in Loop property valuation generally is not a specialist in suburban values, since the factors considered in such types of assessment are entirely different. For this reason the county assessor is being urged to divide the county into four segments of pie-shaped character extending from the Loop. This would mean that each year the Assessor's staff would be assessing Loop properties, city of Chicago properties and suburban area properties each year. The staff of the assessor, therefore, would consist of continuously and permanently employed specialists in each of these three categories.

THE NEW procedure permits an avoidance of the situation such as experienced this year with respect to late mailings of tax bills. Although the law specifies that the first installment of real estate taxes is due on May 1, you all know this date has been required to be extended to August 1. This being a quadrennial year, the assessor was unable to complete his task in time to permit the mailing of bills prior to May 1. This year the taxpayer pays his first installment on August 1 and is almost immediately faced with the payment of the second installment on September 1.

If the law works satisfactorily in Cook county, it unquestionably should be extended to the larger counties of the State. For instance, in DuPage county the first installment of real estate taxes has been required to be extended to September 1. In Lake county the real estate tax bills for the first installment have not yet even been mailed, and it is conjectural when they will be. This requires those counties to finance their operations with tax-anticipation warrants which, of course, greatly increases governmental costs because of the high interest payments.

In nxt week's article I shall discuss the second measure which affects this problem and with respect to which I believe we are going to be faced with quite severe problems.

Governor Vetoes Septic Tank Law

A bill licensing septic tank and cesspool cleaners was vetoed by Gov. Stratton because the $60,000 it appropriates to enforce the law was not included in the budget.

Known as Sen. Bill 714 by Sen. Little, and entitled "For preventing the spread of infectious and contagious diseases," the proposed law would have bonded as well as licensed those servicing septic tanks, under the department of Public Health. Their vehicles would also have been inspected and the dumping of wastes controlled.

"The pressing needs of the state require that this appropriation be vetoed," said the gover-or's message.

MEANWHILE TWO more amendments on the subject of sanitary districts and sewage disposal were signed.

House Bill 1330 by Rep. Jack Walker of south Cook county provides that a municipality that owns or operates a sewerage system constructed or acquidcnr under Illinois law shall have the power to charge users, whether they be inside or outside the municipality, by direct or indirect connection, and may establish rates for that purpose.

Senate Bill 915 by Sen. Woodruff amends the act to create sanitary districts and provide for sewage disposal by providing that no territory shall be included in a municipal corporation so formed which is not within the limits of an incorporated area or within six miles outside.

Governor Signs Host of Odd Laws

Temporary horseshoers of good character, flags for tractors, raccoon hounds, and a bit of inflation figure in some of the unusual laws signed by Gov. Stratton among other 1,200 passed by the recent legislature.

House Bill 1413 by Rep. Craig authorizes the Department of Registration and Education to grant temporary certificates for two years as horseshoers to persons with some experience, "of good character" and with other qualifications. This certificate will permit the person to take an examination at the end of two years, if any horses are still around.

HOUSE BILL 1237 by Rep. Sutor requires when any road tractor or "implement of husbandry" operates on a state or county road at less than 20 miles per hour, it shall display a red flag at least 15 inches square, and placed not less than ten or more than 12 feet above the ground. If vehicles are in a tendem, only the rear one need show the flag.

Senate Bill 660 by Sens. Hart and Crisenberry amends the Game Code to permit the training of raccoon hounds in the field between April and August 15, instead of between April and September 1 as previously provided.

Inflation was felt in House Bill 1588 by Rep. McAvoy and Armstrong. It raised the value of goods, of which theft would constitute petty larceny, from $50 to $300. Only a few years ago, it was raised from $15 to $50.
